Never has a play been offered in Sydney with so much accuracy of detail. The scenes have been reconstituted with picturesque pageantry, the highest living authorities having verified every article, every ceremony, every particular in the production. From this aspect alone the spectacle is unique in our stage annals. The story, too, is vividly narrated, and has a dramatic vigour that compels the closest interest.
THE VERDICT OF SYDNEY IS THAT NOTHING MORE IMPRESSIVE, INSPIRING, AND STIMULATING HAS EVER BEEN OFFERED TO SYDNEY PLAYGOERS.

GIVE US THIS DAY.

"GIVE US THIS DAY" is a Story that would have served as a pen-picture for Charles Dickens, that practical friend of the poor, down-trodden human derelict, and the greatest reformer of our Poor Law System that the world has ever seen. It has a lesson in every scene, yet, withal, is one of the most engrossing stories ever screened.

Ladies' Pyjamas

'Tis the law of life, old things give place to new. Twenty-five years ago men slept in calico nightshirts, to-day a man in a nightshirt is a rarity. The same change is now taking place in ladies' night wear, the Nursing Profession has adopted pyjamas, in many boarding schools for girls the nightdress has been banished in favour of pyjamas, and all ladies who have once worn pyjamas for verandah sleeping, or for train and steamer travelling never go back to nightdresses. It is safe to predict that in a year or two nightdresses will be quite out of fashion.

By far the best material for making Ladies' Winter Pyjamas is the new "OSMANETTE" Material. It is made in white and cream, and woven to secure warmth and comfort with non-shrinkage. It is strong and durable, but not bulky, and particularly well suited for making underwear for children.

"Osmanette"

can be seen in the piece (white and cream) or in ready-to-wear pyjamas for ladies and school-girls, also little sleeping suits for children at all the best stores in Australia. Look for the name "OSMANETTE" on the selvedge of the material when buying by the yard, and for the registered "OSMANETTE" label in the neck of each garment.

A Novel Competition
in Cash Prizes.

To ascertain the views of ladies as to the most useful style of sleeping suits, the Australian Home Journal, in conjunction with the Manufacturers, offer the following Cash Prizes for the most practical styles made from "OSMANETTE" material:—

First Prize, £10 Cash.
Three 2nd Prizes, each £5 Cash.
Five 3rd Prizes, each £3 Cash.
Twenty Special Prizes, each £1 Cash.
also
50 Prizes each of 10/- Cash, for the best Girls' Pyjamas, made by Girls under 16 years of age.

Every girl or woman who can sew should enter for this most novel and interesting needlework competition; there is

NO ENTRANCE FEE.

Just go to your drapers and buy 6 or 12 yards of "OSMANETTE" (white or cream); ask the salesman to write the word "OSMANETTE" plainly on the bill, and then write your own name and address plainly at the foot, and having done this, all you have to do is to post the bill to

The Manager,
Australian Home Journal,
93 York-street, Sydney,

who will send you a numbered competitor's cards, with full instructions. Any competitor may make as many entries as she likes.

Please tell your friends of this interesting Competition, also advise them to enter without delay.

BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

PROGRESS OF THE TRADE.

NORTH SYDNEY IMPROVEMENTS.

North Sydney is fast spreading beyond Crow's Nest. Quite a population is springing up in the direction of Willoughby and Lane Cove; and to meet the requirements of this growing neighbourhood, public and semi-public buildings are making their appearance. One of the latest in this direction is the Queen's Theatre, from plans by Mr. Rupert V. Minnett, architect, under whose direction Mr. R. P. Blundell, builder, will carry out the work. The site selected for this theatre is on the Lane Cove-road, at Crow's Nest. The building has been designed with attention to all the requirements of a modern picture theatre, and will have accommodation for over 1000 people. The construction throughout will be of brick, with floors to operating-room, balcony, etc., of reinforced concrete, and the roof, the covering of which is of white malthoid, will be carried by steel truss principals with clear span of 70ft 6in, finished at the apex with a large open roof space for free air movement, with steel constructed sliding gear. Electric lighting appliances are to be installed throughout. The seating will be arranged on a raised gallery and sloping floors to allow of an unobstructed view of the screen from all parts of the house. At one side of the auditorium will be placed the engine room, offices, etc. There are to be refreshment rooms and retiring rooms, and provision has also been made for a dress circle to be added at a subsequent date. There is a small stage and an orchestra. The main entrance with tiled floors and stone archway, and the balcony, with a suspended awning to the whole of the frontage, will be a feature of the elevation. Provision has been made for two shops and residential premises adjoining, designed in harmony with the theatre. When complete, the Queen's Theatre will be one of the largest of the suburban picture theatres, and will cost between £6000 and £7000.

A NEW HOSPITAL.

The new Mater Misericordiae General Hospital, which is to be built at Lane Cove-road, North Sydney, is to cost £10,950. A block of land adjoining the present private hospital site has been secured, and the building will occupy both these sites. The foundation-stone was laid and blessed by Dr. Kelly on Sunday last. A most up-to-date plan has been adopted. In the centre of the building is the administrative block, approached by a flight of marble steps to the porch, and thence into the main hall through swing doors. The halls are 10 feet wide, having arches and architectural dressings. The floors of the halls are to be tesselated tile of suitable pattern, carried on reinforced concrete. In the main hall are placed wide staircases, and electric passenger lifts go from the ground floor to the roof garden. There will be another electric lift at the rear of the building from the outdoor patients' quarters in the basement to the operating theatre on the roof garden, to be used by patients and nurses. The administrative block is in the centre of the building at the front, and contains the following rooms, on the ground floor, viz., doctors' room, consulting room, and waiting rooms. On the first floor are the x-ray room, science room, museum, and laboratory. On the second floor will be the nurses' quarters. On the south side are three wards, designed to contain 20 beds each, with verandah and balconies 10 feet wide, on two sides and front. The hospital will be connected by a covered way to the private hospital for the use of the sisters. At the end of each ward, at the back, on every floor, are patients' rooms, pantry, and linen rooms. The floors and walls of rooms in the above block are to be tiled with best glazed tiles. The roof is to be a flat one, constructed on steel rolled joists, and to have a floor 6in thick, of reinforced cement concrete, and finished with 1in of Val de Travers asphalt. On this floor are to be built the operating theatre, doctors' rooms, anesthetic, and sterilising rooms, bathrooms, etc. At the rear of the flat roof are the kitchen, laundry, scullery, and pantry, with hand lift to the wards. The building will be three stories in front, and four at the back. It will be built of bricks, finished with cement. The contractor is Mr. C. Schultz, and the architect Mr. Joseph J. Sheerin, of Annandale.

THE NEW DICTATORSHIP.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The proposal of the Waterside Workers' Federation to hold up the export of meat until local prices are reduced is the most startling development of militant unionism. With our classifying our Parliamentarians as men of celestial wisdom this is a case of unionists rushing in where angels fear to tread.

During the last few years we have become large exporters of meat, butter, wheat, and other foodstuffs. The prosperity of recent years has been largely due to the fact that we have an unlimited market for those products, that Nature has been kind in facilitating production, and that modern freezing methods have made it possible for us to enter the world's markets. As a set-off to the benefits of this change, we pay the penalty of having local prices regulated largely by those of the world's markets. Producers sell where they can get the highest price. Now the wharf-labourer takes on himself the responsibility of saying he must not do this, but must sell locally at the price his union determines.

Prior to and during the Federal election, this question was discussed, and it was urged that the Federal Parliament should, by imposing export duties, prevent the export of products until local requirements were satisfied at a reasonable price. Mr. Fisher was urged to adopt this policy. He refused. He realised the intricacy of the whole problem of high prices, and, in reply to a deputation, turned down the limitation of export as a remedy which might bring disastrous counter results. But the wharf-labourer is wiser. He scorns the attitude even of Labour Governments, and claims the right, on behalf of the whole community, not merely to limit, but to stop exportation!

No country which does not maintain a surplus of exports over imports can progress. Our export trade is confined to primary products. In secondary products we do not as to most commodities produce enough for local requirements. Our export of manufactured goods is negligible.

We can only progress by increasing our exports. Any change of policy which checks the production of the things we can export will be disastrous in its results. Mr. Fisher, when Prime Minister, realised this, and refused to adopt export duties. The Labour Governments in office in this State and Western Australia have never accepted limitation of export as a remedy.

But the wharf-labourer claims special qualifications to deal with an economic problem that is engaging the attention of even his own leaders. He knows more than Mr. Fisher, or Mr. Holman, or Mr. Cook, or Mr. Wade, or all the Australian Parliaments. He is prepared to stop export, and will, it is presumed, accept responsibility for any limitation of production, for any decrease in the volume of work available for wharf-labourers, and for the general depression which must, in a new country, follow any serious interference with the export of raw material.

I am not at present discussing what is the remedy for high prices, except to contend that it is a question for Parliament, and not a trades-union, to determine. I am only drawing attention to the danger of a trades-union using its power to force the wrong remedy on the community.

If this assumption by unionism of economic dictatorship is persisted in, then it is time every sane man was up and doing. This is the "breaking point" that calls for immediate and concerted action before the first experiment is even entered on.

CHAPTER X.

AT THE LORD TREASURER'S.

A searching wind was blowing up from the river, with a cold drizzle of rain falling, when Captain Stone and Sir Giles Treluce took their way to the Lord Treasurer's house. It was a little before the hour appointed—11 of the clock.

Stone was no longer vested in his uniform as Captain of the Guards, but he wore his breast and back of mail under his doublet; both gentlemen were heavily cloaked against the weather.

On arriving at the house they were informed by the major-domo that Lord Burleigh was out riding, but was expected in soon; he had left instructions that the visitors were to await his return.

They were shown into a room of some size, evidently the place where the business of his office was transacted. On a round table, in the middle of the apartment, under a brass lamp attached to a hook in the ceiling, were papers and parchments carefully arranged and docketed. A deep-seated, oak chair was placed opposite the door, close to the table, with two smaller ones of similar make on either hand; other chairs were ranged along the wall, on both sides, while a gentleman in black sat at a side table under the window.

He rose, laying down his pen, when Treluce and Stone entered. Stepping forward, he bowed.

"Sir Giles Treluce, and Captain Stone, I believe?"

They bowed assent.

"My Lord, Burleigh, was called out unexpectedly this morning, but hoped to be back in time; will you kindly be seated"—he indicated the chairs, near the table.

He then turned to resume his work, writing at a fair pace, with a quill pen; every now and then consulting some notes which lay before him.

Christopher Stone, who knew well the terms of intimacy between the Lord Treasurer and Sir Francis Walsingham, had no difficulty in guessing the Secretary was drawing up, for Walsingham's benefit, a narrative of the happenings of yesterday, together with the result of the discussion at the Council.

There was something impressive in the thought that in this room, with its air of solid dignity, combined with the atmosphere of business, the fortunes of England were moulded. The master of this apartment had held for many years in the hollow of his hand the mingled threads of State. Only his sage advice had saved a masterful woman, full of whims, from disasters, which might well have overwhelmed and sunk the somewhat frail bark of government. Here, within these walls, conferences had been held with foreign ambassadors, peers of the realm, and men of less degree, but almost equal importance. In this house, if not in this very room, for my Lord was ill with gout at the time, and confined to his bed-chamber, had been determined the fate of Queen Mary, late of Scotland and France.

Captain Christopher, from the position he had held for two years or more, had necessarily learnt something of the inner weaving of that web, in which Cecil, Lord Burleigh, played the most prominent part; he had learnt to respect the great Statesman, and at the same time to realise that there were depths in his character, which no man could fathom, not even his intimate friends. Courage he had of a rare order, the courage of decision, the courage of an emergency; he needed the quality now, and would need it during the terrible months, which were to follow, months of stress and anxiety, during this year of grace, 1588.

The door opened, the man Stone was thinking about entered, and immediately the stage seemed adequately filled; the room, which had been empty before, was dominated by his single personality, which pervaded it, and conveyed a sense of power, of wisdom, to the two guests, who had been awaiting the coming of the Lord Treasurer. Each was influenced after his own personal fashion, by the dominance of the man.

Lord Burleigh bowed to them, as they rose from their seats. He was dressed simply, in velvet, with knee-breeches, heavy riding boots, and over all a coat of thick broadcloth, now unbuttoned. He was drawing off his gauntlets, as he entered the apartment. A servant, who had followed him in, took from him his riding-whip, gloves, and coat, which he removed from his shoulders. The man then left the room.

The Lord Treasurer walked across to the Secretary, and glanced over the manuscript, on which the latter had been engaged. He nodded his head two or three times, as he read, in token of approval.

"That will do for the present; I shall want you again in half-an-hour."

The Secretary locked up the papers, in a drawer, and then departed from the room by another door, almost facing the one leading into the hall.

Lord Burleigh crossed to the table, and sat down in his chair, crossing his legs. Captain Stone was on his right hand, Sir Giles Treluce on his left. The Statesman made some remark to Treluce about the change in the weather, saying that although the wind was favourable for the voyage down the Thames, it would be very cold and unpleasant on the water. Then he turned to Christopher, and fixed him with his keen eyes, which seemed to read into the very hearts of men subjected to their investigation.

He began abruptly: "So the prisoner escaped, Captain Stone?"

"Yes, my lord."

"It was a well-planned affair, which left little room for mistakes. There were three barges at the Stairs, all of them tampered with, one containing the prisoner and his guard, as you are aware, became water-logged before three hundred yards had been traversed, and had to be drawn to the shore. Here a posse of men in masks was awaiting the water-logged boat, while another wherry came alongside immediately, also with a contingent of armed men. The guard could do nothing against such odds, and were compelled to surrender their charge, who departed with his friends."

"So I heard from the sergeant, afterwards," Christopher replied.

"They were determined no mistakes should be made, for the other two barges, moored near the steps at White Hall, sank during the night. They have just been raised, and I have had the opportunity of inspecting them, the hole which had been cut under one of the thwarts, at the bow end, was carefully concealed from observation, until the water performed its work, and sank the boat."

Lord Burleigh was watching Stone carefully, noting his expression, as he told him the story. He saw at once the last part of it was news.

"You were not aware of all this," he said.

"No, my lord."

"No blame could attach to you, of course; I, myself, heard her Majesty give the directions, which did not turn out satisfactorily. Your part in it did you credit. I shall have pleasure, before you leave this room, to hand you a Treasury order for the sum mentioned by the Queen. It was fortunate that you happened to be close enough to intervene in the affair. If the usual order had been observed the consequences might have been serious, most serious"—he dwelt on the words—"Lord Derby, for instance, might have been too late."

Stone met the gaze of those deep-set eyes, under the great forehead, with some embarrassment. How much did Lord Burleigh know; how much did he guess?

After a pause the Treasurer remarked: "A premonition is sometimes a valuable endowment to a soldier."

Captain Christopher did not reply.

The statesman thereupon closed the subject, or rather directed the conversation into another channel.

"It might not be difficult," he said, "for the Government to lay its hands once more on the prisoner, who so fortuitously escaped."

"You know who he is, then?" Stone inquired.

"You do not?" the Lord Treasurer parried quickly; then he smiled; the answer was in the honest eyes into which he was looking. "Ah!" he commented, "you were not told everything; only as much as was necessary."

Sir Giles intervened, breaking a silence, which had become somewhat oppressive, to one of the two men, at any rate.

"Do you mean, my lord, that you know and could find the man?"

Lord Burleigh turned round. "Yes, and no," he answered. "Yes to the first query; partly no to the second. However," he went on, "let that be, there are some things best not put into words." He turned once more to Stone. "You had a good look at the man after he was unmasked?"

"Yes, my lord."

"Doubtless you would know him again?"

"Anywhere."

Then beware of him; beware of him for yourself; beware of him for the sake of the country you serve; he is an enemy of both."

"I thank you, my lord; I will remember."

"Now for another matter." Burleigh sat back in his chair, placing the tips of his long fingers together. "I asked you to come here to-day—both of you"—he made an inclination of the head first at one, then the other—"to speak about Captain Jose. The Queen is greatly stirred to anger just now by the personal insult to which she has been subjected by the detention and putting to ransom of her messenger. This will doubtless pass, as other matters intervene, but I am glad she has conferred full powers on you, Captain Stone, with Sir Giles as your lieutenant, to deal with this man. I know something about him, but not all; his nationality seems a little uncertain, Portuguese, I fancy."

"I understand, my lord," Sir Giles Treluce interposed, "that he is a Genoese."

"If you are sure of that, it puts a different complexion on the matter. A Portuguese would be under the sway and dominion of Philip of Spain; a Genoese would be concerned for his own interest only."

"I think I know it for a fact, my lord; I had it from a wounded sailor, who had served under him ten years ago, in his early days as a marauder in the Channel. The man was nursed in a cottage on my estate, and as he was recovering I had frequent talks with him about this Captain Jose."

"I am glad to hear what you say, for this assists the matter I have in hand. I take it for granted that you, Captain Stone, will deal with this miscreant in forceable fashion. I have no doubt that if the Flower of Cornwall is not strong enough in point of armament to deal with Jose, other assistance may be obtained on the coast."

"I have a brig, due shortly at Topsham Harbour, which carries guns above and below—the Hesperus. I will see she joins company as soon as we are off the Devon coast, and I have no doubt there are other gentlemen adventurers only too ready to take service on such an errand."

Lord Burleigh nodded. "I expected as much. This, then, I wish to add: Your natural inclination, if you get hold of Jose, would be to give him short shrift, either from the yard-arm or from some conspicuous place on land, where a gallows could be erected or a branch of a tree made serviceable. However, there are men who, at certain times at any rate, are of more value alive than dead; this Jose happens to be one of them. If he is not either Spaniard or Portuguese, he is in the full confidence of the enemy, now threatening our shores. He has acted as a go-between for the Duke of Parma and the King of Spain, while he has also served his Holiness the Pope in some matters which could not well be transacted through the ordinary channels. I have the proofs of this under my hand." He went on, after a pause, speaking slowly and deliberately, "Jose will have the earliest information of the arrangements between the Marquis of Santa Cruz and the Duke of Parma. That information will be of the highest moment, and if we have the man, and can squeeze him, it should be in our possession."

"I understand, my lord," Stone replied, "and will do my utmost to secure the Captain and his secret."

"I will assist you to the utmost in my power," Sir Giles supplemented.

"Thank you; that is what I expected of you both." His face relaxed into a smile. "The Queen's anger," he said, "will pass, or be diverted in another direction, but the matter we have in hand will go till God gives us victory and peace."

Burleigh rose to his feet, and went over to the table by the window. He sat down in the chair which had been previously occupied by his Secretary, and wrote the order on the Treasury, which any banker or goldsmith in the city would gladly honour.

The silence which reigned in the room while the Lord Treasurer was penning the few necessary lines, and afterwards sanding them, was suddenly broken.

From the street outside the mansion came the roar of hundreds of voices. Burleigh stood up, with the paper in his hand; he was pondering, asking himself the meaning of what he heard. Then he crossed the room to a smaller window, looking out upon the street. He threw it up, and stood in the aperture, the cold wind and rain beating in on his face.

The crowd greeted him with a great shout. He beckoned to Stone.

"The citizens of London," he said, "are voicing their thanks to you for the safety of the Queen."

TINY RED SPOTS ALL OVER BODY.

28 Jarvie-street, E. Brunswick, Vic.—"When my little girl was 10 months old her skin became affected. Tiny red spots appeared all over the body, and in spite of various treatments, rapidly grew worse until the spots were nearly the size of a shilling. She was very cross and could not sleep of nights, and used to scratch herself until her little body bled. This continued for over two months, and we were at our wit's end what to do to ease her. This complaint puzzled my elderly relatives and friends, and my chemists recommended me one thing after another, without success.

"Some time ago I determined to give the Cuticura Remedies a trial. After two or three applications of the Cuticura Ointment I noticed the skin looked more soft and less inflamed, and at the end of three weeks the spots had completely disappeared, leaving the skin beautifully soft and clear, and I now can say she is completely cured—thanks to the wonderful Cuticura Remedies." (Signed) Mrs. E. Holmes, Oct. 3, 1912.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. T., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

NEW STEAMER.

A MODERN CARGO-CARRIER.

Particulars were received yesterday of the new steamer Koolonga, recently purchased by Messrs. M'Ilwraith, M'Eacharn, and Co. Proprietary, Ltd., for the interstate coal and cargo trade. The vessel ran her trials on February 20 last, when everything worked well, and a mean speed of 11 knots was obtained.

The Koolonga, which has been constructed to meet the requirements of the interstate cargo trade here, is a vessel of about 7000 tons. Her principal dimensions are:—Length, 380ft; breadth, 50ft 9in; and depth moulded, 28ft 6in. She is of the single-deck type, with poop, bridge, and forecastle. She has nine steam winches, and is fitted with electric light.

The Koolonga was built by the Sunderland Shipbuilding Company, Ltd., Sunderland, and left Cardiff for Australia on February 28 last.

ALLEGED ASSAULT.

The Newtown District Ambulance was summoned early yesterday morning to the scene of a disturbance at Belmont-street, Alexandria, where Arthur Kempton, 32, a dairy hand, alleged that he had been assaulted with brooms and sticks. His eyes were black, and he had received injuries to both shoulders, his jaw, and hip. The ambulance took him to the Royal Prince Alfred where he was admitted.

THE THIRD LINE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In Saturday's "Herald" you state that, in the event of war, 60 per cent. of Australia's 50,000 rifle club men would be "immediately allotted to military units, and put into the firing line." What a magnificent grab! The riflemen—because they know how to shoot—would be greatly appreciated then, no doubt, and they would respond to a man; but, suppose they were mobilised next week, how would the Defence Department be able to equip them? That's the rub—sans uniforms, and one Government rifle to every five men! It becomes tiresome reiterating the failure of the various Defence Ministers to make even a start in this direction. Promises, only promises, we have had galore. Could the percentage of rifles issued not be increased to, say, one to every three men this year, and then one to every two next year, and then later perhaps a commencement be made with giving a khaki uniform to the "physically fit?" "In times of peace prepare for war" does not apply to the rifle clubs apparently, although as Mr. W. H. Kelly, M.P., pointed out in the House of Representatives some time back, all the riflemen being sworn in as members of the defence forces are legally entitled to a uniform by the amended Defence Act. Of course, Mr. Kelly is a member of the Cabinet to-day, and conveniently forgets to push his point home as strenuously as he did when Mr. Fisher was in power. The excuse is the question of expense; but surely provision should be made for men who are badly wanted, not as reserves, mark you, but for the fighting line, "when the guns begin to shoot." If a paternal Government can find money to pay for boots for cadets, it should not further neglect the better equipment of those tens of thousands of our riflemen, the men who can shoot straight—proficiency largely attained and maintained at their own expense. What does Sir Ian Hamilton think about it? We wonder.

ECZEMA CURED.

Mrs. Horwitz, 75 Pitt-street, Redfern, Sydney, says:—"I sent for a pot of Doan's Ointment, and used it for Eczema on my little girl's forehead. The rash covered the brow completely, and it was round the eye as well. The itching was frightful, making her very fretful, and kept her from sleeping, which made it hard on all of us. I had tried several preparations previous to getting Doan's Ointment, but none of them gave more than passing relief. I am pleased to tell you that Doan's Ointment cured her completely. We have since used it on another little girl, with equally good results. Doan's Ointment is splendid, and I advise its use in all itching skin diseases. It gave instantaneous relief, and healed rapidly."

Ten years later Mrs. Horwitz states:—"My daughter is still right; she has been cured ten years now. The doctor who treated her said that the Eczema would return every winter, but he was wrong, as time has proved."

Doan's Ointment is sold by all chemists and storekeepers at 2/9 per pot, or will be posted on receipt of price by Foster-McClellan Co., 76 Pitt-street, Sydney.

But be sure you get DOAN'S.—Advt.

EXPERIENCE

is always the final and most complete test of the worth of any medicinal preparation. Those who know that a remedy has given them relief from troublesome and distressing disorders are always worth listening to. Their advice is generally worth following. There are many thousands of such people in the world to-day, in all walks of life, who have proved, over and over again, the splendid value of Beecham's Pills as a corrective and curative medicine. Their testimony is based upon knowledge and experience. They have subjected Beecham's Pills to possible—they have taken them! And the effects have been excellent. There has been a speedy disappearance of dyspeptic troubles, such as biliousness, headaches, flatulence, constipation, and uneasiness of the stomach and bowels. Sluggish organs have been roused into healthful activity—the blood has been purified—and the whole system strengthened and invigorated by the use of

OBJECTS OF THE PRESENT ISSUE.

The Objects of the present issue of Shares are:—
1. To extend the Manufacturing section of the Company's operations.
2. And to take advantage of the increasing volume of business offering.

Since the business was acquired by the Company, it has shown continued expansion, and the Directors consider that the present paid-up Capital would be inadequate to enable them to deal satisfactorily with the growing turnover. They have, therefore, decided to make a new issue of 23,874 shares of £1 each, thus bringing the total paid-up Capital to £100,000.

CONCORD PROPERTY.

The valuable freehold, comprising 12 acres of land at Concord, secured by the Company, has a frontage of 1700 feet to the Great Northern Railway Line.

On this land the Company has erected extensive workshops, and made ample provision for the production of agricultural implements and other products necessary for the business. The factory is equipped with electrical power and modern appliances. The property, which has its own railway siding, is distant 8½ miles from Sydney.

The purchase of this property, together with the increased manufacturing facilities which it offers, has proved advantageous beyond the Directors' anticipations. The Company has succeeded in securing a special and extensive demand for the goods of its own manufacture, and with so much business offering, the Directors find they can only take full advantage of the position by increasing the paid-up Capital, as now proposed.

COUNTRY DEPOTS AND AGENCIES.

Branches of the business are established at:—
Coolamon, Cowra, Culcairn, Dunedoo, Forbes, Gilgandra, Grenfell, Gunnedah, Inverell, Junee, Lismore, Manilla, Narromine, Parkes, Tamworth, Temora, Wagga, Wellington, Young.

There are also established 140 distributing and general agencies of the Company throughout the States.

INCREASING TURNOVER.

Each successive half-year shows an increased turnover as compared with the corresponding period of the previous year. For the half-year ended 31st December last, the increase of sales was 8.3 per cent. over the half-year ended 31st December, 1912.

PROFIT.

The net profits for the last four financial years of the business have been as follows:—

Year ended 30th June, 1910	......	£3,906
Year ended 30th June, 1911	......	8,508
Year ended 30th June, 1912	......	10,296

DIVIDENDS AND RESERVES.

A regular dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum has been paid to shareholders since the formation of the Company, in addition to which substantial reserves have been created, and liberal provision otherwise made out of the profits.

Goodwill account, which originally stood at £8000, has now been written down to £5000.

General reserve account stands at £7000, and the interest reserve account at £6831.

The Directors have every confidence in submitting the present proposal as a thoroughly sound investment.

BALANCE SHEET.

Balance Sheet, showing the position of the Company can be inspected at the office of the auditors, 16 O'Connell-street, or at the registered office of the Company, 651A George-street, Haymarket.

Application for Shares should be made on the accompanying form, and may be sent direct to any member of the Sydney Stock Exchange, or to the Secretary of the Company, at 651A George-street, Haymarket. The terms of payment for shares will be 5/ per share on application, 5/ per share on allotment, 5/ per share three months after allotment, 5/ per share six months after allotment, or, where the applicant so desires, payment may be made in full at time of allotment. Dividends will accrue to members in proportion to the amounts paid upon the shares held by them respectively, and the portion of the year during which such Capital has been paid up.

The Directors reserve the right to refuse any application.

THOMAS F. THOMPSON, Chairman of Directors.
JAMES EVANS, Secretary.

EARTH TIDES.

RELATION TO EARTHQUAKES.

PROFESSOR DAVID'S VIEWS.

Professor David had some interesting statements to make yesterday in regard to the cable in yesterday's issue relating to the announcement of Professor Michelson, of the University of Chicago, as to the rigidity of the earth, its probable solid state, and the actual amount of undulation set up in the earth's crust by the tidal pull of the sun and moon.

"All this information," said Professor David, "is not new to science, excepting as to the amount of earth tide, which Professor Michelson claims to have determined. Presumably, his methods would be similar to those which the Rev. E. F. Pigot, of Riverview, is using to investigate movements of the earth's crust. For many years past the general objection to the theory that the earth consists of a solid crust enclosing a solid nucleus, has been that the earth's crust does not rise and fall under the tidal pull of the sun and moon to anything like the same extent as the water of the ocean. The amount to which the earth's crust is now stated to yield under tidal pull, i.e., one foot, appears to me to be rather in excess of what the physicists previously supposed."

"What is the exact importance of this discovery?" the Professor was asked.

"Well," he replied, "while its interest is chiefly one of a purely scientific nature, it is quite probable that it will be found to have some economic bearing as well. For instance, in regions such as Japan, the West Indies, Caracas, and so on, which are frequently shaken by earthquakes, it may be the case that, when the exact time of arrival of the earth-tide waves is known, insomuch as these may supply just the right amount of liberating force to start the development of a great earthquake crack, it may be possible to issue earthquake forecasts. Naturally it will be a long time before this is possible, but there can be little doubt that the time will come."

Professor David further declared that the result of Professor Michelson's observations, showing that the interior of the earth was not in a fiery state, was quite in accord with previous observations and present beliefs. "Most substances," he explained, "occupy more space when in a liquid than when in a solid form; a rule to which water is one of the most noted exceptions. Quartz, felspar, and all the minerals of which the earth's crust is built conform to this rule. If pressure be applied to them it tends to prevent the molecules from spreading further apart, and so transforming the solid into a liquid. So, with this force of compression fighting against the tendency to liquefaction which comes with the increase of heat due to the pressure, it is necessary to raise the temperature of any substance in the earth's crust, thus compressed, considerably above the temperature at which liquefaction occurs at the earth's surface before it will liquefy at a depth. The tendency of pressure to prevent liquefaction is more powerful than its tendency to cause liquefaction by a rise in temperature. Therefore it is clear that the materials of the earth at some depth below the surface must be either in a solid state, or—and this seems improbable—composed of liquids or gases so intensely compressed as to behave as solids. Otherwise the earth-tide would obviously be much greater even than Professor Michelson claims.

"It may be mentioned," added the Professor, "that this question of the movements of the earth's crust and its probable constitution will be specially discussed by Sir Thomas Holland, president of the geologists' section of the British Association, in his presidential address, to be delivered in Sydney next August. The general opinion of scientists at present in regard to the structure of the earth's interior is that it is like an egg, consisting of an outer crust or shell, a thick white and a rather small yoke."

EXHIBITION SCHEME.

MR. ARTHUR RICKARD'S PROJECT.

OFFER TO THE COMMONWEALTH.

The question of the part the States should play, if any, in the scheme promoted by Mr. Arthur Rickard, president of the Millions Club, for the holding of an Australian exhibition in London in 1916, is one of the matters that will come up for discussion at the Premiers' Conference.

Mr. Rickard has, it is stated, offered to turn over in its entirety the scheme prepared by him, with the assistance of Mr. Albert Goldie, who has just returned from London, where he was sent to make the preliminary arrangements. Mr. Rickard asks for no return for the expense involved in undertaking the preparations, and is willing that the Federal Government should accept or reject just as much as they like of it. He has obtained an option over Earl's Court for 1916 on a percentage rental and an underwriting contract, by means of which Lloyd's will, if the Government controls the undertaking, insure 80 per cent. of the gross expenditure. The usual rental of Earl's Court for an entire season, including all concessions, sideshows, and privileges, is said to be £50,000, but Mr. Rickard says that after long negotiations his representative was able to arrange for rental on a percentage basis, amounting to approximately one-third of the gross takings. In addition to the percentage rental, the sum of £125,000 would be required to carry out the entire project. Mr. Rickard claims that by means of the underwriting arrangement he has made Australia can produce an exhibition in London worth about £200,000 at a total risk of £25,000. Then, he points out, the fact must be taken into consideration that the estimates provide for the expenditure of £18,000 upon newspaper and other advertising in England and the Continent, which is practically money spent on directly advertising Australia. "So you will see," he urges, "that the actual amount which the Government are asked to risk upon the exhibition itself is only £7000."

"This somewhat unique position," Mr. Rickard proceeds, "is due almost entirely to the fact that Mr. Goldie, with expert assistance, succeeded in producing a scheme which gives every promise of being profitable. From the various expert reports which I have received it appears that the London experience of exhibitions is that those grounded upon Government control and having a definite national purpose can command all the support essential to success. It is for this reason, therefore, that I am so anxious for the Government to take charge of the undertaking. But even more important than this factor is that of designing an exhibition which will attract the general public and be regarded as the event of the London season. This was the case with the Franco-British Exhibition, which was a great financial success; the Greater Britain Exhibition, which actually earned gross profits amounting to nearly £85,000; the Italian, Austrian, Japanese, and other national exhibitions. The prospectus compiled by Mr. Goldie after eight months' work in London embodies a comprehensive spectacular display of Australian life, industry, scenery, and conditions, such as, in the opinion of experts, cannot fail to attract the public. It is proposed, for instance, that, instead of exhibiting products in bales, bottles, and glass cases, making of the exhibition nothing more than a glorified grocer's shop, they should be displayed in atmospheric settings, showing the conditions under which they were produced. Thus, it is intended that all the buildings should be converted into representations of actual scenes taken from the field of Australian industry.

"The advantages to be derived by Australia by such an exhibition are more than appear at first sight. Not only must it do an immense amount of good in the direction of encouraging immigration and fostering Australia's trade with the older world, but it will be a great educational campaign, which must remove for ever from the minds of English people the erroneous impressions which exist regarding Australia. It will serve as an excuse to our publicity department in London to flood the English and Continental press with articles regarding Australia which would not otherwise secure publication. It is also likely to lead to delegations of business men being formed in Europe to visit London to investigate our resources with a view to increased trade with this country."

THE ROCKCHOPPERS.

WORK PARTIALLY RESUMED.

The decision of the Rockchoppers and Sewer Miners' Union that work on different contracts should be resumed yesterday morning was given effect to, only, however, at some places. According to the union secretary, Mr. J. Eversleigh, there was no intention of disregarding the mandate of the union, the non-starting, here and there, being due to the swamping of the trenches which were exposed to the recent rainstorm. He expected, therefore, as matters stood, that the promise of a wholesale resumption would be a sufficient guarantee for the chairman of the Wages Board, Mr. T. H. Jackson, to agree to bear the union's application, and thus remove the cause of discontent.

EDUCATION.

INTERNATIONAL PEDAGOGICAL PRESS.

An exhibition of the International Pedagogical Press will be opened this year as a part of the international exhibition of the book industry at Leipzig. The catalogue of the German pedagogical press is nearly finished. It is stated that the exhibition will be an event of great importance, both interesting and instructive. The first group will show how the pedagogical press has developed in the different countries; another group will treat of the theories of education, and of teaching. Another group will show the history of the pedagogical press, which will be explained by rare first issues or by numbers containing important essays and speeches of famous leaders in the pedagogical world which have had a decisive influence upon the formation of education ideas. Statistical tables and diagrams will complete the exhibition. Those interested in the work are asked by the organisers of the movement to send specimens or other materials, especially titles of all kinds of education papers. The committee has appointed Mr. Max Dorring organiser.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS.

A report has just been issued showing that the number of Rhodes scholars in residence at Oxford last year was 175, of whom 73 were from the colonies, 88 from the United States, and 14 from Germany. There were also in residence six ex-Rhodes scholars (five colonial and one American) engaged either in teaching, reading for examinations, or research work. One ex-scholar held a fellowship and tutorship in an Oxford college. During the academic year 76 scholars completed the period of their scholarships. At the beginning of the October term, 74 newly-elected scholars (colonial, American, and German) went into residence. The 175 scholars in residence were distributed among the colleges as follows:—Exeter, 15; Balliol, New College, and St. John's, 13 each; Christ Church, Merton, and Trinity, 11 each; Oriel and Queen's, 10 each; Hertford and Lincoln, nine each; Pembroke, Wadham, and Worcester, eight each; Brasenose and University, seven each; Corpus Christi, Jesus, and Magdalen, four each. The next election of scholars for the dominions and colonies of the Empire will take place towards the end of this year. For those colonies where qualification is not obtained through the affiliation of the local universities with the University of Oxford, the next qualifying examination will be held in October, 1914. The next qualifying examination for the United States scholarships will be held early in October, 1915, and the elections will be completed before the end of that year.

THE NIGHT SCHOOLS.

The Inspector of Continuation Schools, referring to what has recently been done in England, Scotland, Germany, the United States, and Canada, in the establishment of trade schools, states that to Queensland belongs the credit of passing the first Australian Compulsory School Attendance Act. "Is New South Wales ready not merely to adopt such a law, but also to enforce it?" he asks.

Mr. Smith states that little difficulty was found in securing sufficient teachers, except for the teaching of science, in the local schools. The inspector refers, however, to the physical strain upon day school teachers who also teach in the evening schools, and expresses the hope that as the number of schools increases, it will be practicable to arrange that teachers who have charge of evening classes shall be relieved of teaching duty for half of the day. During last year the syllabus of instruction was amended in the light of past experience. The course planned, though extensive, is not impossible of attainment when attendance is regular. A third year class for advanced pupils has been established at Petersham. The inspector also referred to the reduction this year in the school term from 40 weeks to 33 weeks, thus escaping the hot months, and he expresses the hope that many boys and girls who hesitated about taking a 40 weeks' course will feel disposed to take the shorter one. Out of 178 candidates who sat for the evening continuation school certificate, 99 passed. In 1912 only 63 passed out of 170. The employers of the successful candidates were notified, and assured that they could accept the certificate "with confidence as properly safeguarded testimonials of moral and intellectual worth."

SUCCESSFUL STUDENTS.

In the honours list for mathematics at the recent Sydney University examinations, two names in friendly rivalry appear again in the result. In 1911 Mr. J. F. Harrison, of Newington College, won the Barker II. scholarship for mathematics, and the Horner exhibition, from Mr. H. V. Evatt, of Fort-street. Last year the two undergraduates divided the George Allen scholarship, and this year they join at the Barker I. scholarship, and the Norbert Quirk prize. The future of these two mathematicians will be watched with interest. Mr. Harrison is the eldest son of the Rev. J. Ward Harrison, of the Rozelle Methodist Mission.

FOR BISLEY.

AUSTRALIAN TEAM SELECTED.

SAILS ON MAY 2.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. J. Paine, hon. secretary of the Commonwealth Council of Rifle Associations of Australia, states that the Australian rifle team has now been finally selected, and approved of by the executive committee of the Commonwealth council. The method adopted was to allow each State to nominate representatives in the proportion laid down, namely: New South Wales and Victoria, 3 each; Queensland and South Australia, 2 each; and Western Australia and Tasmania, 1 each.

A little difficulty arose in Queensland, where there are two State rifle associations claiming equal rights, namely, the Northern, with headquarters at Charters Towers, and the Southern, with headquarters at Brisbane, while every other State has one State association only. An opportunity was given these two Queensland associations of acting in conjunction in securing for Queensland the best representation, but they could not agree, and endeavoured to make nominations separately. The executive committee of the Commonwealth council thereupon stepped in, and has decided that A. L. Halliday and C. Bagley shall be the Queensland representatives of the team.

The complete personnel of the team is as follows.—
Commandant, Lieut.-Colonel G. E. Merrett, V.D. (Victoria).
Shooting captain, Mr. Andrew Ferguson (Queensland).
New South Wales: F. G. Harrison, D. L. M'Alister, and A. W. Parsons.
Victoria: R. W. Alston, Lieut. S. A. Long, and C. Cross.
Queensland: A. L. Halliday and C. Bagley.
South Australia: P. Timmens and T. J. Meers.
Western Australia: H. Trenberth.
Tasmania: L. E. Hubbard.
The team will sail by the P. and O. Company's R.M.S. Mooltan, which leaves Sydney on May 2.

CHILDREN HATE CASTOR OIL AND PILLS.

"CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS" BEST FOR TENDER STOMACH, LIVER, BOWELS—TASTES DELICIOUS.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil or pills. How you hated them! How you fought against taking them!

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realise what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by drastic purgatives.

If your child's stomach, liver, and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know that children love to take it; and that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach. A teaspoonful given to-day saves a child from a bilious attack to-morrow.

Ask your chemist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." "California Syrup of Figs" is sold by all chemists, 1/1½ and 1/9. Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Advt.

A Mother's Grateful Testimony

"My daughter from her infancy was continually troubled with colds, followed by severe coughing. Hearing of the excellent results of Lane's Emulsion I decided to give it a trial. I did so continuously for four months, and now, I am glad to say, she is a fine healthy girl. That she is so well and healthy, I am sure, is owing to the benefit she derived from Lane's Emulsion."

Gratefully yours,

Mrs. D. SMITH, Kakanui, Otago, N.Z.

Take Lane's Emulsion

The Great Remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough and all cases of General Debility and Wasting Diseases.

Lane's Emulsion is a great improvement upon other remedies for the same troubles. It is free from harmful drugs and mineral poisons; its effects are always for the good and never to the detriment of the health; it is decidedly pleasant to take; gives immediate relief, and if faithfully used will assuredly cure.

And there is this to remember of Lane's Emulsion. It is not untried, and though not very well known in Australia it has the endorsement of the residents of New Zealand, having been made and used in the Dominion for over 20 years with unvarying success. It is prepared under the personal supervision of Mr. E. G. Lane, a Graduate Chemist of Oamaru, N.Z., and is always of the same high quality and reliability. Do not be deceived in this. When you are offered something else in place of Lane's, be firm and refuse to accept it. "Just-as-Goods" are only experiments that perhaps give the trader more profit, but at the same time may endanger your health. It's experience against experiments—get LANE'S EMULSION.

There is no better remedy for weak lungs, sore throat, weak nerves and generally for run-down men and women. It is composed of a perfect combination of Norwegian Cod Liver Oil, Beechwood Creasote and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda skilfully emulsified by the addition of fresh eggs.

Get a bottle of Lane's Emulsion to-day and observe how your appetite will improve, your lungs and throat be strengthened, your nerves be steadied, your weight increase and life made brighter and more enjoyable.

Your chemist or storekeeper will supply you with it at 2/6 and 4/6 per bottle. The larger bottle is the most economical as it contains more than two of the small ones. Prepared by E. G. LANE, Chemist, Oamaru, N.Z. Of this be certain—there is nothing "just-as-good" as Lane's Emulsion. Do not accept a substitute.

If you experience difficulty in securing a supply write to E. G. LANE, Box 864 G.P.O., Sydney, and we will see that you are supplied.

CAPTAIN'S LIBEL SUIT.

CLAIM FOR £5000.

Maurice Festu, master mariner, sued the British Dominions General Insurance Company, Limited, for £5000 damages for alleged libel, contained in letters written to the plaintiff's former employers, which, it was contended, meant that the plaintiff was negligent, and had exposed his ship to risks, specially excepted from the insurance policy on the vessel, whereby the employment of the plaintiff was prevented. The defendant pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Bavin, instructed by Messrs. Sullivan Bros., appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Blacket, K.C., and Mr. Broomfield, instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co., for the defendant company.

In stating the plaintiff's case, Mr. Campbell remarked that the circumstances were peculiar. The plaintiff had been a master mariner in various services in Australia for the last 20 years, and in 1912 was chief officer of the Federal trawler, Endeavour. In the same year he joined the steamer Upolu, owned by the Brisbane Milling Company, as third officer, and shortly afterwards became master of the vessel. At the end of the year the Upolu was chartered by the Federal Government to replace the Merrie England, which had been wrecked, and the Government appointed the captain of the Merrie England (Captain Tornoras) in command, the plaintiff remaining as first officer, and representing the owners. While the Upolu was engaged around New Guinea, she towed the schooner Zelma, which had a cargo of machinery on board, and which had been cast off and taken charge of by a tug-boat at Vailala to cross the bar. The tug, having returned with a report that the Zelma was on the rocks, and in danger, Captain Festu was asked by Lieutenant-Governor Murray, who was on board, to investigate, which he did. He salvaged a portion of the machinery, and after the Upolu had returned to Port Moresby she made a voyage with the plaintiff in command, Captain Tornoras being ill. Subsequently the vessel visited Cloudy Bay, where the Mindoro was ashore, but was never within less than a mile of the latter, though they picked up the crew and the passengers. Afterwards the Upolu returned to Sydney under Captain Tornoras, and was handed over at the expiration of her charter on April 23, 1913. On arrival at Brisbane the plaintiff was informed of a paragraph in one of the newspapers, and then learnt that certain action was said to have been taken with regard to the Mindoro, which was not permitted under the terms of the charter. The plaintiff explained that they had never been near the Mindoro, and that the whole thing was a fabrication. Up to that time nothing had been said about the Zelma. On May 10 the ship was paid off awaiting re-engagement, and the plaintiff stayed in Sydney expecting to be engaged when the vessel was rechartered. He was not re-engaged, however, and when he wrote to the owners, they referred him to the agents of the defendant insurance company, by whom he was informed that the company had "turned him down." On demanding an explanation he was told that he had made a claim for salvage respecting the Zelma, and he afterwards ascertained that a letter had been written by the defendant company's agent stating that the captain who took the vessel into New Guinea waters had absented himself, when at New Guinea, without leaving anyone in charge competent to accept such responsibility, and that if this was the case they would prefer another master for the proposed voyage. This reference was apparently to the Zelma incident, though the plaintiff was not in charge of the vessel at the time, and the vessel was never in danger. A further letter said the acting-master (meaning the defendant), with a portion of the vessel's crew, left her anchored in an open roadstead and rendered salvage service to the Zelma, which was ashore, it being pointed out that the policy issued on the hull and machinery of the Upolu prohibited such service, but as the owners had no intention of breaking the conditions, the policy should remain in force. The company's attitude, Mr. Campbell pointed out, as to the reinsurance of a vessel in which the plaintiff was employed, was one that touched not only the plaintiff's interests, but those of every seafaring man who might be similarly placed. The company had refused to remove its objection to the plaintiff, who had suffered severely in consequence.

The case is part heard.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury of four.)

HANNON v LANGLEY.

Mr. Monahan, instructed by Mr. G. Crichton Smith, appeared for James Michael Hannon in support of a claim against Frank Deane Langley, licensed plumber and contractor, Glebe, for £48, alleged to be due for goods sold and delivered. The defendant, who was represented by Mr. J. J. Cohen, instructed by Mr. B. Keith Cohen, paid £8 into court in satisfaction of the claim, and disputed the balance. The case for the plaintiff, a manufacturing engineer, carrying on business in Pitt-street, was that the defendant had undertaken to purchase a dozen electric fans for £48, taking delivery as he required them. Two promissory-notes given for the amount had been dishonoured. Ten of the fans had not yet been delivered, but the plaintiff pleaded that he had always been willing and ready to deliver them, but had not been asked to do so. The defence was that the promissory-notes were given to secure delivery of the whole order. As only two fans had been delivered when the first note fell due, the defendant dishonoured it. Another note, given subsequently, was dishonoured for the same reason. The money paid into court was for the two fans delivered.

The jury found for the plaintiff for the amount claimed.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson and a jury of 4.)

ACCOUNTANT'S CLAIM.

Leslie Byron Morres, public accountant, of Melbourne and Sydney, claimed £100 from the Papuan Rubber and Trading Company, Ltd., for wrongful dismissal.

Dr. Brissenden (instructed by Messrs. Windeyer and Williams) appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Mocatta and Mr. H. G. Edwards (instructed by Messrs. C. A. Coghlan and Co.) for the defendant company.

Dr. Brissenden, in opening the case said Morres was an accountant who had been practising on his own account for 17 years, and 28 years in all. He was a Fellow of the Corporation of Public Accountants, an inspector of public accounts appointed by the Government of Victoria, and a registered trustee under the Insolvency Act. In 1912, Morres, as the outcome of business with Sir Henry Weedon and Mr. J. G. Aikman, M.L.C., was asked to accept the secretaryship of the Papuan Rubber Company. At the time, counsel added, the company was in difficulties, and plaintiff made a special audit of their accounts. Plaintiff was asked to become secretary of the company, and the terms he offered the company were that he should be engaged for five years at £156 a year, or at £204 a year with no guarantee as to term. A further provision required by plaintiff was that if his agreement were terminated at the end of 12 months he should be paid a sum of £100. Although nothing was expressly written, the company, added counsel, accepted the offer of £156 a year, and while with the company plaintiff received £3 a week as salary. He performed the duties of secretary from May, 1912, to December, 1912. While occupying the position he was travelling from Melbourne to Sydney every seven or eight days. On December 21 a letter was written to Morres, informing him of a resolution passed on the previous day by the board to the effect that he would in future have to attend the Sydney office every day. Morres replied, pointing out that under his contract such attendance at the Sydney office was not provided for. He was then dismissed. In reply to a letter from Mr. Windeyer, on January 16, Mr. Coghlan stated that the action taken was on the authority of the company's board.

Plaintiff corroborated counsel's statement.

The company, in defence, deny that they agreed as alleged, and pleaded that plaintiff had disobeyed reasonable orders. They paid into court £8 6s 8d.

The case stands part heard.

INJURED HORSES.

FULL CLAIM GRANTED.

Messrs. Sutton and Co., Ltd., were awarded £401, the amount they claimed, against the Commonwealth for injuries sustained by horses which they loaned to the Government for the purposes of the "Kitchener" camp at Liverpool, in 1910, and other camps at Heathcote and Liverpool.

A number of horses were injured, and one died, and plaintiffs contended that these happenings were the result of negligence on the part of the officers and men placed in charge of the animals.

His Honor, at the close of his summing up, asked the jury to answer a number of questions. The jury found that the death of the horse was due to the neglect of the officers or men in the Commonwealth service, and awarded the plaintiffs £40 damages.

The injuries sustained by the other horses were also due to neglect. They awarded plaintiffs the sum of £361. The jury further found the contractors, or their men, did report the injuries complained of, when taking delivery of the horses, to the officer commanding, or his representatives. Defendants afterwards acted so as to lead plaintiffs to believe that this condition would not be enforced, and to act on this supposition.

Mr. Gannon, K.C., and Mr. Armstrong (instructed by Mr. R. W. Lenehan), appeared for plaintiffs; and Mr. Flannery (instructed by the Crown Solicitor) for defendants.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

AN INFANT'S CLAIM.

Sproule v Quested and others.

In this matter his Honor ordered the costs of the originating summons for the construction of the will of the late Timothy Cunningham, licensed victualler, of the Glebe, to be paid out of the estate; and the costs of the issue as to whether Hamilton John Cunningham Sproule, an infant, was the lawful issue of Harriett Sproule, to be paid by the defendants, Sophia Quested and Alfred Horan Cunningham.

WILL OF THOS. CONWAY, DECEASED.

EXECUTORS ASK FOR DIRECTIONS.

The hearing was continued of the originating summons instituted by Patrick Sheahan, produce merchant, and Matthew Collins, contractor (both of Marrickville), executors and trustees of the will of the late Thomas Conway, of Sans Souci, for the determination of certain questions arising out of the will of the deceased.

Mr. S. A. Thompson, instructed by Mr. F. R. Cowper, appeared for plaintiffs; Mr. Wickham, instructed by Mr. F. R. Cowper, for the defendants, Thomas Patrick Conway and Martin John Conway, of Sans Souci, sons of the deceased; Mr. Bethune, instructed by Mr. F. R. Cowper, for the defendant Ellen Pearl Conway, wife of Thomas Patrick Conway, and their children; and Mr. P. H. Rogers, instructed by Mr. Everard Digby, for the other defendants, Patrick, John, and James Conway (brothers of the testator), and Susan Kelly (sister of testator), of County Clare, Ireland.

The questions the Court was asked, among others, to determine were:—Whether the expression "all my properties wherever situated" applied only to testator's real estate? and whether the expression "any cash which I may be possessed of at my death in my house, or on my person, or in my bank" included testator's share of the moneys in the Savings Bank, forming part of the estate of his wife, who had died intestate.

His Honor held that the expression, "all my properties wherever situated" included testator's real and personal estate. As to the expression, "any cash, etc.," his Honor held that as £200 of the £299 cash was held by testator as trustee of his wife's estate that would not pass under the gift to the Irish legatees. The word "cash," said his Honor, as used by testator, must be taken to include only money that he could faithfully dispose of.

His Honor granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

CLARK v CLARK.

There was no appearance for petitioner in the case of Sydney Price Clark, who sought a divorce from Nellie Clark (formerly Kilbride) on the ground of her misconduct with D. McFaul, who was joined as co-respondent. Co-respondent, for whom Mr. Boyce appeared, was dismissed from the suit. Respondent, for whom Mr. James appeared, brought a counter charge against petitioner on the ground of misconduct.

His Honor granted respondent a decree nisi, returnable in six months. The husband's petition was dismissed.

CLARKE v CLARKE.

On the ground of her misconduct with Murdock S. Armstrong, who was joined as co-respondent, George Clarke, hotelkeeper, of Melrose, Condobolin, applied for a divorce from Bertha Maud Clarke (formerly West).

His Honor granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

PROBATE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

DISPUTED WILL.

JUDGMENT IN THE WAUGH CASE.

His Honor delivered judgment in the case in which Joshua Richardson Waugh and George Waugh, executors of the will of William Waugh, late of St. Peters, near Sydney, moved for probate. Annie Burrows, a married daughter of the deceased, had lodged a caveat against the granting of probate, contending that the will was not that of a free and capable testator, and was obtained by undue influence.

His Honor said the late William Waugh had died on May 23, 1913, at the age of 67, leaving an estate valued at between £600 and £700. His nearest relatives at the time of his death were his daughter, Mrs. Burrows, and his granddaughter, the child of a deceased daughter, but by his will, made on December 12, 1912, he left the whole of his property to his brothers, George and Joshua Waugh. The validity of the disposition was disputed by Mrs. Burrows on the ground that the testator was not of testamentary capacity, and that the execution of the will was attributable to undue influence on the part of the two brothers, to whom the property was left, and their sister, Mrs. Hamilton. His Honor said that abundant proof had been afforded of the testator's capacity to manage his own affairs, and held that there was no justification for the allegation of undue influence. The attack on the will failed, and the document would be admitted to probate as asked. Dealing with the question of costs, His Honor said he thought Mrs. Burrows had been led into the attack on the will more by resentment at her exclusion from it than by a bona-fide belief in her father's mental incapacity. She would have to pay her own costs; the costs of the plaintiffs to come out of the estate.

Mr. James, instructed by Mr. P. C. Law, appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. J. A. Ferguson, instructed by Messrs. Weaver and Allworth, for the defendant, Mrs. Burrows.

INDUSTRIAL MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

(Before Mr. G. C. Addison, Chief Industrial Magistrate.)

AN EMPLOYEE FINED.

William Hanna, an employee, was charged with a breach of the Iron and Shipbuilding Trades Group, No. 10 Board, Award, in leaving his employ as a floorman farrier with Edward Hanna on January 24, without giving one week's notice as prescribed by the award. There was no appearance of the defendant, and the case was heard ex parte, an order being made against defendant for £1 10s, with £1 14s costs.

A UNION CASE.

Charles Thompson, secretary of the Master Brick Carters' Association, proceeded against J. D. Saul, 83 Buckland-street, Alexandria, for the recovery of £2 17s 6d, alleged to be due to the association. The particulars set out that the amount was made up by the defendant having five horses at 3d per horse per week for 46 weeks. The defendant failed to appear when the case was called. The evidence of the complainant was taken, and an order made against defendant for £2 17s 6d, with 4s costs.

AN APPRENTICESHIP MATTER.

B. Hession, of 367A Pitt-street, was proceeded against by the secretary of the Federated Furnishing Trades Society of Australasia, New South Wales Branch, No. 1, on a charge of a breach of the Furniture Trades Board Award, in failing to pay an employee the minimum rate prescribed.

A plea of guilty was entered. It was stated that the employee was apprenticed, and received wages at the rate prescribed by the old award. There was a difference of 5s between that and the new award rate. Back money to the extent of £8 10s had been paid by defendant.

An order was made against defendant for £3, with 14s costs.

NEWCASTLE CASES.

George Gregory, of Hunter-street, Newcastle, an industrial inspector, proceeded, at Newcastle, on Thursday, against the Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Company, Limited, on a charge of a breach of the Act in failing to exhibit a copy of the award. A penalty of 10s, with 6s costs, was imposed.

The same defendants were charged with a breach of the Shipping (Newcastle) Board Award, in failing to pay a deckhand the prescribed overtime rate for time worked between 5.30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

It was stated that the employee worked from 6.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m., and was then knocked off till 8 p.m., from which hour he came on till 11 p.m. The steamer was under way.

Mr. O'Sullivan, for the defence, contended that the defendant was not liable to pay the employee in respect of the hours mentioned, as the employee was not working.

An order was made against the defendant company for £2, with £1 8s costs.

There was a third case against the same defendant, the charge being of failing to pay a deckhand the prescribed overtime rate for time worked between 5.30 p.m. and 7 p.m. The evidence for the prosecution was to the effect that the employee worked from 6.30 a.m. till 5.30 p.m., was knocked off, and, as the time-sheets showed, worked again from 7 p.m. till 10.30 p.m. The vessel was under way between 5.30 and 7 p.m.

Mr. O'Sullivan made a similar submission to that in the previous case.

An order was made against defendant for £2, with £2 10s costs.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

(Before Sir William Cullen, Chief Justice, and a jury.)

Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

PORT KEMBLA MANSLAUGHTER CASE.

GREENAWAY ACQUITTED.

George Greenaway, an elderly man, pleaded not guilty to a charge of having feloniously slain Herbert Alfred Dominick M'Cauley at Port Kembla on February 16.

Mr. Hammond, instructed by Messrs. Russell and Son, Wollongong, appeared for the defence.

In opening the case for the prosecution Mr. Harris said that the Crown was satisfied that the accused shot M'Cauley while under the influence of fear, and, although it was of the opinion that it was a case of justifiable homicide, yet it thought that it should go before a jury.

Charles Oswald Cook, a labourer employed at Port Kembla, said that he lived in a hut next door to Greenaway's, and on the night of February 14 he (witness) and some friends, including M'Cauley, were at his place drinking. Late in the evening they parted, and when witness went outside he heard some stones thrown on the tin roof of the accused's hut. Greenaway had often been annoyed by having things thrown on his roof. Shortly afterwards witness heard two shots fired, and then saw M'Cauley fall. Cross-examined by Mr. Hammond, the witness said that he had never fired his revolver close to the accused's hut, although he had fired it 100 yards away about three months ago. He saw no one striking the sides of Greenaway's house.

Stanley Cook said that he lived with his brother (the previous witness), and when he went outside he heard stones thrown on the accused's hut, and saw him walk round it in an endeavour to find out where the missiles came from. He (accused) then walked away, and shortly afterwards, on hearing some shots, he proceeded to the spot, and saw his brother and others assisting M'Cauley.

David Collins said that when Greenaway left his house after the stones were thrown he met witness, and told him that he was frightened, and intended to go for the police. "M'Cauley," said witness, "then rushed up and asked me where Greenaway was going. I replied, 'For the police.' M'Cauley then said that he would kill him if he went there. M'Cauley was a strong, healthy young man, and he ran after the accused, and on catching him they struggled for a few minutes, when Greenaway drew his revolver and fired two shots at M'Cauley, who fell wounded."

Arthur Hawke said that he had seen several men running round Greenaway's hut and battering at it.

A statement by M'Cauley, taken before his death, was read, in which he said that he did not molest Greenaway or threaten him.

Police evidence was given that the accused had previously complained about being molested and of stones being thrown on his roof. After the shooting the accused gave himself up.

At the conclusion of the Crown case Mr. Hammond asked his Honor if he could see his way clear to take the case away from the jury, but his Honor said that it would be better if a verdict were returned.

The jury, without leaving the box, returned a verdict of not guilty, and Greenaway was discharged.

After the jury had given its verdict his Honor said that it was very sad to think that so many men in the country could not find better employment when their work was done than drinking and making nuisances of themselves. The evidence showed that the accused was in danger of his life, and in circumstances under which anyone would have taken similar extreme measures to protect himself.

POSTPONED.

The hearing of the charge of having committed a serious offence preferred against Frederick William Sargent was postponed to such time and place as the Attorney-General may appoint. The postponement was asked for by the Crown owing to the illness of a material witness for the prosecution.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Murray.)

ATTEMPT TO STEAL.

Andrew Carlton M'Guire, who had been convicted on a charge of having attempted to steal from the person of Samuel Steel Marshall, at Sydney, on January 27, was sentenced to 12 months' hard labour in Goulburn Gaol. His Honor said that if at the end of two months the prisoner's conduct warranted it he would recommend his release on license.

"AN INGENIOUS SWINDLE."

Edwin Percy Liddle, who had been convicted on a charge of obtaining money by means of false pretences, at Sydney, on December 20, was called up for sentence. The prisoner, by representing in advertisements published throughout the Commonwealth, with the exception of New South Wales, that he would sell 10 yards of silk for 2s 6d, obtained a large number of postal-notes, money-orders, and stamps, but it was proved that he did not intend to carry out his part of the agreement.

Mr. Teece, who appeared for Liddle, asked that he be dealt with as a first offender, but his Honor said that he could not take that course, for it would bring the administration of the criminal law into contempt. He said that Liddle had carried out an ingenious, elaborate, and to a great extent successful swindle, and should be dealt with accordingly.

Liddle was sentenced to three years' penal servitude.

The prisoner started an advertising campaign on December 20, and it concluded on New Year's Day, over 20,000 replies, containing 2s 6d or more, being received. The police took possession of a large number of the letters, but they refused to accept 14,757 letters and registered packages, containing £2369 12s 6d. Of this number 5381, containing £672 12s 6d, were received from Queensland; from Victoria, 3579 (£447 7s 6d); from South Australia, 2345 (£290 12s 6d); from Western Australia, 1466 (£183 5s); from Tasmania, 1876 (£231 10s); from New South Wales, 225 (£28 2s 6d); and from New Zealand, 4185 (£523 2s 6d).

His Honor made an order that the postal-notes and money handed to the police should be returned to the senders.

HEARING OF APPEALS.

CONSTABLE'S CONVICTIONS SUSTAINED.

Frederick Matthew Brown appealed against two convictions by Mr. Love, S.M., at the Central Police Court, for assault, and the appeals, which were heard together, were dismissed, his Honor stating that he did not see, in the face of the evidence advanced at the lower Court, and also that given in the appeals, how he could possibly allow them. £4 5s costs were allowed in each case.

The first charge on which Brown, who was a first-class constable, attached to No. 3 police station, was convicted, arose out of the arrest of Joseph Johns on February 12, at the top of William-street. The appellant, who was with Constable Kerr, took Johns to the Cathedral-street Police Station, where he was charged with having used profane language. The next day Johns served a summons on Brown, charging him with assault at the time of the arrest. Johns alleged that he was sitting on the kerb in a lane off William-street after midnight, when Brown struck him on the face, and when he got up he was again knocked down. Johns said that Brown also struck him on the way to the station, and he was badly knocked about. He was supported in his evidence by a number of people who witnessed the occurrence, including Constable Kerr. Brown's defence was a denial of the assault. He said that Johns resisted, and he had to use sufficient force to overcome the resistance. Mr. Love fined Brown £8, with £7 19s costs, in default three months' imprisonment.

Denovan's case was that he saw the assault on Johns, and followed Brown and Johns to the police station. When outside the building Brown asked him what he was doing there, and he replied that he was going to complain about his (Brown's) treatment of Johns. Brown told him that the best thing that he could do would be to go away, and, according to Denovan, Brown grabbed him and took him to the station. When near the door, Brown struck him and knocked his head against the wall. He was then charged with using insulting words. A number of witnesses swore that they saw Brown commit the offence. Brown, on conviction, was fined £5, with £7 12s costs, in default six weeks' gaol.

At the appeals, Mr. P. K. White appeared for Brown, Mr. Tanner for Johns, and Mr. Frawley for Denovan.

MUSICIANS' DISPUTE SETTLED.

A conference was held at the Darlinghurst Courthouse in connection with the dispute between the Musicians' Union of Australia and representatives of the firm of Brennan's Amphitheatres, Limited.

Mr. Benjamin Fuller, a director of the firm, and Mr. Fawl, of Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., represented the company; and Mr. O'Brien, Mr. Davidson, and Mr. Huckerby represented the union.

After considerable discussion an agreement was arrived at satisfactory to both parties. As a result of this agreement it was announced that the musicians employed by the Brennan's Amphitheatres, Limited, in Melbourne, would resume work that night.

BEAUTY WRITERS.
BEST SELECTIONS FROM THE WORLD'S SMARTEST BEAUTY WRITERS—SIMPLE, UNIQUE, AND EFFECTIVE RECIPES.

THE KILLING OF SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.
"Boudoir Gossip."
It is easy to remove superfluous hair temporarily, but to remove it permanently is quite another matter. Not many women know that for this purpose such a simple substance as powdered pheminol may be used, applied directly to the hair. The recommended treatment is designed not merely to instantly remove the hair, but also to eventually kill the roots entirely. Almost any chemist could supply an ounce of pheminol, which quantity should be sufficient. . . . A simple way to quickly neutralise disagreeable body odours is to dust the armpits occasionally with powdered (white) pergol. . . . The use of the natural allacite of orange blossoms as a greaseless cream is becoming prevalent among the smartest women. It holds the powder perfectly, gives a delightful cool finish to the skin, and does not encourage the growth of hair.

"WAVY" SHAMPOOS.
"Homely Hints."
Few people know that stallax can be used as a shampoo, and is far better than anything else for the purpose. It seems to have a natural affinity for the hair, leaving it very glossy, fluffy, and with a pronounced "wave." A teaspoonful of stallax granules, dissolved in a cup of hot water, is more than sufficient. Genuine stallax comes to the chemist only in sealed tins, a quantity sufficient to make up twenty-five or thirty separate shampoos. The indescribable lustre it imparts to the hair is quite inimitable. . . . For an actual hair grower nothing equals pure boranium. It is quite harmless, and sets the hair roots tingling with new life. . . . The use of rouge is almost always obvious, but powdered colliandum gives a perfectly natural colour, and defies detection.

OXYGEN AS A COMPLEXION REMOVER.
"Things One Should Know."
The latest scientific method of improving the complexion is to "take from it instead of adding to it." The idea is to remove, by a gentle process of oxidisation, all the stifling and half-dead accumulations which adhere to the skin in the form of sallowness, moth patches, liver spots, etc. The application of mercolised wax for a few nights, in the same manner that cold cream is applied, soon produces marked results. In contact with the skin this wax releases free oxygen, which destroys the waste matter, but does not affect the healthy tissue in the least. The removal of the deadened and disfiguring waste matter reveals the beautiful young complexion which every woman has just underneath the stained outer one. The mercolised wax, as supplied by chemist shops, is perfectly harmless, and very beneficial to the skin. . . . To bring a natural red colour to the lips, rub them with a soft stick of prolactum. . . . For tired, hot, or perspiring feet use a teaspoonful of powdered onalite in a foot bath.

HOME-MADE BEAUTY.
"Cosy-Corner Chats."
The very simplest things are often the most effective in making a woman beautiful. For instance, few people know that a dull or greasy complexion can be instantly brought to a pretty, youthful, natural bloom merely by the application of ordinary cleminite dissolved in water. Moreover, the method cannot be detected even under the closest scrutiny. The result will last all day long, and requires no powdering, even under the most trying conditions indoors or out. If you have no cleminite in the house, get about an ounce from the chemist's, and add only enough water to dissolve it. Apply a little to the face. It is good for the skin, and immediately produces that cool, velvety, natural "bloom" so much desired. . . . To make the eyelashes grow long, dark, and curling, apply a little mennaline with the finger tips occasionally. It is absolutely harmless, and beautifies the eyebrows as well. . . . Pilenta soap is the most satisfactory for all complexions. It even works well in cold or hard water.

AUSTRALIAN WOOL.

Woolgrowers will read our Bradford correspondent's remarks concerning the dependence of American manufacturers upon Australian wool with appreciation. In his opinion it will be hopeless for Americans to attempt to compete with European manufacturers unless they use a large quantity of Australian wool, which has been a main factor in the production of the beautiful clothing material that has made Yorkshire manufacturers famous. With all their great skill and experience, the Yorkshiremen would not have been able to produce what they have had they not had the fine wool from this country to work upon. And Americans competing under new conditions with the British manufacturers will have to recognise this fact and secure the same wool. Of course they have always done so to a certain extent, for the Americans are good customers for our wool, but changed conditions will render it necessary that they should patronise us still more. This, of course, is a fine thing for our woolgrowers, and a fine thing for Australia. It emphasises once again how important our main primary industry is, and hence the necessity for every precaution being taken to maintain its standing. The trend of settlement threatens to encroach upon the output of our fine wool, as the squatter gives place to the farmer. But this can be remedied to a large extent indeed by the farmers giving more attention to the quality of the sheep they carry and the quality of wool produced. Moreover, the carrying capacity of the greater part of our sheep-country should be capable of considerable increase, if the State and private enterprise are more progressive. Our Western country is not yet fully utilised, has not yet obtained proper recognition by our politicians who shelved it, in the past, on to a commission, and appear ready to forget it. Water conservation and railway building are both factors in the development of the west. Both are subjects that have been talked about for a couple of generations, but little or nothing has been done. Land settlement could also be increased, and that, in turn, means more sheep and more wool. Similarly, in other and more settled parts of the State, it is certain that more sheep could be carried if more attention was given to subdivision of properties, provision and conservation of fodder to tide over dry spells, and, in places, better water provision. Cross-country railways now in course of construction, and, indeed, all railways in sheep country, will increase the carrying capacity, as, once transport means are available, should there be a dry spell, there is not the same danger in stocking heavily. Lack of railway facilities in the past has caused enormous loss amongst our sheep flocks. What with the demand for meat and wool that now exists, there would appear to be no industry with such favourable prospects facing it as sheep-breeding, and as no country in the world is better suited to raising sheep than this, we shall be foolish if we do not make the most of the opportunity.

AN UNKNOWN MOTH.

The news that a large consignment of peaches from New Zealand had been condemned at San Francisco because they were infested with an unknown moth will cause considerable misgiving amongst those interested. This is said to be the first consignment of fresh fruit forwarded to the United States, and the fact is that the above news did not come altogether as a surprise to those who have been keeping an eye on the attitude of the American authorities towards Australian and New Zealand fruit. It is felt that there is a determination to keep our fruit out of the American market, and, therefore, to put it bluntly, doubt is expressed as to whether there was any grub in the fruit referred to. Of course, any such position is a very serious matter, and points to the necessity of our commercial representative in San Francisco maintaining a constant vigilance in regard to exports from this country. His report on this matter will be awaited with considerable interest, for, although the fruit in this case came from New Zealand, the matter is one of first moment to growers here. It will also be interesting to have this "unknown moth" identified. Of course, in common fairness, it is only right to state that if any such moth was found, the authorities were fully justified in promptly condemning the consignment, as no fruit-growing country can afford to welcome unknown moths with all their possible evils. But the unfortunate fact remains that some authorities here feel sceptical concerning the existence of this moth. Considering the fine market Australia is for American fruit, it is regrettable that there should be a feeling that our growers cannot depend upon receiving fair reciprocal treatment when they export to that country.

AMERICAN MANUFACTURERS.

DEMAND AUSTRALIAN WOOL.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

BRADFORD, February 27.

Business is by no means an absent factor in Bradford this week, although naturally the same activity has not been witnessed as during the previous three weeks. No trade can always be at fever heat, but it can be said that an extensive turnover would have been seen but for the prohibitive prices now being named by topmakers and spinners. As recently as the first week in January, 64's tops were selling at 2s 3d, and to-day a good article is at 2s 6d, thus the reader will easily understand that with such a sharp rise, spinners are going to think twice before largely buying for future use. As a matter of fact, the majority have purchased all the tops they will require until next June around a basis of 2s 4d to 2s 4½d, the last 1½d per lb being largely dictated by the strong oversea selling centres, and the activity seen in the raw material in every market where it is being offered. The fact is, wool all along the line has dominated the situation. Bradford's views on future trade have been warped by the comparatively quiet conditions which have obtained in spinning and manufacturing circles, and even to-day trade is nothink like as active as West Riding business people have been used to seeing during the past few years. Let the reader only remember that Botany spinners have been so "chuff" as to demand three months' delivery for new contracts and often four months, whereas to-day, notwithstanding an improved demand, the majority can give delivery in a month. We are in a position to say that many Bradford Botany spinners to-day would be glad of "particulars" on contracts which they have on their books, and we know for a fact that one large crossbred spinner has only offered this week to sell single yarns at 6d per gross less if the buyer would take delivery out of stock. The greatest puzzle to spinners and manufacturers is that wool and tops should have advanced as they have when business conditions in Bradford and district show no push whatever.

PRICES STILL HARDENING.

The outstanding feature of the past week's business is the withdrawal on the part of many topmakers of their quotations. It is quite true that the volume of business done has fallen below recent weeks, but all the same sufficient is offering to produce more than a normal market. A good many topmakers are simply out of the market because they feel that they have sold enough. They know that if they had to come down ½d per lb, it would mean another volume of orders, which they would deliberately refuse to accept, simply because they know not what Coleman-street has in store. When good 64's are in the region of half a crown, it is quite sufficient to make one think of the standing of the raw material, yet many are so sanguine of the future that they are talking glibly about prices showing a further advance. Many people are very doubtful if a further advance on what will be seen next week in London is warranted by actual trading conditions, a 10 per cent. advance being already discounted by what has taken place in consuming markets. No doubt the present state of trade, and the recent rise, has been largely caused by the big business Bradford has been doing with America; in fact, at the beginning of the year, when important business was done in wool, tops and yarns, importers realised that a great change had taken place, and that stocks of wool were inadequate to meet the sudden demand which had sprung up. We know for a fact that several firms have been big buyers of both merinos and crossbreds, and buying brokers, with an important American clientele, have been able to clear stocks which they have been carrying for six months, and wool has been sold at a slight profit, which, at one time, showed a distinct loss of a full 1d. We hear on exceedingly good authority this week that one firm alone has sold this month over two million lb weight of New Zealand and Buenos Aires medium and fine crossbred wool; in fact, anyone having raw material to dispose of has been able to find a very speedy customer. To-day merinos are very firm indeed, and many are expecting Coleman-street next week to appreciate an average 10 per cent. for good combing wool. Stocks in Bradford to-day are lighter for February than the writer has ever known, and users here have woke up to find that while they have been asleep other important sections of the trade have been buying freely to advantage.

ARE CROSSBREDS SOUND?

The question asked seems to be little irrelevant at a time like the present when Antwerp advices state that crossbreds have advanced 7½d to 15 per cent. at the sale on Thursday. It simply means that the bulk of the offerings have gone at prices 1d per lb more than was made in January. This is not to be wondered at when the price of crossbred tops have advanced over 4d per lb since then, to-day's quotations for 58's comeback being 25¼; 56's super 23¾d, average 24d; 50's average 21d, 46's average carded 17¼d, and 40's 15½d. If we take English prepared tops, we find advanced quotations of 1d for Lincoln hog tops, and even 36's Devon tops are standing at 16d against 15d at the end of January. The fact is all down the list business shows considerable expansion, and the greatest squeeze has been experienced in regard to crossbreds. America has been a persistent buyer all through the past fortnight, and several English dealers we could name have several sold very big weights, including practically all descriptions. The thing that strikes the writer most of all is that America is making provision for running it own mills, and we hope that will be done. We hear to-day that there are hardly the same optimistic sentiments entertained that American manufacturers are going to be able to hold their own against West Riding imported goods, but we hope that every factory in the States will be able to run at least full time. To do this American buyers will have to secure their raw material at the cheapest rates possible, and go in at the same time for a good deal of manipulation and use other inferior manufacturing commodities just the same as their Yorkshire competitors. Noils are all very firm and rising; in fact, stocks of noils, wastes, and laps, are all in smaller compass than we have seen for a very long time. All these have risen sharply since January.

PROSPECTS FOR TRADE.

When prices have advanced in such a way as has been seen during the past few weeks, a wide contrast is seen in many respects from the conditions previously prevalent, this quite apart from the mere alteration in prices themselves. Of course, the movement is directly the outcome of a widespread determination to buy, all sections having been convinced that they have waited long enough. This is quite right, so far as it goes, but the question naturally arises—how far is the present rise justified by the general prospects for trade? There must always be some measure of anticipation, and is it now justified? With respect to prices, it would seem certain that they are now safe. In other words, the level of values current has been brought about by the exigencies of trade, there being sufficient prospective business to confirm what has already been done. In our conversation with members of the trade, we find that without any expression being given to excessively optimistic ideas, there is fairly grounded reason for saying that high as values have already gone, the demand among wool values particularly is such as to show that consumptive requirements are not in immediate danger of diminishing. Even when the London sales have opened and the anticipated rise has become an actual fact, we are looking for a steady clearance of the raw material in Bradford. For the time being there may be a lull in operations, partly because more immediate needs have been filled, and partly because of the development of some little cautiousness in view of London, but, apart from this, there is good reason to expect that every bale sold in London will quickly pass into consumers' hands.

WHY THE AMERICAN MANUFACTURER MUST HAVE AUSTRALIAN WOOL.

Yorkshire manufacturers have made their name known throughout the world for the beautiful cloths of all qualities which they turn out. Much skill and knowledge is required to make these, but it would be of very little use without good material to work with. The finest and highest priced cloths are made from the best Australian wools, and it is generally with Australian wool that West Riding manufacturers have achieved their greatest successes. It is but natural that for the best cloth one must have the best wool. In this connection it is interesting to note that American manufacturers cannot do without colonial wool if they want to compete successfully with European. Even under the old tariff, when they had to drag their import wools over a high wall of protection, they found it necessary to secure the best Australasian wool for some of their fabrics. Now that the duties are taken way, the American demand for wool is likely to make itself felt. About a month ago there was not a little space given up in the daily and trade press to the effect that American users would rather have domestic wools while they could get them, and several arguments were advanced to prove they were as good as foreign wools. All the American wool the writer has seen has been excessively dirty and faulty, the average clean yield being under 40 per cent., which is nowhere near the average for the whole United States clip. Moreover, the wool has often been tender, and fleeces often tied with string. This last week or two reports said that domestic supplies in Philadelphia and Boston were exhausted, and buyers were turning their attention to English and Colonial sorts. We venture to think that if those supplies were not exhausted, the American manufacturer would buy freely of the Australian article, as he is expected to do at the London sales next week. He must have wool from which he can get the same effects as his European competitors, and as they use Australasian fleeces, which are on the average superior to American in length, colour, soundness, and yield, he must also have these.

THE BUTTER BUSINESS.

LONDON MARKET FIRMER.

LONDON, Feb. 27.

The market has firmed considerably for all descriptions of salted and unsalted butter from Australia and New Zealand. As regards the latter these prices last week ranged from 114/ to 115/; the lowest price now for really best brands is 116/, and special factories command as high as 117/ to 118/ ex wharf London. Of unsalted New Zealand there is only a very limited quantity on offer at prices running from 118/ to 120/, and as high as 122/ has been paid for one or two "crack" factories. This strength of position has been brought about by various causes, the principal of which are improvement in the demand for Continental butter and the short supply of Australian. There is also the fact that the general quality of Australian is now nothing like so good as in the earlier part of the season, no doubt brought about through the hot weather experienced in Australia about two months ago. Then again two or three of the largest handlers of New Zealand butters have been quietly buying up stocks at prices ranging from 113/ to 115/ c.i.f., an equivalent, say, of 114/6 to 116/ landed terms, and have been placing these goods in cold store for a better market. That this "bull" movement has been more or less justified is now apparent; and it is quite evident that prices during March are going to be higher than during February, especially as the large arrivals of New Zealand butter, due to accumulations, caused by the strike in the Dominion, have cleared well. As far as Australian butters are concerned, the market is showing considerable activity. Best salt factories have realised from 112/ to 114/, and here and there 115/ has been paid for special western district makes. Unsalted still commands a premium of from 2/ to 3/ over salted, and prices for this description can be quoted at from 114/ to 116/ for ordinary finest, and 117/ to 118/ for fancy quality. Arrivals are on a diminishing scale, and shipments, as far as New South Wales and Victoria are concerned, are practically at an end for the season. Fair shipments have still to come forward from Queensland, but the total quantity of Australian butter to arrive onwards must be on a very small scale. A good deal of Australian butter has shown signs of having been heated, and the quality generally has not been of late up to the standard of the earlier part of the season. This has relieved buyers who were on the lookout for secondary quality. More of this description is now obtainable than at any other time during the present season. As the demand for secondary has been very active, such Australian butters have sold readily on arrival at prices ranging from 108/ to 112/ for salted and unsalted. Supplies of Argentine continue on a small scale, and find a ready market at about 112/ for salt, up to 114/ for unsalted. The season in the Argentine shows a slight improvement, and supplies are coming forward in somewhat larger quantities. The market for Danish was advanced 1 kr. last week, and 2 kr. this, and all descriptions of Continental butters are firmer. In the northern markets stocks are well cleared. The rise in Copenhagen quotations yesterday, just referred to, has again strengthened the position.

To-day's closing quotations are:—Victorian salted, 110/ to 112/, and occasionally 114/; unsalted, 114/ to 116/, and occasionally 118/; good to fine, 108/ to 109/ salted, and 110/ to 112/ unsalted. New South Wales salted, the same as Victorian, and unsalted 112/ to 114/ and 116/; good to fine salted, 108/ to 109/, and unsalted 110/. Queensland, 110/ to 112/, and exceptionally 113/ salted, and 112/ to 114/ unsalted, with exceptionally 115/; good to fine, 108/ to 109/ salted, and 108/ to 110/ unsalted.

NEOTSFIELD SUBDIVISION.

SINGLETON.—A subdivision sale of portion of Neotsfield Estate was conducted on Saturday afternoon by Grainger and Falkiner, Ltd., and Badgery Bros., Sydney. Twelve blocks, comprising 556 acres, were submitted. The following sales were effected:—Block 8, comprising 63 acres 3 roods, £21 10s per acre, purchaser Martin Rowan, Scott's Flat; block 7, comprising 47 acres 1 rood, £21 per acre; Thomas Harris, Scott's Flat; lot 6, comprising 57 acres, £22 per acre, Thomas Harris, Scott's Flat; block 12, comprising 62 acres 2 roods 19 perches, £17 10s per acre, James Ball, Redbournberry; block 11, comprising 53 acres 1 rood 30 perches, £18 per acre, James Ball, Redbournberry. The other blocks were passed, the auctioneer announcing that they would be sold privately.

AUSTRALIAN PRODUCE ABROAD.

BACON.

LONDON, Feb. 27.

Australian Cumberland-cut bacon, after having been of quiet sale at 59/ to 61/, has fallen to 58/ to 59/.

RABBITS.

The mild weather has caused the rabbit trade to be very quiet, and with heavy arrivals of Australian it has been difficult to maintain quotations.

HORN AND BONE.

At the horn and bone sales last week there was a very large offering, and good prices obtained in all sections. Toward the end of the public sales there was a decline in rates, especially in the larger horns, but the trade is sound, with good inquiry for all divisions.

COPRA.

The copra market has been generally quiet, especially for near positions. South Sea Islands December-January and January-February has had sellers £28/10/ London, but yesterday they came down to £28/5/, and even £28.

TALLOW.

The market this week was quiet but steady. Near parcels afloat rather easier and unchanged for shipment. In auction, 189 tons of better coloured and 332 tons of inferior were offered; 163 tons of the former and 187 tons of the latter sold at occasionally 3d decline. Australian mutton, fine 36/, fair to good 35/ to 35/9, dark to dull 32/ to 34/3, hard 35/6; beef, sweet 35/, fine 35/, fair to good 33/9 to 34/3, dark to dull 32/6 to 33/6.

WHARF-LABOURERS.

AVERAGE WAGE.

QUESTION OF SURPLUS LABOUR.

In the Commonwealth Arbitration Court yesterday, sitting at Darlinghurst, before Mr. Justice Higgins, the hearing of the claim of the Waterside Workers' Federation of Australia, for increased wages, was continued. The claim is for: Ordinary rates, 2s per hour; special cargoes, 2s 3d to 3s per hour; overtime, time and a half; Saturday afternoon, double time; Sundays, Christmas Day, and Good Friday, 10s per hour.

Mr. W. M. Hughes appeared for the claimant union; Mr. Storey for the various stevedoring firms, and the oversea companies; Mr. Adams for the interstate companies; Mr. McDonald for the interstate owners; and Mr. Ranson for the Queensland owners.

James Woods, financial secretary of the Sydney branch of the federation, said he had 17 years' experience on the wharfs, before accepting office with the union. During the whole of that time his earnings averaged £2 16s per week. Although engaged practically all the time, he had known what it was to drop below £2 per week. The present membership of the union was 5476, and the witness contended that the whole number was required in the industry. There was not enough work to keep them employed every day, but the industry could not do with less men. Because the work was of so casual a nature, the union claimed a high minimum rate per hour, to enable the men to earn a living wage.

MR. HOLMAN AND HOME RULE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—That our Premier should have thought fit to make a one-sided public utterance on Home Rule for Ireland at the Chapter Hall of St. Mary's Cathedral on Sunday morning would come as a shock, were it not generally felt that his party in Parliament are largely dependent on the Roman Catholic vote. Whether Mr. Holman is right in saying that with few exceptions the people of Australia are in favour of Home Rule for Ireland, I doubt, but, even if so, why should the majority of Australians wish to coerce Ulster out of its present conditions? That is the particular point at issue now. Why should the Protestant minority be handed over to the rule of the Catholic majority? What has the matter to do with Australians as Australians? There is no analogy between Home Rule for Australia and Home Rule for Ireland—the very different geographical positions in relation to the head of Empire prevent an analogy. In effect, the question is, unfortunately, one of difference in religion chiefly. It is impossible to overlook that issue, and absurd or hypocritical to attempt it. Irish Nationalism is essentially Roman Catholic. This is a pity, as a purely national aspect cannot, as a consequence, be seen. However, it is not the question of Home Rule I want to raise, but I wish to protest against our Premier going out of his way to speak for Australians on a subject on which he has no warrant. What is the use of Mr. Holman speaking of bigots, as if all the Irish bigots were the Protestants of Ulster?
I am, etc.,
NEUTRAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I notice in this morning's "Herald" that Messrs. Holman and Meagher have sent cables to Mr. John Redmond. That Mr. Holman should have dared to send this cable in the name of Australia is an outrage. He says that "he conveys the opinion that Australians wholly condemn any disappointment or delay of the hopes of the Irish people, etc.

I am neither Ulsterman nor Roman Catholic, and I distinctly state that Mr. Holman has misled the world, when he declares that we Australians are wholly in accord with the sentiment he has cabled to Mr. John Redmond. Unfortunately, politics in this country have come to such a pass that no opportunity must be lost to enable one to curry favour with the people you wish to keep in with; hence, Mr. Holman's cable, which was inspired at the breakfast table of the Irish National Foresters, and in the presence of Archbishop Kelly. I do not believe that 500 Protestants could be found in this State to endorse this cablegram, which was sent in Australia's name.

I am not writing to stir up strife between two religious bodies; but simply to ask you to contradict this blatant statement made by one whom chance has made the socialistic leader of this State.

Regarding Mr. Meagher, if he sent his cablegram in his private capacity, well and good, but if as Speaker of our Legislative Assembly, he is to be as much condemned as Mr. Holman.
I am, etc.,
AN AUSTRALIAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It is a very long time since I read a news item which gave me such a severe shock as the reading of the utterance of the Premier, Mr. W. A. Holman, given at the Roman Catholic breakfast at St. Mary's yesterday morning.

It was exceedingly ill-advised for a man in the position Mr. Holman at present occupies that he should go out of his way to make such a statement at a time when the turmoil within the Empire in connection with Irish affairs is so great, and the undoubted foolishness of giving an uncalled for utterance of that nature is deserving of the most severe censure.

In this connection allow me to remind Mr. Holman that practically 75 per cent. of the community is Protestant, and if that proportion were to rise and vote together, Protestant labour, employer, farmer, and grazier—then he and his party would be swept at once from power, and a statement such as was made yesterday is enough to rouse the whole community to stand shoulder to shoulder and settle forever the question as to whether the Roman Catholic Church is to make use of Protestant labour for the propagation of her own ends and schemes, which is certainly what at present obtains. If Protestant labour could only understand this, then the power of the Holmanite would very speedily depart.

My final sentence is this: Let Protestant Labour beware, let them watch how systematically a grip is being taken upon their organisations by the Church of Rome, that disturbing political octopus, which has been the curse of the world in kingdom after kingdom, and Empire after Empire, for untold generations.
I am, etc.,
A LOYAL SUBJECT OF KING GEORGE.

THE SAVINGS BANKS.

AMALGAMATION PROTEST.

TRUSTEES' OPPOSITION.

In view of the fact that the proposal to amalgamate the savings banks is again before Parliament, Mr. Thos. Jessep, the senior trustee and acting vice-president of the Savings Bank of New South Wales, requests us to republish the attached letter written in September last by Mr. J. R. Carey (vice-president of the Savings Bank of New South Wales) to Mr. J. H. Cann, then State Treasurer, protesting against the proposed amalgamation:—

"The trustees of the Savings Bank of New South Wales, having discussed again the proposed amalgamation of this institution with the Government Savings Bank of New South Wales, which would result in the extinction of this Bank as such, desire to intimate to the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer, and through you to the Parliament of the State, their respectful yet emphatic protest on behalf of the depositors against any interference with this institution, which they control by virtue of the Savings Bank of New South Wales Amendment Act of 1902.

"The interests of the present 149,000 depositors are entrusted to the control of the trustees. These depositors, therefore, constitute the proprietors of the bank's business, their funds being invested to the best advantages to secure a reasonable return of interest.

"Such deposits, amounting to 6¾ million sterling, have been made in good faith and confidence in the policy and management of the trustees, and, therefore, no change in management or methods of investment should be countenanced, especially as the depositors dissented from any change when their opinion was asked through the medium of the referendum.

"The bank has been in existence for a period of 80 years, under the control of trustees, who have successfully conserved the interests of the depositors, paying them a higher rate of interest than elsewhere obtainable, whilst at the same time they have accumulated a reserve fund amounting to about £340,000, free of all claims and liabilities, and an additional reserve against possible losses of, say, £65,000, and these reserves cannot be otherwise regarded than as an inalienable security for the benefit of the depositors, inasmuch as they have accrued solely from the handling of their funds.

"It must not be overlooked that a very large number of the industrial class have taken advantage of the special facilities afforded by the bank to obtain advances to enable them to build homes of their own, at a moderate rate of interest, and thus more permanently establish their citizenship.

"And, further, the trustees view with considerable concern the future prospects of the existing staff in the event of amalgamation.

"The services of the trustees have always been given gratuitously, and there would be but little economy in transferring the management of the business to other hands."

Mr. Jessep points out that last year a referendum of the depositors was taken, the question put being as follows:—"Are you in favour of the amalgamation of the Savings Bank of New South Wales with the Government Savings Bank." The result was that 50,900 depositors voted no, and only 18,700 in the affirmative.

The balance-sheet of the bank shows that on December 31 last there were 149,912 depositors, the total sum deposited being £6,974,239.

The entertainment was evidently enjoyed.

INCOME TAX EXPLANATIONS.

For the moment we may leave the question of what the Government really means by its income tax proposals to consider the way in which they have been brought forward. They are curling like live wires round the legs of the unfortunate Minister in charge. The Premier last night could not say, in reply to the leader of the Opposition, what amount of money was expected to be raised by this particular impost. Even that vital point had not been discussed to finality. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof, and in this instance the evil of revenue shortage is to be postponed as long as possible by making the new tax upon incomes a drag net of portentous dimensions. The main thing is to be sure of plenty of money; the amount does not matter. So Mr. Holman in his best manner went off to the Premiers' Conference, promising—but regretful. He was sorry not to have the information at hand. This is, of course, a new way of playing Treasurer, for if there is one thing more than another expected of the Budget maker it is knowledge of finance and of the details of his own financial proposals. Leaving Mr. Holman, however, to throw much interesting light upon difficult questions of other complexion in Melbourne, we turn to the Assistant Treasurer. Mr. Hoyle was asked last night to explain certain things in connection with the Income Tax Bill, and to indicate the effects of certain clauses. Clause thirteen was particularly in need of a little light thrown upon it; and the Speaker threw the bill out as a matter of fact because this clause allowed a question of policy to intrude upon a financial measure. But the Assistant Treasurer has not his chief's versatility. He has no experience in sword dancing. He made a poorer show as expert than the late Mr. Dacey did on a similar occasion as Treasurer; and while the same excuse may be offered now as was put forward then, that the Minister new to his important office could not be expected to pose as a proficient financier, the result promises to be equally disastrous.

How serious the position really is may be seen from the destructive criticism of the Income Tax Bill as presented elsewhere in our columns this morning. Mr. Teece began yesterday by showing how monstrously inequitable must be the common-sense reading of certain provisions in the measure. To-day he demonstrates that as it stands the bill if passed must become absolutely unworkable. The Government may not mind, because the Taxation Commissioners have large powers and a certain way with them; and it is a serious undertaking for the ordinary individual to challenge their reading of the Act. But this is the whole case from our point of view. The caucus decides that taxation shall be imposed in certain directions, and that is all that the Government is concerned with. Explanations of provisions and answers to questions may be very well if forthcoming without discomfort, but the majority is in the Legislative Assembly to force money bills through, however the Opposition may object. Yet, as Mr. Wade pointed out last night, there are certain rules to be observed. Two bills have now been thrown out by the Speaker for going beyond the order of leave; and the super-tax proposals are to be submitted afresh as two bills, so that the financial and policy details may be considered apart. Why should there be all this trouble? Why are not Government measures brought forward in proper shape, and submitted with such explanation and justification that finally he who runs may read. It is not the Opposition alone that must be considered, but the people who have to pay the taxes. In any case, how can members be expected to do their duty unless they are put in possession of all the facts, and enabled to make up their minds as in ordinary business? But the idea seems to be that Parliament does not count, and the community is not concerned. The taxpayer's business is to pay and look happy, and the Government will do the rest. Nevertheless, that way lies destruction.

THE OFFER TO ULSTER.

Before some of those amongst us sit in judgment upon the British Government for "forcing Home Rule upon Ulster" and similar crimes, they will do well to remember what the Government actually has offered to Ulster in the present crisis. It might be imagined, from what is said in some quarters, that the Government had held a pistol at Ulster's head with the threat: "Either you take Home Rule or I shoot." It would scarcely be inferred from all this clamour that the Government had offered to allow two general elections to intervene before Ulster could be subjected to Home Rule; that the Government had said to the Unionists: "Very well—we will cut Ulster out of Home Rule for six years; and if you can persuade the country at either of the two general elections which will happen in that time that Ulster is right, then you can cut her out of Home Rule permanently." It would scarcely be imagined from all the fuss that is being raised that this offer had been made and was still open—that if the Unionists chose to accept it, nothing whatever could happen to Ulster until the Unionists had twice had the opportunity of testing the feeling of the country, and till the country had been able to watch the actual results of Home Rule in operation in the South of Ireland for six years to see whether it was as bad as it was painted or not. The prospect which Ulster is rebelling against at the present moment is not Home Rule, but the possibility that the electors of the United Kingdom may believe so strongly in the justice of Home Rule that they will return a majority for it, in spite of Ulster's protests, at the next two general elections. It may be doubted whether one person in ten of those who have been talking so freely about the oppression of Ulster realises that this offer has ever been made.

Although these terms made it impossible that Ulster could be affected by the Home Rule Bill in any way whatever, unless the electors of the United Kingdom were for six years consistently in favour of including her under the operation of the Home Rule Bill, yet the Conservative party rejected that offer; and it is in face of this proposal that the Conservative party is threatening a civil war. The ground for not accepting the Government's terms is that Unionists have gone to the trouble of making all their preparations for resistance, and that they cannot now allow the decision to be postponed for six years. Their terms, they say, are an immediate referendum or the exclusion of Ulster. That is to say, the party which has been defeated at the last three elections, the party which the people sent back in a minority of over a hundred to the present Parliament, is willing to allow its opponents to pass their most important legislative proposal on such terms as it thinks fit. The attitude assumed is that of a victorious party dictating terms to its vanquished opponents, and it can easily be understood that the Government cannot submit to this. The Government has offered terms which absolutely safeguard the future; the Unionists demand a general election, and the Government has offered two general elections before Ulster can be in any way affected. In that concession is granted the sole essential point, and watching the affair from this distance, it is impossible to understand how, when such a settlement is open, the choice of civil war can be even remotely justified. Fortunately the threat of civil war, however seriously made, does not necessarily involve war. There has to be an actual occasion for the outbreak. The Ulster army will not start off, on hearing that the bill is passed, in search of another army to fight with; it will not go straight away and attack forts or garrisons which are merely sitting still. The issue of writs for the Irish elections will not cause a war. Either the elections in Ulster would be held, or they would be ignored, but there is no opportunity for fighting over them. There could be no fighting until the Irish Parliament had been elected, had met, and had actually passed some law involving the doing of something active to the Ulster people—such as the taking of a tax from them. Then Ulster would, no doubt, resist. But long before that time an election must have been held in the United Kingdom. And that election will settle one way or another the fate of the present scheme of Home Rule.

RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS.

No one is likely to quarrel with the personnel of the new Railway Commission whom the Government intends to appoint in the course of a day or two, as soon as their predecessors' term of office formally expires. Mr. Harper, who has been filling Mr. Johnson's position since his departure, now becomes Chief Commissioner, while his colleagues are to be Messrs. Richardson and Fraser. Each of these gentlemen has a record of useful service in the Railway Department. Each of them has been trained under capable chiefs, and has a wide experience in railway affairs. Since Mr. Johnson left New South Wales they have been responsible for the administration of our railway system, and have shown themselves fully equal to the responsibility. They can be relied upon to render a good account of themselves in their office, and we can congratulate both New South Wales and themselves on their appointment. We must also congratulate the Government on having emancipated itself from the superstition that it is necessary to import someone from abroad to manage our railways. While we believe that the best man for the job should get the job, irrespective of his nationality, we have also consistently declared it to be our conviction that the best preparation for the administration of Australian railways is a training in the methods and problems of an Australian railway system, where the conditions are different from those in every other part of the world. We may, therefore, regard the personnel of the new Commission as thoroughly satisfactory. Unfortunately, it is not possible to say this of the terms of their appointment. The latter is subject to an understanding whose nature is not very definite, but it is an equivalent to an undertaking that they will raise no difficulty should future legislation be introduced which affects the character or the tenure of their office. Now, it is common knowledge that the Ministry proposes to bring in a bill altering the relations which at present exist between the Government and the Railway Commissioners. On more than one occasion Ministers and private members of the Labour party have most unequivocally announced their intention of curtailing the powers of the Chief Commissioner at the earliest opportunity, and this proviso in the appointment is obviously designed to meet a radical alteration in the Railway Act.

The public will be anxious to know exactly what the nature of that alteration is going to be. It is prepared to admit that some curtailment of the powers of the Chief Commissioner is justifiable, and even advisable. The unfettered independence of the regime which has obtained since Sir Joseph Carruthers's Act has produced certain complications which would have been avoided had the position of Chief Commissioner been in closer relationship with Parliament, which has to accept responsibility for his actions and provide the money for his requirements. But it is one thing to admit that the Chief Commissioner should not be a sort of dictator who can disregard every one else, in other words, that he should have absolute power without any responsibility. It is quite another thing to submit to our railways being brought once again under political control. The evils of the latter course are so manifest that it is unnecessary to labour the point. We endured them for many years, and then Sir Henry Parkes realised that if efficient and economical administration were desired, political control must be done away with. Circumstances have not altered since that day, and it will be a reactionary and a most deplorable measure if the railways are once again to be made the plaything of any party which happens to be in office. That is why the public is so eager to know the nature of the bill which the Government proposes to introduce and the meaning of the condition subject to which the new Commissioners have been appointed. If it simply contemplates a reasonable modification of the Railway Commissioners' authority which stops short of any possibility of party control, there can be little objection. If, however, it intends to subordinate them to the political exigencies of the moment, to make them, in fact, as Mr. King O'Malley observed on a celebrated occasion, "rubber stamps" to register the decrees of the faction in power, the proposal will have to be fought from the jump.

THE SAVINGS BANKS AGAIN.

It is difficult for the ordinary mind to understand why Governments cannot let our popular banking institutions alone to pursue an obviously progressive course. It is not a matter of party politics; for, however anxious Labour may be to get control of financial affairs, we remember that it was Sir Joseph Carruthers who first led a raid upon the Barrack-street bank and its assets. The Amalgamation Bill now at its second reading stage does not differ very materially from the one then very acrimoniously debated, so that there must either be some occult significance in the union of the two banks or we must suppose that all Governments suffer from the same sort of financial disease and the same sort of eagerness to lay their hands upon all they can get. From their point of view this is all very well; but from the point of view of the depositing public it is not well at all. Mr. Cann's excuse is that he envies the successful mortgage business carried out, on very conservative lines by the Barrack-street bank, and he seems to think that his Government should have a monopoly of this sort of business. But how can it? The same sort of reasoning might be applied to any private banking concern; and, indeed, by parity of reasoning, the Government might legislate for the union of any two banks that it thought fit, and presumably the institutions concerned would have nothing to say. The position is absolutely ridiculous, and must appear so not merely to banking experts, but to the smallest depositor who exercises his right to bank where he pleases. In effect, Mr. Cann says we have not enough depositors' funds to loan out to all who require assistance, and therefore we are perfectly right in commandeering the funds of other institutions that have such resources at their disposal. This certainly is a change of front; for the old argument was merely that the two banks were covering the same ground, and getting in each other's way. That, of course, was not true, either. On the whole, a different class of depositor has used each bank. Barrack-street had a smaller number of investors, but a much higher average of deposit, and the deposit, moreover, was not as fluctuating as in the case of the Government Savings Bank. Barrack-street began its career in the days before socialism, and it conducted its business, and still does so, on ordinary sound banking lines. The Government Savings Bank has done equally good work, but with the difference that its funds are much more directly at the disposal of the Government. That is the whole thing; and it ought to be left to the depositor which alternative he will choose.

The Barrack-street bank and its depositors have no desire to be drawn into the vortex of Labour finance, however honest the latter may be in its intentions. On this point we have been asked to republish a letter which seems to us as appropriate now as when it first appeared in September last. The trustees of the Savings Bank of New South Wales then entered a most emphatic protest against the proposed amalgamation. They pointed out that the depositors themselves resented any change, and that the policy of investment of funds that had been pursued had been fully approved of by them. The success of this bank's operations is evidenced by its being able to pay a higher rate of interest than its Government rival—though that, no doubt, is partly due to the divergent nature of the deposits and the different class of depositors. Still there is no gainsaying that the bank on which it is proposed to "close down" has been admirably conducted, and that a large part of its funds has been used for the precise purpose about which Mr. Cann affects to be so anxious; namely, the giving of assistance to the workers to acquire homes or holdings of their own. As far as we can see there is no possible reason for the proposed interference. Both banks do excellent work, and so, also, does the Commonwealth Bank. They all cater for small depositors, and experience shows that there is ample room for them all. If all three could be rolled into one, there would be little, and perhaps no, gain in economy of administration; while there would certainly be an increase in the risks of management. From no possible practical point of view can the suggested confiscation be justified, and if carried it will certainly be the signal for a wholesale withdrawal of deposits. But behind that lies the fundamental objection that it is morally wrong for the State to try to intervene with the people's investments and convert those investments to its own use, whether that use be good or evil.

THE MILITARY COLLEGE.

Sir Ian Hamilton has performed by no means the least important of his duties by visiting the Royal Military College at Duntroon. He has now seen contingents representative of the various units of the Commonwealth military forces. But the future efficiency of those forces will, to a considerable extent, depend on the calibre of the staff officers who are being trained at Duntroon. Thus, it was very desirable that the cadets now in residence at the college should come under the keen, discriminating review of General Hamilton so that the authorities might have the benefit of his guidance on the work of the college. One of the difficulties with which the authorities have been confronted so far in their organisation of the compulsory military service system has been the lack of suitable, trained officers, both on the staff and in the regiments. This handicap has been mitigated to some extent by the enthusiasm and public spirit of the young men who have offered their services in the training of the lads. But the difference in efficiency resulting from a four years' course at the college must be very great. It is unfortunate that some time must still elapse before even the first batch of young officers are sent forth from Duntroon, and then the demand will be very much greater than the possible supply.

All the reports which have hitherto been made available concur in the view that the management of the college under Brigadier-General Bridges and his capable staff has been conducted on sound lines, calculated to produce the best possible results, and that there is every hope that the Australian military college may rival the famous college at West Point in the United States, and the colleges of Sandhurst and Woolwich in England. It is, therefore, satisfactory to find that General Hamilton has apparently been pleased with what he found during his visit. The cadets will have been encouraged by the gracious message received from his Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, and by the inspiring speech of Sir Ian Hamilton, whose well-chosen words, based upon a long and distinguished career, they will do well to remember. Australia is not likely to be met with any demand for the democratisation of the army such as is being made in England. At the military college and in the cadet battalions the son of a blacksmith or a wharf-labourer may, and does, in fact, receive his training side by side with the son of the wealthiest citizen in the land. The one test demanded is efficiency, and that, we trust, will always remain so. The Commonwealth Government has been fortunate in the principal officers of the college, who have initiated the work. The term for which they were appointed shortly expires. It was recently announced that Brigadier-General Bridges had been offered the post of Inspector-General of the Commonwealth military forces. If he should accept this offer, it would certainly be regrettable if the college were, at the same time, to lose the services of his senior colleagues. Such an excellent start having been made, it is in the highest degree desirable that continuity in the work should be preserved, and we hope that the Government will bear this in mind in the plans for the future.

Governor and Electoral System.—"Tasmania at present leads the way in applying the proportional representation principle," said Earl Grey at the Town Hall last night, "and I believe that is largely owing to the fact that Tasmania was extremely fortunate in the possession of not only a constitutional governor, but a governor who was able to impress upon the statesmen there the right and fair principles of electoral representation." That Governor of Tasmania, Sir Gerald Strickland, occupied the chair at the meeting at which Lord Grey was speaking, and the latter hoped his Excellency would be able to persuade the statesmen of New South Wales to give another lead to the English-speaking world by applying the principle of righteousness and freedom to the electoral system of this State.

City Cleansing Methods.—Another long discussion about city cleansing took place at the meeting of the health committee of the City Council yesterday, when the question of the amalgamation of the city cleansing and the city surveyor's departments was considered. Mr. Webster, chief inspector of city cleansing, argued in favour of the separate working of the departments, and said that the experience of Berlin, Paris, and New York was in favour of it. He said that if his department and the city surveyor's were not working in harmony it was for the council to find out why. He complained that he had no control over his own department. The cost for 45 horses used by his department worked out at £4 9s per week for each horse and man. He could, he believed, reduce this if he were given direct control. The cost for garaging, petrol, and maintenance of the six motor waggons had been £2084 for last year. This also was, he considered, unreasonably high. Alderman Jones remarked that the council's garage seemed to be too expensive an affair. No decision was arrived at, consideration of the matter being again deferred till next Monday.

Tramway Suggestions.—Now that the Government finds itself unable to make ends meet in running the tramways, members of the Cabinet are receiving all sorts of suggestions both from inside and outside the House. In the Legislative Assembly last night, after suggesting the building of corridor cars to enable all the fares to be collected, Mr. Crawford wanted the Assistant Treasurer (Mr. Hoyle) to have the straps removed from the cars "so as to enable conductors to perform their work more readily." This suggestion, however, did not meet with the approval of Mr. Fitzpatrick, who asked if it were not a fact that the straps had been installed for the purpose of enabling a larger number of passengers to travel after the tram employees decided that no traveller should ride on the footboards. Then the House was convulsed with an idea, which emanated from Mr. Grimm, the new member for the country seat of Ashburnham. Would the Minister take into consideration the advisability of knocking out the seats and turning the cars into horseboxes? "You would get a terrible lot more people in," Mr. Grimm assured the Minister, who wore a rather badgered look as the House roared at the question. Regarding the straps, Mr. Hoyle said, that was a detail of management which he, as Minister, could not interfere in. There was more laughter when the Minister turned to the suggestion that the seats should be knocked out, and retorted that there would be no need to devise expedients for increasing the accommodation on the trams when the Eastern Suburbs railway line was built.

Fought under General Hamilton.—About 50 past and present officers of the Mounted Rifles, and several prominent citizens were invited by Colonel Lassetter, C.B., to meet General Sir Ian Hamilton at dinner at the Australia Hotel. There was a distinguished gathering, which included Vice-Admiral Sir George Patey, Brigadier-General C. F. Ellison, C.B., Colonel the Hon. Rupert Carrington, C.V.O., D.S.O., Lieut.-Colonel J. M. Antill, C.B., Major Onslow Thompson, V.D., Major Machattie, Colonel Macarthur Onslow, M.L.A., Major Macarthur Onslow, Major E. P. Ashmore, M.V.O., Major R. C. Holman, D.S.O., Flag-Lieutenant B. R. Poe, Mr. J. C. Watson, Mr. Forbes Angus, and the Lord Mayor of Sydney. The toasts honoured were: "His Majesty, our Colonel-in-Chief," General Hutton," Our Honorary Colonel" "Our Guest, General Sir Ian Hamilton," and (proposed by Colonel Onslow) "Colonel Lassetter." In the gathering were many who had fought under General Hamilton in South Africa, and it was mentioned that one officer had motored 600 miles, and another 390 miles in order to be present at the reunion.

Judge on Will-making.—The duties of solicitors in drawing up wills were referred to by Mr. Justice Street in the Probate Court yesterday in the course of a judgment in a case in which a testator's will was disputed by a daughter who had been excluded from its provisions. "The preparation of wills is a very important and very responsible part of a solicitor's duties," said his Honor, "and a solicitor in taking instructions for a will should not only be satisfied as to the testator's instructions, but should also, so far as he can, satisfy himself that the testator understands the extent of his property, and is capable of understanding and weighing the claims of those who may reasonably be considered to have claims upon him." His Honor added that in the case under review, while there was nothing to raise any doubt in the solicitor's mind as to the testator's testamentary capacity, it would have been nothing more than prudent and proper, seeing that the testator was a stranger to the solicitor, for the latter to have made inquiries as to the members of the family, so that he might have been satisfied that the omission of any of them was not due to forgetfulness.

Stamp Duty.—The amount received in Sydney last week for stamp duty in respect of probate and letters of administration was £22,441 12s 8d, of which the estate of the late Mr. John Whiting, of Victoria, paid £1401 1s 8d; the estate of the late Mr. William Ernest White, grazier, of Belltrees, near Scone, £15,938 4s; and the estate of the late Mr. Alexander Gray, millowner, of Victoria, £2281 19s 8d. The net value of the estate of Mr. Whiting was £25,946; of Mr. White, £159,382; and of Mr. Gray, £35,656.

Liquor Act Breaches.—An interesting return was tabled in the Legislative Assembly last night by the Attorney-General (Mr. Hall) showing the convictions under the Liquor Act during 1913. The total number of convictions in the State for drunkenness only was 25,274; other convictions, in which drunkenness formed part of the charge (drunkenness with disorderly conduct), 4155; women convicted of drunkenness, 3099; offences committed between 8 a.m. on Saturday and 8 a.m. on Sunday, 8107; committed between 8 a.m. on Sunday and 8 a.m. on Monday, 810; selling on Sundays, 41; selling during prohibited hours other than on Sundays, 31; selling liquor without a license, 44; convictions for selling adulterated liquor, 47.

French Cabinet Minister.—Some years ago the Premier made the acquaintance in Sydney of M. Metin, who was commissioned by the French Government to inquire into the operation of Australian industrial laws, and who subsequently accepted a professorship at one of the French universities. M. Metin has recently been allotted the portfolio of Minister of Industry in the reconstructed French Cabinet, and, in reply to Mr. Holman's congratulations, has cabled the following message:—"I thank you for your cordial message, which corresponds with my feelings for Australia and her institutions."

The Turquoise Parrakeet.—A specimen of the pretty little yellow, green-and-blue parrot which 20 years ago was exceedingly common round Sydney—in fact, could more than any other bird be called Sydney's parrakeet, as it was most common in the county of Cumberland—has just been added to the collection in the Zoological Gardens. It is a rare bird around Sydney nowadays, the increase of population having driven it away, as it has driven away many other birds and animals that one could not so very long ago have seen any day in the course of a ramble through the then bush on the northern side of the harbour or in other localities on the outskirts of the city.

THE WEEK IN LONDON.

AN AUSTRALIAN'S NOTES.

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

The Governor-General.

LONDON, Feb. 21.

By the courtesy of Captain Muirhead Collins, of the Commonwealth Office, some of us were enabled, this week, to meet Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson, the Governor-General designate of Australia. The occasion was a luncheon party, and it gave opportunity for a pleasant glimpse of Lord Denman's successor. You will like your new Governor-General. The impression one had from a chat with him is that for one thing he is the calibre of man sure to be popular with us, because he can combine with the dignity of great official position the more intimate personal quality of companionableness. For another thing, one saw in him an alertness of interest in Australia, and considerable preparation in advance for his work there. A man of presence, too, your new Governor-General, and altogether well-equipped on the side of him which will be in closest contact with the Australian people. Of his capacity and experience in public affairs, you will already have been well informed. On the personal side it is safe to say he will easily be able to command the goodwill of Australians.

The Sale of Honours.

Chips from the debate in the House of Lords this week, on the Earl of Selborne's motion drawing attention to party-fund contributions and their relation to honours and titles bestowed by his Majesty the King. Lord Selborne: "The scandal, the grievous scandal, is that a man is able to buy an honour just as he would a picture. Honours properly bestowed are a real incentive to public service, social and national, and they are in accordance with the good sense and the reason of most men." "Surely it is a good thing when the King fixes on the self-sacrifice of some miner, or railway man, or seaman, or soldier, and marks him publicly, in the eyes of the whole nation. and I think any sensible man feels satisfaction and personal gratification when the King confers an honour upon such a man as the noble v'scount opposite (Lord Morley), or the noble earl on the cross-benches (Lord Roberts), or when he crowns the career of a man like W. Burt by making him a Privy Councillor." . . . "A duke is just as indispensable to Mr. Lloyd George as a mother-in-law is to the editor of a comic paper. I hope noble dukes in the House will forgive me when I say that they and Mr. George are becoming bores." Lord Willoughby de Broke (stormy petrel and humorist): "My own title was conferred on my ancestor for the part he took in placing the Tudor dynasty on the throne—a dynasty which would have treated noble lords opposite in a very different way from that in which they are being treated by his present Majesty." "If I were a Radical organiser, I would try to select my peers from among those who, like Jorrocks, have no legitimate offspring, because not only does conversion frequently come to them after a few years or months, and sometimes, in their minds, even hours, but the son is almost a certainty, while the Radical grandson of a Radical peer is a phenomenon we cannot conceive." "The thing called democracy, of which we have had such an orgy in England for some years past, has one neverfailing vice. It throws up a race of exploiters, who were well described by Mr. Price Collier in his penetrating book, 'England and the English,' as politicians who live by the people, on the people, for themselves." Lord Ribblesdale (humorist): "I have had very little to do with party funds, and have always expressed a profound reluctance to subscribe to them." "Only the other day I was called upon by a very honest foxhunter, who sent up a message to me with so much mystery that I thought he wanted to sell me a horse." "My objection to a Royal Commission is that they after report so much that it is impossible for a Government to do anything, or so little that it is not worth doing anything." "The noble lord opposite was very angry with the caucus, but he was still more angry with plutocrats. Why is he so angry with plutocrats? I am not one of them myself, but I believe they are a very nice body of men. At all events, I am reminded of Dr. Johnson's line: 'Slow rises worth by poverty depressed.'" Lord Milner (serious person): "There is another interesting point besides the number of these creations (peerages), and that is what I may call their periodicity, the cyclical movements that seem to affect them. . . . The occurrence of great showers of honours is almost always in the year before, or the year of, or the year after, a general election." "Whether it is worse to buy a few votes at an election by giving illegitimate employment, or to try to debauch a whole constituency by promising a vast expenditure of public money within its borders, or by flaunting before it some wealthy candidate who is expected to be a rich fount of future favours—I must leave to moralists to determine."

Pains of Death.

A gruesome but universally interesting subject is having wide discussion here by favour of that familiar medium of discussion, the correspondence columns of the "Times." It began with a letter written by Professor J. Cook Wilson, who urged upon public notice for general benefit and relief of mind, that what is believed to be the suffering associated with death does not exist. He pointed out that the apparently agonising struggle which gives so much grief to onlookers at a deathbed is almost always a purely mechanical disturbance, which the patient does not feel at all, and which certainly gives him no such suffering as seems to be his. He related the case of his own father, whom he watched through a whole night of seemingly agonised struggle for breath, but who in the morning recovered consciousness, and said: "Tell the doctor I have had a good night." And, following upon Professor Wilson's letter has come a remarkable body of testimony by persons who, being at the point of death, recovered. They unanimously describe their sensations as entirely painless, while their friends had been overwhelmed by the sight of what had seemed to be unutterable suffering. Sir Henry Morris, the eminent surgeon, writing to-day, while agreeing as to the painlessness of most forms of death, explains how it is that the heavy laboured breathing of dying persons occurs. Moreover, he points out that it can be stopped, and sometimes, as in apoplexy, even recovery can be made possible, by the simple process of turning and keeping the patient lying on one side instead of on his back.

"God's Own Country."

The book which one Jacomb has felt called upon to write for the benefit of those who may misguidedly be thinking of going to Australia will have been available to you ere this. Its reviewers here have given it some prominence and considerable criticism. This week the "Sunday Times" opened its columns to correspondence on the subject, and quite a lot of angry Australians found voice therein. But of them all Mr. Leslie Curnow, who was not angry, but only amusing, scored most heavily. Mr. Curnow, indeed, urged it upon Mr. Jacomb that his tale was only half told; that he had forgotten to mention not only the slave markets of Sydney, but the way Australians have with criminals, as, for instance, those who are dropped over South Head to be ground to pulp on the rocks below, or those for whom one dip in the Yarra is found sufficient. Forgotten also by Mr. Jacomb "the fierce head-hunting raids made by night on defenceless villages by bloodthirsty hordes of bunyips, wanteegongs, and triantelopes." That would seem to be a better method of handling Mr. Jacomb than the angry way. The ingenious publisher, by the way, is heading his London advertisements of the book thus—in heavy capitals—"Don't Go to Australia."

MELBOURNE TO SYDNEY RIDE.

YASS, Monday.

Miss Waugh, who is riding from Melbourne to Sydney, arrived at the Royal Hotel, Yass, at 7 o'clock, and was cheered by a large crowd. She seems to be enjoying the trip and proposes leaving for Goulburn at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

IRISH CRISIS.

IMPORTANT DEBATE.

ARMY POSITION.

"DEMOCRACY IS ON TRIAL."

SETTLEMENT APPEALS.

LONDON, March 30.

The "Standard" states: "The final decision of Sir John French and Sir John Ewart to maintain their resignations is now the governing feature of the crisis.

"While the Government is willing, as Mr. Asquith's speech of Friday last showed, to repeal the sense of the paragraphs added by Colonel Seely, Secretary of State for War, to the document given to Brigadier-General Gough, it is bound to decline to stultify itself by reinstating them. On this rock the negotiations have split, and Lord Haldane's attempts to find a satisfactory formula have so far proved resultless.

"A meeting of the military members of the Army Council was held yesterday, and it was suggested that Sir John French and Sir John Ewart should draft a letter to the Prime Minister explaining their difficulties, and that Mr. Asquith should, if necessary, read the letter in the House of Commons to-day."

A Ministerial Whip states that an important debate in regard to the position of the army will arise to-day, and a "very important" division will occur.

A POINT OF HONOUR.

LONDON, March 30.

The "Daily Chronicle" says there is reason to fear that Sir John French and Sir John Ewart will persist in their resignations, not because of any difference with the Government concerning the relations of the army with the civil power, but on a point of honour, owing to the repudiation of the guarantee given to Brigadier-General Gough.

Later.

There is a growing consensus of opinion that the resignations are final.

It is freely stated in military circles that Sir John French intends to notify the various army commanders that his resignation is purely a personal affair, and that he hopes, for the sake of the army, the resignations will be limited to himself and Sir John Ewart.

No request has reached Brigadier-General Gough to return the written guarantee that was given him. The document has been deposited in the Bank of England.

THE CAUSE OF DEMOCRACY.

Mr. Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, yesterday handed a deputation of young Liberals the following message:—

"Democracy is on its trial. Its right to govern has been challenged by an oligarchy, which is invoking the aid of the House of Peers and officers of the army.

"Upon the courage and resolution displayed at this juncture by friends of liberty in all classes depends the question whether the country is to remain free or in effect be enslaved by military despotism."

EX-GOVERNORS' APPEAL.

LONDON March 30, 3 a.m.

Lord Chelmsford and Lord Sydenham, in a letter to the press, point out that civil war, the destruction of the army, and the elimination of the Empire as a world-factor are inevitable unless the extremists on both sides make concessions.

"The new Army Order," they say, "is tantamount to an acknowledgment that irregular questions were put to the officers at the Curragh, and these necessarily led to the unprecedented request for assurances concerning the interpretation of orders which might be given in a certain hypothetical case.

"The lamentable events of the past week, directly due to this initial blunder, cause anxiety alike to the Government and to the Opposition. Surely the Government must now realise that a policy which is profoundly perturbing the conscience of a very large part of the nation, cannot be carried out to the bitter end; and the extremists in the Opposition must see that an unbending insistence on a policy of negation regarding Ireland is equally hopeless."

After recommending the leaders of the two great parties to confer, the letter concludes:—"We firmly believe that true patriotism and statesmanship, the desperate nature of the [illegible], and the moderate element in the community which may prove to hold the casting vote at a general election, all demand the adoption of a middle course.

"We have both been apart from home politics for many years, but we do know that the British communities beyond the seas are looking with the deepest apprehension on what is now happening in the motherland.

"Is it too late to make this appeal to the leaders of the two great parties in the State, on behalf of the safety, honour, and welfare of the sovereign and his dominions?"

THE KING'S PART.

LONDON, March 29.

The "Sunday Times," referring to the introduction of the King's name in connection with the attitude assumed by army officers in Ireland, says:—"After the King had conferred with Lord Roberts the latter, acting on the request of the King, laid his views of the difficulty with the army before Colonel Seely (Secretary of State for War) and Field-Marshal Sir John French. The King, while maintaining a strictly constitutional attitude, made it clear to Ministers that with him lay the final appeal, and his Majesty counselled moderation without resort to desperate measures.

"The King," the paper adds, "had previously taken counsel with the moderate members of both parties."

The "Daily Chronicle" states that the King's action in the present crisis has been thoroughly constitutional. He has sought to restrain party passions in his role of impartial umpire and Grand Conciliator, and his one desire has been to see the achievement of an honourable and permanent settlement of the Irish question.

ARMY DICTATION.

Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Agriculture, in the course of an address in Cambridge, last night, said that had the Government given way at the dictation of the army officers it would have abandoned the cause of democracy more basely than if it had assumed the cloak of autocracy.

He added that those who had politically engineered the trouble would be the first to regret it if it taught the people to examine the whole organisation of the army.

"THE AWFUL SECRET."

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P. (Nationalist), in course of an article on the crisis in the "Sunday Freeman," Dublin, says:—"Colonel Seely's assurance to Brigadier-General Gough was written on Monday, and the Secretary of State for War attached such little importance to it that he did not tell Mr. Asquith about it until Tuesday.

"Mr. Lloyd George, when seen by a friend on Tuesday, was not aware of the communication, and was in high spirits over the magnificent way the Government had defined the position, and upheld the doctrine of Parliament's supremacy over the army.

"He went to a Cabinet Council later, and only then learned the awful secret. He immediately saw the abyss into which the Government was about to fall.

"Mr. Lloyd George, who is a man of prompt decision, saw immediately that the Government must repudiate the fatal surrender of all constitutional principles."

DOMINIONS AND THE CRISIS.

Mr. William Redmond, M.P. (Nationalist), in a letter to the "Westminster Gazette," says:—"The vast majority of the people in Australia, New Zealand, and Canada favour Home Rule. If the will of Parliament is to be set at naught it will cause the utmost indignation oversea."

Mr. Redmond asks: "How many officers resigned rather than aid Irish evictions?"

"A FATAL INSTRUMENT."

Viscount Esher, in reply to Sir J. A. Simon's advice that the army should be democratised, suggests that Lord Morley should present his colleague with a copy of his monograph on Cromwell.

He adds:—"A democratised conscript army—inasmuch as it is impossible to democratise a voluntary army like ours—would prove a powerful weapon fighting on the Continent of Europe, but it would be a fatal instrument for domestic use in the hands of a tyrannical Parliamentary majority, or those of some political swashbuckler."

COLONEL SEELY'S POSITION.

A persistent report is current that Mr. McKenna, Home Secretary, will succeed Colonel Seely, as Secretary of State for War.

GERMANY AND THE GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Harold Spender, journalist and author, speaking at Cambridge on Saturday night said he believed the German Government had kept the British Government informed of all orders for ammunition and rifles sent to firms in Germany by the rebels in Ulster.

Thus, he declared, Germany was a better friend to Great Britain than those so-called patriots.

"A SUPREME CRISIS."

Mr. F. E. Smith, M.P. (Unionist), speaking at a meeting of the Junior Imperial League, said that a supreme crisis had arisen which justified appealing from the despotism of a corrupt Parliament to the arbitrament of the sword. That alone justified the steps taken in Ulster for which the Unionist party and more than half of the representatives of England were responsible.

He scornfully repudiated the suggestion that the Unionists had tampered with the army.

BLUEJACKETS AND VOLUNTEERS.

The cruiser Foresight has relieved the Pathfinder in Belfast Lough.

During the stay of the latter vessel members of the Ulster Volunteer Signalling Corps, for practising purposes, exchanged numerous messages with the signallers on board, and when the Pathfinder left yesterday hearty messages were sent to and from the vessel.

WARSHIPS IN BANTRY BAY.

The second battle squadron of the Home Fleet has been ordered to Bantry Bay, County Cork, in pursuance of orders issued early in March.

NATIONALISTS ATTACK VOLUNTEERS.

A crowd of Nationalists attacked three Ulster volunteers at Carrick Hill, the Nationalist quarter of Belfast, yestedray.

The police eventually dispersed the Nationalists, but not before one of the volunteers had been so badly injured that he had to be taken to the hospital.

UNION DEFENCE LEAGUE FUND.

The Union Defence League fund now amounts to £70,000.

Mr. Walter Morrison, a former member of the House of Commons, has offered to subscribe £10,000 towards the fund to indemnify officers in the army who may be deprived of their pensions through refusing to serve in Ulster.

"WEAK, SMALL VOICE."

BITTER ATTACK ON LORD ROBERTS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Upwards of 1300 people attended a Home Rule celebration organised by the Celtic Club at Sorrento on Sunday, when several speeches were delivered, and a resolution in favour of Home Rule was carried with enthusiasm. Major T. McInerney, president of the Celtic Club, in the course of a speech, said "It is well to take note of the weak, small voice; small in volume, though pointed with venom, which is being heard, and which is being granted greater weight than that small voice of venom is entitled to. In the expressions of that venomous minority there are some names associated that personally I deplore to see there. One I had the pleasure of serving under in South Africa—Lord Roberts. I can only account for the extraordinary position in which he has placed himself by two explanations, which one is correct I cannot say; but I believe the second. The first is that he has become obsessed by malice and prejudice, and bigotry; and the second that he is suffering from senility and decay. That nobleman, in the course of his career has been an extremely fortunate man. He has obtained distinctions which all appreciate, and some envy, but there is in his career an element which makes his success good fortune. As an army officer, he has done his work, but there are many thousands who have done better work and achieved less result. His command in South Africa was the biggest mistake that had ever overtaken the army there. He was dramatic in his methods. He arranged the play and the dramatis personae with consummate skill, for the purpose of glorifying the feeble old man that he then was. The proclamations he issued prolonged the war for at least half the time it lasted. These proclamations, in addition to prolonging the war, meant the sacrifice of probably half the lives which were sacrificed in South Africa, during that campaign."

RAILWAY MEN.

NATIONAL UNION RECOGNISED.

CONFERENCE INVITATION.

LONDON, March 29.

The railway companies have appointed a committee to meet a committee from the executive of the National Union of Railwaymen to discuss the conditions of employment.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, M.P., assistant-general secretary of the union, speaking at Birmingham, said that this was the first definite recognition of the power and responsibility of the union, and the invitation would be accepted.

He remarked that the directors and managers of the railway companies were still largely the same as formerly, but the difference was that the union to-day was in a position to say that it spoke for the majority of the railway men.

The committee of the union would meet the companies in the spirit underlying the invitation, and he hoped that the result of the negotiations would be a scheme less cumbersome and more expeditious and effective than the present one. He also hoped that it would include absolute and complete recognition of the union.

Regarding the demand for an eight-hours' day, he said that he had always held the reduction of hours to be infinitely more important than the question of wages.

The demand for a minimum wage of 30s, he declared, was justifiable, but it would be madness to introduce such a proposal at the forthcoming negotiations.

Mr. Thomas warned the railway men that if they embarked on sympathetic strikes they would be involved in disputes almost daily.

BLACKMAIL.

SOCIALIST EDITOR'S CRIME.

EIGHTEEN MONTHS' IMPRISONMENT.

ROME, March 30.

Innocent Cicala, the editor of a Taranto newspaper, was sentenced to imprisonment for 18 months for blackmailing Dorothy M'Vane, the American prima donna.

It appeared from the evidence that Cicala, who is a socialist, needed funds for his candidature for a seat in Parliament, and he showed Miss M'Vane proofs of an article, which he declared was about to appear in Rome, accusing her of espionage in the interests of France. He pretended to defend her, and asked for £500 to enable him to suppress the article.

Miss M'Vane gave him all the ready money she had and a quantity of jewellery, and asked him to call next day for the balance.

Cicala called, as arranged, and was arrested in the presence of representatives of a number of other journals, who were concealed behind a screen.

A cable message in December stated that Miss M'Vane, who is the daughter of Professor M'Vane, of Harvard University, and was then singing in grand opera at Taranto, was suspected of espionage because she accidentally took a snapshot photograph of some masked batteries. Despite the assurances of the United States Ambassador that Miss M'Vane was not a spy, the police continued their surveillance, and threatened to arrest her if she attempted to leave Italy. The message added that Miss M'Vane attributed the persecution to which she had been subjected to a naval officer who fell in love with her, and who, on her refusing him, denounced her to the authorities.

ROCHETTE SCANDALS.

PARIS, March 29.

Stormy scenes marked yesterday's sitting of the Rochette Commission of Inquiry.

Several members have resigned from the commission, as they allege that a majority of the members are obviously endeavouring to minimise the responsibility of certain politicians in connection with the Rochette scandals.

OVERCOME BY FUMES.

TERRIBLE ALLEGATION AGAINST STRIKERS.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 29.

Four hundred workmen were overcome by fumes in a tobacco factory, and eighteen had to receive hospital treatment.

It is rumoured that strikers introduced chemical fumes to prevent strikebreakers working.

AERIAL ARMAMENTS.

THE BRITISH PROGRAMME.

LONDON, March 29.

The new military aerial programme provides for 326 aeroplanes of the usual type, and 10 air Dreadnoughts.

All will be completed by the autumn.

YORKSHIRE MINERS.

LONDON, March 29.

The miners' conciliation board arrived at a settlement of the South Yorkshire dispute, provided the notices were withdrawn.

The miners, however, decided not to suspend their notices pending the forthcoming conference, at which 120,000 men will be represented.

UNIVERSITY BOAT RACE.

THE FRENCH CHALLENGE.

LONDON, March 29.

In regard to the challenge from the Sorbonne (Paris) eight-oar crew to row the winners of the English University boat race, the Cambridge crew have intimated their willingness to meet the Frenchmen either this or next week.

WEEK-END CABLEGRAMS.

A SOUTH AFRICAN SERVICE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The week-end cable system with the United Kingdom has proved so acceptable to the public that the Postmaster-General (Mr. Wynne) has for some time past been endeavouring to extend it to other than European countries. Arrangements have now been completed by which week-end cablegrams can be sent to South Africa at a charge of 7d a word, with a minimum of 20 words. Cables must be in plain language, and not in code.

MEN OF ULSTER.

PREMIER'S REMARKS.

SHARP QUESTIONS.

AN APOLOGY DEMANDED.

As soon as the Legislative Assembly met yesterday afternoon the Premier was bombarded with questions bearing upon the speech made by him at the Irish Foresters' breakfast on Sunday morning, and the cablegram sent by him to Mr. John Redmond, as leader of the Nationalist party, upon the Home Rule question.

Mr. David Storey was the first to question the Premier's action. He asked if it was true that the Premier had sent the cablegram, the text of which appeared in the "Herald."

Following this, the member for Randwick said: "I wish to ask the Premier a straightforward question. What authority has the Premier to speak for the whole of Australia on the matter? Does he not know that there is a divided opinion in New South Wales on this question? If he has sent this cablegram, will he please send a further one, or a correction, notifying the fact that there is a divided opinion in this State? Did he speak on behalf of his Government when he sent the cable? If he did so, will he give the House an opportunity this week of discussing the question, and then officially send a cablegram to the Prime Minister on behalf of this State?" (Opposition cheers.)

The Premier, who was loudly cheered by the Ministerial side of the House when he rose to respond, said: "The question asked by the member for Randwick shows a complete misconception of my cablegram. Whatever I did yesterday I did as a private citizen of New South Wales, and whatever cablegram I sent I sent in my own name and at my own expense and on my own responsibility. (Ministerial cheers.) That cablegram has nothing to do with any member of this House. Whatever sentiments I expressed in it I am responsible only to my own constituents for, and to no one else. (Ministerial cheers.) I did not send the cablegram professing to speak with the authority of the House, or upon any authority I possess as the result of my connection with the public life of this State. Whatever I have done I take the full responsibility for. (Ministerial cheers.)

Mr. Wade: In view of the statement made by the Premier, that he sent the cablegram in his private capacity, and at his own expense, will he explain to the House how it appears in the press that the cable is sent by him as a public officer? (Opposition cheers.)

Mr. McGirr: I would like to ask the Premier if he has noticed a statement in the press to the effect that a Mr. Robinson is mobilising a force of 250,000 men in New South Wales, and can he acquaint the House of the place where the men are being mobilised, so that certain other members of the community may meet them with an adverse force before the expedition can be sent away? (Hear, hear.) Furthermore, knowing the loyalty to the King and the loyalty to the flag of the hon. member for Randwick (Mr. Storey), will he consult with that gentleman of Ulster so that accurate information can be obtained? (Hear, hear.) Has the Premier noticed in the papers that Mr. Robinson says that, if he had been in Cootamundra, he would have supported him at the last election? Furthermore, following out the precedent established by the Opposition benches, who to-day seem so hostile to breaking the peace in other countries, will he follow their South African example and send a force to Ireland to maintain law and order there?

The Premier asked for notice of the questions.

Mr. David Storey: Has the Premier noticed a report of his speech in the press, where he is reported to have said that there is plenty of room in Darlinghurst Gaol where certain Ulstermen can cool their heads and their heels? (Hear, hear.) I wish to ask the Premier whether he considers that that is the proper thing for the Premier of the State to say at any gathering? Further, will he have a return prepared showing the exact number of Ulstermen at present in Darlinghurst Gaol?

Mr. McGIRR: Has the Premier noticed that the member for Randwick is in fear and trembling of being numbered amongst those who are in danger of cooling their heads and heels? (Hear, hear). Is it not also a fact that a great number of those who are to-day endeavouring to disrupt the British law, and act contrary to the wishes of the British Government, are the very same people who endeavoured to prevent the late Queen from ascending the British Throne?

The Premier again asked for notice of the questions.

Colonel Onslow: When the Premier mentioned Darlinghurst Gaol, was he speaking in his private capacity or as Premier of New South Wales? In one instance he was speaking as Premier, and in another instance as a private member. I want to know when he began to speak as Premier and when he spoke as the private individual. (Opposition cheers.)

The Premier: My previous answer, if the hon. member did me the honour of listening to me, applied solely to the cablegram. The speech I made as Premier of the State. (Ministerial cheers.) The cable I sent to England was sent as a private citizen.

Mr. David Storey: Will the Premier, in the interests of good feeling, consider it advisable and right to apologise to the Ulstermen of New South Wales for the slight cast upon them?

The Premier: I will give that suggestion full consideration. (Laughter.)

FURTHER CRITICISM.

On the motion for the adjournment of the Legislative Assembly, the subject was returned to.

Colonel Onslow referred to the Premier's remarks, and had not proceeded far when he fell foul of Mr. M'Girr, and some uncomplimentary remarks were hurled across the floor of the House.

Colonel Onslow characterised the Premier's action in attending the banquet at St. Mary's Cathedral, and touching upon affairs in Ireland, as utterly wanting in decorum and political decency. If the Premier desired to inflame people's minds and fan the flame of religious bigotry, he had taken the proper course. If he threw down the glove, and issued a challenge, he would find many to take it up.

Mr. David Storey again sharply criticised the action of the Premier, and said it had been taken for contemptible purposes. Leaving party bigotry out of the question, he said that they all prayed that the trouble in Ireland would be solved without bloodshed. He considered that the Premier's action was deserving of the most serious censure, and that the Parliament should pass a motion, and forward it to the heart of the Empire, expressing the hope that a peaceful solution of the Ulster trouble would be arrived at. On behalf of the Ulstermen of the State, he protested against Mr. Holman's remarks concerning the men of Ulster and Darlinghurst Gaol. "In conclusion," said Mr. Storey, "I can assure Mr. Holman that he has not heard the last of the matter."

Mr. Henley also entered his protest against Mr. Holman's remarks.

Mr. Cann said that the Government had too much constitutional work to do to enter upon an academic discussion upon Home Rule. (Cheers.) He could assure them that they would not have an opportunity of discussing the matter in the House.

Mr. Storey: We will get the opportunity outside.

Mr. Cann argued that Mr. Holman had a perfect right to express his opinion upon the Home Rule question if he chose. He was certain that as far as Mr. Holman's cablegram was concerned, it would create no stir in the House of Commons, and if it were read he was quite sure that the House would not collapse. (Laughter.) Men sitting in the Parliament at Westminster were not likely to be swayed or to deviate in any way in their line of action by any motion passed here. It would have no weight whatever in England, and it would be only wasting time discussing it. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Fitzpatrick protested against the raising of sectarian questions in the House. It was useless discussing old-world troubles in Australia, for they had battles enough of their own to fight. (Cheers.) He believed that Mr. Holman had a perfect right to voice his opinion on the Home Rule question if he thought fit, but no good would be done in stirring up sectarian strife. (Cheers.)

Mr. Robson also protested against what he termed the Premier's impertinence in alluding to the matter as he did.

DUNTROON.

OFFICERS IN THE MAKING.

SIR IAN HAMILTON'S PRAISE.

(BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

DUNTROON, Monday.

Less than a hundred years ago the first white man climbed Mount Pleasant, and his vision comprehended the magnificent panorama which is now the site of the Federal Capital of Australia.

In 1825 Robert Campbell selected Duntroon, and the once historic homestead is now the headquarters of the Royal Military College of Australia.

There is no doubt that the future officers of the Commonwealth army impressed Sir Ian Hamilton very favourably. Their marching was splendid; their manoeuvring was faultless; they handled their rifles like a crack regiment of the line, and, what is more important, the work was done by the cadets themselves, the officers looking on. Col.-Sergt. Selby commanded the parade, the company commanders being Col.-Sergt. Broadbent, and Sergt. Irwin. There were 105 cadets in the two companies, and 40 of the new students just arrived at the college this year. The first batch of 40 cadets will shortly be turned out full-fledged officers. It is hoped they will, as Lord Kitchener intended, visit England or India to put the finishing touches on their training.

Sir Ian Hamilton was welcomed at Queanbeyan by Captain James, on behalf of General Bridges. He was accompanied by General Ellison, Lieut.-Colonel Patterson, and Major Ashmore. Sir Ian motored to Duntroon, and was introduced to the members of the staff. The ceremonial parade was followed by an inspection of the whole college, barracks, hospital, laboratories, and other buildings. At the conclusion of his inspection Sir Ian Hamilton expressed himself particularly pleased with the college and the cadets. "They are a fine lot physically," he said. "The march past could not have been better. They have every chance to learn their profession thoroughly. I wish I had had such a chance when I was their age."

In the afternoon the cadets and officers repaired to the gymnasium for the annual prize-giving. General Bridges presided, and Sir Ian Hamilton presented the prizes to the successful students.

Sir Ian Hamilton unveiled, amid enthusiasm, a portrait of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, and read a message from his Highness wishing every success to the college. "His Royal Highness commands me to say that as an addition to the photographs he sends his very best wishes for the success of the Military College, and hopes that it will ever maintain the excellent tone and efficiency which distinguishes it at this moment, and which is so essential if the college is to carry out its very important duties of educating the mind, the body, and the character of the rising generation in Australia in the best traditions of Imperialism."

Addressing the cadets particularly, Sir Ian said: "It is a great privilege to unveil this portrait of one of the most charming and chivalrous personages in the Empire. I succeeded him at Malta. I write to him occasionally, and I will now send him a letter telling him of the cordial greeting with which his present was received. (Applause.)

"I see before me," continued the Inspector-General, "the future officers of the army of Australia and New Zealand. The chief fascination of the glorious career of arms is that it brings you into close human relationship with the great mass of the people in a way that nothing else in the world can possibly do. If you boys cannot command respect you are no use as officers, but you must exact it; and how, in this democratic Australia, where everyone rightly thinks he is as good as anyone else, or better—(laughter)—until he is shown differently—how can you command this respect? You can do so in three ways. First, by intellectual superiority. You must show the men that every subject you take in hand you know it better than they know it. You must let them see that you know your job. Most important of all, you must continually remember that the obedience paid you by the rank and file is not paid personally, but to you in your capacity as the servant of the State and the humble vehicle of its wishes. You only express what you conceive to be the will of the Government of the State. Let me implore you to remember and stick to that throughout your career. When you give a command you are the voice, the mouthpiece of the State, conveying, not your own wishes, but what you conceive to be the supreme will of the people to the men temporarily placed at your disposal by the Government of the land. All soldiers are servants of the public. To some have been entrusted the function of command, and to others that of obedience. Then, no matter how democratic the country is, the men will give you the respect you deserve, and follow you anywhere."

Concluding, the Inspector-General said: "Physically, you cadets are a fine lot. You look happy; you drill extremely well; you have a magnificent country to work and serve. The college is better than any military college I have ever seen. I hope you will make the best use of your opportunities, and rise high, not only in the Australian and New Zealand service, but in the service of the Empire." (Cheers.)

THE EXPLOSION.

UPPER HUTT DISASTER.

SEVEN LIVES LOST.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

The Governor has telegraphed a message of deepest sympathy with the relatives of those who lost their lives in the disaster at Upper Hutt.

Subscription lists have been opened. No further deaths have occurred.

The explosion is described as a deafening roar. Those in the immediate vicinity who escaped death or serious injuries were knocked down and stunned. One man saw the roof open up like the petals of a flower, and then a spout of flame shot up into the air with an incredible roar.

Through all the front of the building, over a sector of 90 degrees, there was hurled a deadly rain of flying debris, sheets of iron, broken glass, big verandah posts, heavy scantlings, and hosts of minor fragments.

The side of the Provincial Hotel, next door, was knocked out of plumb, and several of its timbers were smashed.

A window sash-weight was hurled across the street and driven through an inch and a half plank. A scantling, 5 x 4, over 6ft long, struck a galvanised iron shed 50 yards away, across a vacant section. Windows were broken nearly half a mile away.

The remains of Constable Mahoney, who had been a moving spirit in getting salvage-workers out of the burning building, were the last to be discovered, nearly six hours after the explosion. His dog ventured among the smoking ruins and indicated that he had found all that remained of his master.

The storekeepers state that the only explosives on the premises consisted of a small quantity of gunpowder and two cases of benzine.

Everard Pelling, who was injured in the fire, has died, making the seventh fatality.

"CRIED OFF."

AMERICAN CRICKET TOUR.

WHY IT WAS ABANDONED.

Some weeks ago Mr. Austin Diamond, who was organising a team of Australian cricketers to tour America and Canada, under the management of Mr. R. B. Benjamin, received a cablegram from the latter, stating that the tour had been abandoned.

Mr. Diamond was surprised, especially as the cable did not state any reason for Mr. Benjamin's action. By yesterday's American mail, however, he received a letter from Mr. Benjamin, stating that he had "cried off" the tour because some members of the last team had written to various parts of America and Canada, informing the clubs that the Australian Board of Control had refused to give permission for the tour to take place, and that Mr. Benjamin was bringing a lot of unknown players. The result was that three of the centres withdrew their guarantee, and then the tour was cancelled. Mr. Benjamin states that he is done with Australian cricket tours for the future, and that it will be many years before a team will pay its way like the last one which visited America.

The statement that the Australian Board of Control had refused its permission for an Australian team to tour America and Canada is not in accordance with fact, as when Mr. Diamond received the cable cancelling the tour the delegates of the board were considering the matter, and what their ultimate decision would have been will never be known.

FROZEN MEAT.

MEN REFUSE TO HANDLE CARGO.

REFERENCE IN COURT.

CURIOUS POSITION.

JUDGE DEMANDS OBEDIENCE.

There was a new development yesterday morning in connection with the refusal of Sydney wharf-labourers to load frozen meat until such time as the price of meat to local consumers dropped to a normal level.

The White Star liner Medic was the only ship in port affected. A cargo of frozen rabbits was consigned for the chambers of this vessel, but the wharf-labourers refused to handle this portion of the Medic's cargo.

The hearing of the Waterside Workers' Federation case was continued at Darlinghurst yesterday. When the case was called on Mr. Storey, who represented the oversea shipping companies, notified Mr. Justice Higgins of the decision arrived at by the Sydney wharf-labourers last week. He asked what position the Court stood in with regard to the matter.

Mr. W. M. Hughes, who is conducting the case for the men, told his Honor that there was no need for the Court to concern itself with the matter. The executive of the federation had already ordered the men to go on with the work, and he had no doubt the matter was already at an end.

His Honor said he was sorry to hear any talk of complications at that stage, but was glad to hear what Mr. Hughes had said.

After the luncheon adjournment, Mr. Storey again interposed a reference to the matter. He read a letter from the White Star Company, which stated that the Medic was loading meat at the Pyrmont wharf up to 5 o'clock on Saturday last, when the men were notified to bring their clothes and be ready for the same work at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. That morning, however, when the frozen cargo, consisting of rabbits, was to be shipped, and the meat gang was asked to take off the hatch, they refused to do so. In consequence of the statement made to the Court by Mr. Hughes, the company had applied to the union office at 2 o'clock for men. They were, however, informed by Mr. Morgan, the vigilance officer of the union, that he had no information of any alteration in the position, and the company could not get any men to load the rabbits.

Mr. Hughes: I do not know anything at all about that. All I do know is that when the adjournment took place at 1 o'clock to-day, I spoke to Mr. Woods (secretary of the union), who said he had instructed another man to make quite sure that the men obeyed the order of the executive.

Mr. Woods then said that Mr. Morgan was not in the office when he went there himself. There were several men there, however, and he told them it was decided to work frozen meat. "Just before 2 o'clock," concluded Mr. Woods, "I notified Mr. Morgan, and told him the men had to work frozen meat."

His Honor: I am very anxious to hear how the matter stands before I adjourn the case to-day. I am going to have no blowing hot and cold on this matter.

Just before the adjournment for the day, Mr. Storey, acting upon Mr. Hughes' suggestion, said he had telephoned to the White Star Company, who had replied that they had seen Mr. Morgan, and his only reply was that he had been too busy to attend to the matter. "This," said Mr. Storey, "is a big ship, your Honor, and the matter is one of the utmost importance."

Mr. Hughes: That is an impossible position. I cannot condone or excuse such an attitude. There is no question of anybody being too busy to attend to this matter.

His Honor: I can now only say that, as I have only heard one side of the case, I shall expect both sides to be prepared to put facts before me to-morrow before we go on with this case. I shall want to have something definite to show that this union can control its membership, so as to carry out its understanding with me.

When spoken to after the Court rose, Mr. Woods said there was no doubt the men would obey the instructions of their executive.

PREMIER APPROACHED.

GOVERNMENT ACTION DEMANDED.

One over-sea company has addressed the Premier on the matter, and attention is privately drawn to the ill-effects of this action on an important branch of Australian export trade. The action of the lumpers in this connection is described as childish and illogical. It has been pointed out to Mr. Holman that the action of the lumpers must, of necessity, entail much hardship alike on shippers and shipowners, who are endeavouring to carry out their contracts. The Premier has been asked to take a hand, and it has been pointed out that it is unfair that, while responsibilities are being carried out in conformity with the laws of the State, a serious handicap should be imposed by a class of worker who makes no excuse for breaking laws made for all and sundry.

The company in question hopes Mr. Holman will decide that circumstances are such as warrant the taking of immediate steps, calculated to permit of business being carried on without such illegal and undue interference as now imposed, and that an industry, which may be lost by these interferences, will by remedial action be retained. The company states that it feels confident that Mr. Holman and his colleagues will see that the law of the country is upheld, and that shippers of frozen meat and shipowners, who are working loyally under all the decisions of the Arbitration Court, will get due assistance from the Government.

INDIGNATION AT MELBOURNE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

In connection with the decision of the Sydney Wharf-labourers' Union not to handle frozen meat for export on account of the increase in the price of meat, there is so far no possibility of the trouble extending to Melbourne. Officials of the Export Workers' Union express indignation at the attitude adopted by the Sydney wharf-labourers. They point out that any refusal to handle frozen meat would throw members of their union out of employment. It is further contended that, before deciding upon action which affects another industry so directly, the workers engaged in that industry should be first consulted.

FREE TRAVELLING.

SCHOOL CHILDREN AND THE RAILWAYS.

QUESTIONS IN PARLIAMENT.

In the State Legislative Assembly last evening Mr. Henley asked whether it was correct, as stated in the press, that the Government was about to consider a proposal to provide free travelling on the railways for scholars attending the Roman Catholic schools.

If this were so, added Mr. Henley, would it apply to children travelling past a public school, and would it apply to children attending all denominational schools?

"Is this one of the reforms the Government is considering with a view of making the railways pay?" he asked in conclusion.

Mr. Holman said the matter was under consideration by his colleagues and himself. The precise form that it would take had not yet been decided on. Whatever was granted would be granted to all private schools of all denominations.

ALLEGED BRIBERY.

CASE DISMISSED.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

At the Malvern Court to-day Constable Oswald Victor Simpson was charged with having taken a pecuniary bribe to forego his duty. The case was dismissed.

CURIOUS STRIKE.

STATE TIMBER YARDS.

THREE HUNDRED MEN STOP WORK.

The State Timber Yards at Uhr's Point, which have been working double shifts since the fire of a few weeks ago, were unexpectedly thrown idle yesterday, the result being that 300 men adjourned to the Trades Hall to discuss the position.

On Saturday morning a new regulation was put into force whereby the gates were to be locked punctually at 7.30 a.m. Workmen arriving late would, it was explained, be admitted, but they would lose a quarter of an hour's pay.

Yesterday it so happened that the train which conveys the bulk of the men was a little late, with the result that the men arrived just two or three minutes after the gate had been closed. Rather than lose a quarter of an hour's pay they went home, and about 30 others (local men), who had got there in time followed them homewards.

What was done was quite spontaneous, the officials of the unions concerned knowing nothing until the stoppage had been duly reported to them by delegates.

During the afternoon the position was reviewed at the meeting of the men, held at the Trades Hall.

A deputation, including the secretaries of different unions that were affected, could not see the Minister for Works, who was in hospital, but saw officials, who had had a telephone conversation with Mr. Griffith.

Mr. D. E. Black (electrical trades secretary) told the meeting subsequently that the view of the department was that the men who arrived after 7.30 a.m. were not locked out, but would merely be docked for the time intervening until 7.45 a.m.

The chairman said the men had passed a resolution that they had been locked out.

Mr. Black remarked that the men would be strikers if on the following day the works were open to them and they should not start. Mr. Griffith had sent word that there could be no conference until the men went back. Mr. Allan, of the Works Department, was distinctly against giving any back pay.

"But don't you think," said Mr. Black, "that the unions concerned have sufficient influence with the Government to get you justice?"

"No, no," cried a good section of the meeting.

"Well," Mr. Black rejoined, "I think we can get you a quarter of an hour's grace to allow for the late running of the train."

It was reported that earlier in the discussion a motion had been carried to the effect that the men were locked out, and that they be paid full time until reinstated.

To leave the meeting free to deal with the delegates' report, this motion was formally rescinded.

A proposition was put,—"That if our wrongs are rectified in seven days we resume on Tuesday."

The meeting voted in favour of this by 88 votes to 77, but the chairman indicated that there was a further amendment, of which the secretary, Mr. Tate, had given notice.

Mr. Tate's amendment was seconded by Mr. Geary, and thereupon carried by an overwhelming majority, as follows:—

"That we, the employees of Uhr's Point State Timber Yards, present ourselves for employment to-morrow (Tuesday), and that a deputation from this meeting confer with the board of directors on the question of redressing our grievances."

The secretary explained that if the gates should be locked against them the following day they could go home again, but if they were not prepared to accept work, if offered on the terms as obtaining on the Monday, they would be in the position of strikers.

The men will now return to work this morning, leaving by the usual 6.47 a.m. train from the Central Railway Station. A claim will be made by the men for Monday on the ground that they were locked out.

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

TOBACCO COMPANY'S SCHEME.

SHARES FOR EMPLOYEES.

The inauguration of a profit-sharing and co-partnership scheme, similar to that already established by Lever Bros., Ltd., and the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, Ltd., is proposed by the directors of the British Tobacco Company (Australasia), Ltd., but is subject to the confirmation of the shareholders at a meeting to be held in May.

At a meeting of the employees of the company held last evening, Mr. W. E. Shaw, managing director, stated that the company had for some time past been considering the question of adopting some scheme of profit-sharing, embodying the principles of co-partnership, for the benefit of the employees, so as to secure to them a share in the profits of the business. With the object of obtaining the latest information on the subject, full inquiries had been instituted in England last year, and as a result the directors proposed a scheme which they felt sure would create between employer and employee that spirit of partnership which was so important a factor in industrial developemnt. The approval of the shareholders would, however, first have to be obtained.

"The company," Mr. Shaw stated, "has made arrangements to allocate a portion of the profits made for the past year by the British-Australasian Tobacco Co. Ppy., Ltd., W. D. and H. O. Wills (Australia), Ltd., the States Tobacco Co. Ppy., Ltd., Kronheimer, Ltd., and the Australian Tobacco Co., Ltd., with a view of purchasing therewith at par and presenting to the employees of such companies 'ordinary' shares of British Tobacco Company (Australia), Limited. These 'ordinary' shares will be in exactly the same position as all 'ordinary' shares of the company, and will secure to the shareholders the same dividends that are payable to ordinary shareholders as well as equal capital rights. The shares referred to, however, cannot be sold, disposed of, transferred, or otherwise dealt with until five years after their issue to the employees; but provision will be made for their realisation in the case of the death of any employee. The shares will be held in trust by trustees to be appointed, who will pay to the respective employees the dividends as declared on the shares held in trust for them. After the lapse of five years, an employee may, if he so desire, give instructions to dispose of such shares as have been held for not less than five years on his or her behalf, and the proceeds of the sale would be handed to him or her. The actual amount which will be available for distribution under this scheme, and complete details, will be announced at the general meeting of the British Tobacco Company (Australia), Limited, at Sydney in May next; but it may be stated that it is estimated that the amount will be about £30,000, with which about 30,000 shares will be purchased by the trustees for the employees.

"Of those who will be in the service of the company at the issue of shares, the following will be eligible to participate in the distribution, viz.:—(a) All male and female employees who on January 31, 1914, were over 21 years of age, and had completed two years' continuous service in the employ of the above-mentioned companies at Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, or Perth; (b) all female employees who, being under 21 years of age on January 31st, 1914, had completed on that date four years' continuous service in the employ of any of the above-mentioned companies at the above centres; (c) all employees of Kronheimer, Limited, Adelaide, who have fulfilled the conditions as to age and service mentioned in (a) or (b); (d) all employees of the British Australasian Tobacco Company Ppy., Limited, Adelaide, who have been or may be transferred to Melbourne or Sydney, and who remain in their new positions for not less than three months, and who have fulfilled the conditions as to age and service mentioned in (a) or (b).

"The shares will be an actual gift to the employees, and will be free of all conditions other than the restriction of the right of sale for five years and the vesting of the shares in the trustees on their behalf, and in estimating the proportion of shares to be allotted to any individual the salary or wages actually earned will be the basis, but any excess over £250 per annum will be disregarded. The directors hope that the prosperity of the company will permit them to make some further distribution in succeeding years."

Mr. Shaw added that a further statement would be made after the meeting of shareholders took place.

THE NEW TAXES.

THE INCOME TAX.

II.

(BY R. CLIVE TEECE.)

The proposal to tax the resident in the State on the interest of a mortgage of land outside the State will also work another grave injustice by unfairly handicapping our local financial institutions in competition with their foreign rivals. According to this proposal, financial institutions incorporated here—such as the Bank of New South Wales, for instance—will be liable to pay income tax on the interest of money lent on mortgage of land in the other States of the Commonwealth and in New Zealand. On the other hand, an English bank (such as the Australasia) or a Victorian bank (such as the Royal or the National of Australasia), not being "resident in the State," will not have to pay taxation in respect of similar mortgages. On what principle can this discrimination be justified? Its most obvious effect is seriously to handicap the local institution in its competition with the foreign company. Most of us were glad to observe that Mr. Holman had returned from his trip abroad with wiser and more chastened views as to the policy of penalising the absentee. But we were scarcely prepared for such a complete change of front. Apparently, now he believes in penalising the local person or institution in favour of the absentee.

A further injustice will also be inflicted on the mortgagee of land outside the State by another amendment of the present Act contained in the bill now before the House. According to this proposal the present Act is to be amended by confirming the deductions which a taxpayer may make in respect of outgoings, etc., to "losses, outgoings, and expenses actually incurred in New South Wales." In the result, a man who derives his income from a mortgage of land or any other investment in the State can deduct his outgoings and expenses incurred here in the production of his income; while he who derives any part of his income from the mortgage of land in Victoria can make no deductions in respect of such outgoings and expenses in Victoria—where, of course, they will practically all be incurred. He will have to pay a tax assessed practically on his gross income. The position has only to be stated to show the gross injustice wrought by this provision.

4. Another extraordinary provision of the bill is that "if the principal taxpayer is a resident out of the State, and is entitled to income from the complete or partial performance in the State of any contract wheresoever made," the tax on such income shall also be payable by any person paying such income to the principal taxpayer. This section is a corollary to the section which says that "money payable for the complete or partial performance in the State of any contract, wherever made," is to be regarded as income derived from a source in the State.

The absurd results which will follow from the combined efforts of these two sections may be illustrated by the following example. A Sydney merchant orders, through his agent in London, from an English manufacturer, a consignment of goods at a certain price c.i.f., the goods to be delivered in Sydney, and the money payable in London. That purchase being a contract completely or partially performed in Sydney, the price is income within the meaning of the bill. As the manufacturer, the principal taxpayer, is resident out of the State, the Sydney merchant is liable to pay the tax on that "income." And he will never be able to recover the tax from the English manufacturer, for as the latter is resident in England and as the contract was made, and the price is payable there, the English manufacturer is not bound by the legislation of our Parliament. The transaction I have used in my illustration is one of the most common of our commercial life, and the result of this proposed legislation has only to be stated to show the absurdity and injustice of the tax. This is only one illustration of the unjust way in which the tax will operate. Hundreds more could easily be given.

5. The bill also proposes to take away from the man who carries on a business on land owned by himself, the right to make a deduction equal to 5 per cent. of the unimproved value of the land, and 5 per cent. of the value of the improvements used by him for the purpose of his business. The object of this deduction was, of course, to put the man who owns the land, on which he carries on his business, on equal terms with one who carries on a business on land leased by him for that purpose. The latter is allowed to deduct from his taxable income the amount of rent paid by him. The former having no payment of rent to deduct, and also being unable to get interest on the capital represented by his land, was, under the Act of 1912, allowed this 5 per cent. deduction. And the result was, as stated above, to put him on even terms with the man who leased his business premises. But with the right to make this deduction taken away, the business man who owns his business premises will be handicapped in competition with him who leases such premises. One would have thought that he who owns his land would have been favoured rather than penalised. He is much more likely to be a better and more settled citizen than the lessee. The latter is often a bird of passage who, in a crisis, can pack up his traps and leave the country. But the man who owns land in the State is thereby tied here, and, therefore, more likely to stay and defend the State in the hour of danger. As such he is surely deserving of better treatment.

BREACH OF PROMISE.

£400 DAMAGES.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The action was concluded in the County Court to-day in which May Cecily Gourlay sued Vere Herbert Casey, St. James's-buildings, Melbourne, legal manager, claiming £499 damages for breach of promise of marriage. Defendant was further examined. He said it was not true that plaintiff paid for deck chairs, dinners, or tram rides.

The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff, and awarded £400 damages. Judgment was entered accordingly.

At the request of counsel for the defence, Judge Box granted a stay of proceedings for seven days.

OVERCROWDING.

SERIOUS STATE OF AFFAIRS.

"Revelations have been made public this afternoon which are horrifying. I know of one house in Surry Hills that contains seven rooms. In one room there live the tenant and his wife; in a second room a man, his wife, and an 18-year-old daughter; in another room a man and woman and five children; in a fourth room two children, with their mother and father; and in the fifth room a man and wife and five children. The remaining two rooms are let." The statement was made by the Rev. Varcoe Cock at the annual meeting of the Sydney Medical Mission in St. James's Hall yesterday afternoon, over which Mr. H. Budden presided.

"I know of 14 adults and several children living in a house of five rooms. The frontage of that house is only 9ft. With such a state of affairs existing it must mean moral degradation and physical deterioration. I am not surprised that brutality, drunkenness, and wickedness exist in such surroundings, and that the most vicious crimes are committed. I am not surprised that unhappiness exists. A vast deal of good is being done by the Sydney Medical Mission. There is room for such mission, and there is room for far greater extension. Sydney is growing and spreading. And the more the people of Sydney contribute to this mission, the greater will be its good and the larger the field will they be able to cover."

Dr. Ettie Lyons, the medical superintendent, made startling disclosures in her statement. During the year 2112 visits were paid to homes of patients; there were 5656 attendances at the dispensary, 1962 patients treated at their homes, 984 patients treated at the dispensary. Dr. Susie O'Reilly treated 149 patients, while there were 229 attendances at the dispensary; and Dr. Thornett (eye specialist) treated 23 patients at the dispensary, while 49 patients were seen at the private rooms for the mission.

Dr. Lyons said she would give an outline of her work of that morning alone. The first patient was at Woolloomooloo, in a house of four rooms, which were clean, and in which a family of eight resided. Then she went to Darlinghurst, where the patient, a woman, had been ill for a long time. There were three children, the eldest being 9 years. This child managed the house, got the meals for the family, and looked after the two other children and the sick mother. Other cases were mentioned, including a number of very old women who were suffering from acute rheumatism and who lived alone.

Dr. Rennie referred to the need for financial assistance. He could not emphasise sufficiently what the mission stood for, and the need for assistance, both in money and gifts in kind.

The report and balance-sheet were adopted.

INCOME TAX BILL.

RULED OUT.

ILL-STARRED TAXATION MEASURES.

THE SECOND WITHDRAWAL.

Disaster continues to dog the footsteps of the State Government's additional taxation proposals, and last night, in the Legislative Assembly, the second measure of the kind that has been brought forward by Ministers was ruled out of order and withdrawn.

The first measure to meet a summary fate at the hands of the Speaker (Mr. R. D. Meagher) was the Land Supertax Bill, introduced a few weeks ago by Mr. Trefle, a point of order taken by Mr. Cohen being upheld. When the Income Tax Acts Amending Bill came before the House the other evening Mr. Cohen raised critical objections to it, on the ground mainly that besides extra taxation it proposed extraneous amendments of Acts which were not of a taxing character, such as the Public Service Act; and the Speaker, while greatly impressed with the cogency of the point raised by the member for Petersham, tentatively ruled the bill in order till he could look more thoroughly into the matter. Mr. Wade followed up the matter last night, and on the second reading of the bill contended that it was out of order, as it sought to do in committee of ways and means what could not be done, namely, alter a non-taxation Act of Parliament.

In a clear and weighty ruling the Speaker upheld the point of order, a decision which came rather as a shock to the Ministers present, the Premier (Mr. Holman) and the Attorney-General (Mr. Hall) having ere this left on their way to attend the Premiers' Conference in Melbourne.

The ruling was received with loud laughter by Opposition members, one of whom cried out, "Next, please." This knocking out of two of their vital measures one after the other may possibly have a disturbing effect upon the Government intentions regarding the length of the current special session. The Supertax Bill is not to make a reappearance during the session. Whether it was a prescience of the fate that overtook the first measure he has attempted to pilot through the House for the Government or not that disconcerted Mr. Hoyle, he was ill at ease in proposing the second reading, and his outline was extremely meagre.

A considerable amount of taxation was expected to be raised under the Income Tax Amending Bill. Exactly how much the Government expect to raise under it, the Premier and Treasurer, Mr. Holman, professed to be unable to say when the direct question was put by Mr. Wade early in the sitting. The discussion on the second reading of the bill was followed by members with the greatest interest.

Mr. Hoyle, in moving the second reading of the Income Tax (Further Amendment) Bill, said the reason given by the late Government when the tax was taken off was that they had more money than they knew what to do with, and that having a surplus they found it necessary to reduce taxation. He tried at that time to make it clear to them that, instead of taking off taxation, it was their duty to look ahead.

Mr. Waddell: That is not so. We considered that in good times it was our duty to relieve the country where possible from taxation, but always reserving the right to reimpose taxes in bad times. (Opposition cheers.)

Mr. Hoyle said that, whilst they had had a large revenue, it had cost the Labour Government more to get that revenue than it had cost any other Government during the last six or ten years. It was on account of the previous Government's cutting down in the departments and in public works, and neglecting to do certain works, that the present Government had been compelled to spend these large sums. They had to raise additional revenue to meet the expenditure made necessary through the neglect of the previous Government. He defied members opposite to name one piece of extravagance that could be laid at the doors of the present Government. They could not do it during the elections, and they could not do it now. Was it extravagance to raise the salaries and wages of the Government employees? Was it a waste of public money to erect hospitals to treat their sick? Was it a waste to put up new schools, and so provide for the children's education? They had decided to reduce the exemption in the income tax from £300 to £250, and this would fall on those receiving the smaller salaries. But they also provided for an exemption of £50 for every child under 18 years of age. That exemption was not provided by any other Government in Australia. Never yet had any proposal for additional taxation met with such little opposition as did the proposals of the present Government.

EXPLANATIONS SOUGHT.

Opposition members asked for explanations of various portions of the bill, and the Minister, after a lengthy search among his papers, said he could not lay his hand upon the information asked for, but that the fullest explanation of the different clauses would be given in committee. This caused great merriment among the Opposition, and other questions, intricately framed, were hurled at the Minister without eliciting any definite answers.

FARES AND FREIGHTS.

Coming to clause 17, the Minister found himself on firmer ground, and explained, in answer to Mr. Cohen, that the Government intended to follow the example of certain other States, and levy upon the outward fares and freights raised by shipping companies. They also intended to tax entertainers.

Mr. Grimm: Not Harry Lauder surely? (Laughter.)

Mr. Hoyle: Yes, he will have to pay; so also will boxers and others who take large sums from the public.

With this rather bald explanation of such an important measure, Mr. Hoyle resumed his seat, repeating as he did so that further information would be available for the House when the committee stage was reached.

MR. WADE'S PROTEST.

Mr. Wade protested against the way in which the bill was presented to the House. While making every allowance for the Minister, and the difficulty of explaining intricate measures, he thought that the House was entitled to more information and a more detailed analysis of the measure. He also entered an emphatic protest against the attempt made by the Ministry to embody matters of policy in taxation bills. "Take clause 13," said Mr. Wade. "That embodies an entirely new principle. We are asked to consent to a bill to amend the income tax law, but, besides the amendment of the law, we find that it includes some entirely novel and dangerous features. Under the guise of a taxation measure the House is being asked to agree to a proposal revolutionising the principle and the policy of the State with regard to the Public Service.

A GRAVE DEPARTURE.

"This is a grave departure," added Mr. Wade, "and opens up an entirely new feature, and introduces us to proposals outside the authority which the committee gave when it consented to the introduction of the bill. I protested against the attempt made by the Ministry on another occasion, and, if this attempt is persisted in, it must lead to complications and constitutional difficulties when the bill passes from this Chamber. Taxation or money bills, when they pass from this House to another place, cannot be either amended or rejected, but the Legislative Council, as a constituent part of the Parliament of this State, has a right to deal with questions of policy if the Ministry embody them in taxation measures. Such a proceeding is inviting members of another branch of the Legislature to stultify themselves by accepting the bill in globo against their strong convictions, or else rejecting it in toto, and so raise a false cry that some wrong is being done to the Constitution. The Ministry has that before its eyes. The same thing was done with the Super Tax Bill, and, in spite of the Speaker's decision in that case, another attempt is being made to flout Parliamentary law. The Ministry will only have themselves to blame if the clock is put back a little, and the prorogation delayed for some days." (Opposition cheers.)

A RANK INJUSTICE.

Continuing, Mr. Wade said the Government proposed going outside the boundaries of the State in order to make a taxpayer living in New South Wales pay a tax on income derived in respect to mortgages on land anywhere outside the boundaries of the State. The principle was absolutely novel. Not only was it unjustifiable, but, if persisted in, was going to do manifest harm to trade and commerce of New South Wales. At the present moment a person who drew income from New South Wales, but who lived outside its boundaries, was classed as an absentee, and penalised by a super tax. His effort in the past had been to prove that he lived in New South Wales, and so escape the tax, but if this clause became law there would be a movement on their part to try and prove that they lived outside the State. English and foreign companies with interests in the State of New South Wales, if this clause were persisted in, would escape the taxation it was proposed to levy upon local companies. This showed the want of thought and the incapacity of the persons who drafted the bill. A bank or corporation located in New South Wales would have first of all to pay a tax in the State where it was earning money, and then another tax to New South Wales. The whole thing was a rank injustice. People would withdraw money from the adjoining State, and this was surely an unfriendly act and a violation of the Constitution.

MR. WADDELL'S OBJECTIONS.

Mr. Waddell said that if he felt that there would be no more taxation from the Federal authorities he would look more favourably upon the present proposal, provided it was knocked into decent shape. He criticised the incidence of the measure, and said it was tax retrospective, so that the income earned in other countries, and to make the proposed tax retrospective, so that the income earned last year could be taxed. There was no provision which would tend more to shake the confidence of producers in the country than the knowledge that there was a Government in power which was prepared to go back even 12 months and raise taxes upon earnings. (Opposition cheers.) The proposed impost justified the predictions of the Liberal party that the lavish expenditure of the Government would lead to fresh taxation. On no occasion had he heard a Government supporter mention economy. Every time a request was made for expenditure it was granted, and at the same time the general taxpayers had to suffer. (Opposition cheers.)

WORKS PROGRAMME.

Mr. Waddell incidentally alluded to the list of works which Mr. Griffith has given notice of. The vast majority of the new proposals, he said, which were read by the Minister for Works the other evening would not pay, but he did not care. The whole thing was absurd when it was remembered that the Government could go on with duplication works, which would return a handsome profit. The money which the Government hoped to raise by means of the new taxation was partly needed to finance a Civil Service superannuation scheme. It was absolutely wrong for the farmers of the State to be called upon to pay more money to well-paid Civil servants.

A Ministerial Member: Your leader spoke in favour of a superannuation scheme on the hustings.

Mr. Waddell: While in this Chamber I am master of my own actions, and if I thought that a superannuation scheme would mean undue, excessive taxation, I would not vote for it, no matter who introduced it. I would rather leave this House. I am as anxious to see Civil servants properly paid as anybody, but there is a limit beyond which we cannot go. (Opposition cheers.) This class can unite and put any Government in or out of office." (Opposition cheers.)

LIMIT TO TAXATION.

There was a limit, proceeded Mr. Waddell, to taxation, even on education. Incidentally he wished to refute a statement that the late Government starved the country schools. There had been a great deal more expenditure within the metropolis on schools than was necessary during the reign of the present Government, and he thought they had reached the limit. It was possible to overdo this sort of thing, and cram the heads of children with knowledge that in the vast majority of cases would never be of use to them. If the majority of young Australians left school at the age of 15, and engage in the pursuits for which they were suited, it would be a great deal better for the children and for their future.

POINT OF ORDER.

Mr. Cohen raised the point of order that the bill as introduced was contrary to the resolution passed by the Committee of Ways and Means, inasmuch as amendments of Acts were foreshadowed in the bill which were not mentioned when the resolution was discussed by the committee.

Mr. Cann urged that the Speaker should not give such a cramped interpretation as would compel the Government to cite every instance or clause or amendment that was incidental to the new legislation.

Mr. Wade emphasised the distinction that had to be drawn between taxation measures as such and bills containing other matters which had no bearing upon the raising of the taxes, though they might be useful with regard to carrying out the taxation proposal. The resolution submitted to the Committee of Ways and Means authorised the raising of taxation and nothing else. To introduce such a radical alteration in policy as an amendment of the Public Service Act could not be said to be in accordance with the resolution passed by the Committee of Ways and Means. If that were accepted a Ministry might tack on to a taxation bill such a proposal as one to abolish the Legislative Council, or something that was entirely foreign to the bill, and then force the Legislative Council to accept the bill as it stood or reject it.

SPEAKER'S RULING.

The Speaker said:—The bill before me mentions various Acts which it is proposed to amend, viz., the Public Service Act, 1902, the Mesne Process Act, 1902, the Income Tax Act, 1911, the Income Tax Act, 1912, and the Income Tax Act (Amendment) Act, 1912. Before looking at the basic principles by which the functions of the two Houses are governed, I again looked at the message by which the bill was referred to the Committee of Ways and Means. Looking at the message brought down on March 12, I see that his Excellency asked the House to endorse the expediency of amending the Income Tax Act, 1911, the Income Tax Act, 1912, and the Income Tax Act (Amendment), 1912, and for other purposes. The message in no way touches the other two Acts, viz., the Public Service Act and the Mesne Process Act, and comes before us as endorsing a taxation bill. The resolution was divided into three parts, all of which deal with the bill and matters incidental to the bill. Upon that resolution I was asked to give a decision, and to say if certain Acts were sui generis, so to speak. I gave my ruling, and reserved certain points for further consideration.

PRECEDENTS SOUGHT.

"I have," added the Speaker, "since read the bill, and endeavoured to find, by searching round, as far as possible, if any other taxation measure embodying amendments of other Acts of Parliament has ever been introduced under similar circumstances. I have asked the Clerk of the House to turn up the taxation proposals for many years past, and he has done so from the year 1875 down to the Stamp Duties Act 1912, and I can find no bill introduced in the way this bill has been introduced. There is a good deal of reasoning in the deductions of the leader of the Opposition that the decision of the Committee of Ways and Means is a basis for taxation measures. In the past the practice has been invariably that the principle of the taxation proposal has been introduced in a separate bill from the bill containing the machinery clauses. In my judgment this taxation bill should have been separated from extraneous matter, and should have been purely and simply a taxation measure, while the machinery should have been brought in in a separate measure." (Opposition cheers.)

"The question of amending the Public Service Act," the Speaker recalled, "had not been mentioned in Committee of Ways and Means, and it would be impossible for any member to have any knowledge before the introduction of the measure that such an amendment was contemplated. (Opposition cheers.) The same thing applies to the Mesne Process Act.

BASIC PRINCIPLES.

"I have looked fully into every aspect of the case," said the Speaker, "and I can find no precedent, where, on a resolution of committee of ways and means imposing taxation, (whether it be land tax, income tax, or stamp duties) being carried, the same bill reveals in its title other Acts which can by no means be considered ejusdem generis, so far as income tax is concerned. When you wander out into laws affecting, so to speak, the liberty of the subject, like the Mesne Process Act, and affecting another Act like the Public Service Act, it seems to me that it traverses right beyond the basic principles which govern parliamentary procedure with regard to the introduction of measures for taxation.

"The line of demarcation between the Legislative Council and the Assembly is so clearly drawn that it would lead to disorder and confusion, since the Council must either accept or reject a taxation measure, if machinery matters and extraneous matters could be tacked on to an essentially taxation measure, and possibly a false issue be precipitated through the Assembly doing its business in the wrong way.

"The more I have looked into it," concluded the Speaker, "the more I have come to the conclusion that a resolution of committee of ways and means can only deal with taxation, and any questions of public policy or extraneous matters cannot be introduced directly or indirectly; and I, therefore, rule the bill out of order. (Opposition cheers.)

Mr. Fitzpatrick: Next, please. (Laughter.)

The bill was then withdrawn.

Opposition Members: Next. Bring in your bills properly.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT.

THE GOVERNMENT'S INTENTIONS.

The Acting Premier (Mr. Cann) stated last night that the Income Tax Bill will be restored to the business paper this afternoon. Ministers will confer during the day in order to decide what form the measure will take. It may be necessary to divide the bill into two parts, but Mr. Cann thinks it should be possible to comply with the Speaker's ruling by tabling one measure.

STATE PARLIAMENT.

TAXATION BILL.

SAVINGS BANK AMALGAMATION.

MR. HOLMAN AND HOME RULE.

The chief feature of the proceedings in the Legislative Assembly last night was the ruling out of order by the Speaker of the Income Tax Act Amending Bill, the debate being reported in another column.

The House carried through all its stages a supply bill for £1,590,500.

At both the opening and the close of the sitting Mr. Holman's references on Sunday at the Hibernian breakfast to the Irish Home Rule question, and his subsequent cablegram to Mr. Redmond, elicited angry protests from Mr. David Storey and others.

WESTERN LINE LOCOMOTIVES.

The Premier stated, in reply to Mr. Durack, that it was not a fact that traffic was frequently delayed on the Western line because a number of partially disabled locomotives were in commission. The passenger train leaving Bathurst for Sydney at 12.50 p.m. on March 13 was delayed through the failure of an engine on a goods train, but this engine was not partially disabled before being despatched.

Asked as to whether a competent driver had not condemned this particular engine, and declined to take it out of the yard, the Premier replied that the driver objected, but had no good reason for doing so, as an examination of the engine showed it was in a fit condition to work. It did not fail from any cause anticipated by the driver, but through a slide valve breaking in the steam chest, which could not be foreseen. The driver was reprimanded for his action.

WIRE NETTING APPLICATIONS.

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Ashford), in reply to Mr. Dunn, said that the department during the last four years spent on an average £21,955 yearly in meeting applications made for wire netting through the pastures protection boards. There had recently been some delay, not on the part of the pastures protection boards or the department, but occasioned, it was understood, by the contractors' difficulty in coping with an unprecedented demand for 1½in netting.

BERRY'S BAY LAND.

The Premier, in answer to Mr. Mark Morton, gave the information that the area of land handed over to the Crown at Berry's Bay by the trustees of the Berry Hospital Trust was 8¾ acres. It had been leased as follows:—To Woodley and Co.: 1 rood 13¾ perches, for 14 years from June 1, 1905, at a rental of £90 per annum. To Captain Ghest: 17½ perches, for five years from May 1, 1912, at £25 per annum. To Taylor and Anderson: 7 acres 3 roods 20 perches, for 21 years from October 31, 1907, at a rental of £301 per annum for the first 14 years, and £350 per annum for the balance of the term. To the Union Steamship Company: 3 acres 1 rood 33 perches, for 21 years from October 1, 1913, at a rental of £340 per annum. To Commonwealth Government: 2 roods 8 perches, for 21 years at £150 per annum (date of commencement not yet decided, lease being prepared). There was a small weatherboard cottage on the land let to Mr. G. Adamson at a weekly rental of 8s, and Messrs. G. Reed and Son had permission to quarry stone on a certain portion at a rental of 16s 8d per month. No use was being made of the balance of the estate.

INCOME TAX REVENUE.

Mr. Wade asked whether the Premier would supply the information during the debate on the second reading of the Income Tax Bill of how much he expected to raise by way of revenue under section 12 and section 17.

Mr. Holman said he could not give the information off-hand, but as the point, no doubt, would be raised during the debate, he hoped to be able to satisfy the leader of the Opposition.

INCREASED TRAM FARES.

Mr. Osborne asked whether the proposed increase in the tram fares on Sundays and holidays applied to the whole of the trams of the State, or only to a certain radius in the metropolitan area.

Mr. Page asked whether it was a fact that the Cabinet regulated the tram and railway fares, or whether it was done on the recommendation of the Commissioners.

Mr. Cohen asked whether it was proposed to charge double fares on the trams on Sundays, as was stated in the press.

Mr. Holman said in regard to the last question he could answer no. As to the others notice must be given.

RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS.

Mr. Cohen asked whether it was a fact that, despite the promise of the Premier to make an announcement to the House on the appointment of the Railway Commissioners, the announcement was made in the press on the following day, to the effect that Messrs. Harper, Fraser, and Richardson had been re-appointed. Would the Minister let the House know on what conditions the appointments were made? Did the Minister think it fair that this information should be given to the press prior to the House receiving it when the House was sitting?

Mr. Holman said with regard to the fact that something had appeared in the papers, that was through inadvertence. It was not done with any intention of being disrespectful to the House. With regard to the gazettal of the Commissioners, that was done to suit the convenience of the Governor, and a special Executive meeting was held. He (the Premier) anticipated meeting the House on Monday and announcing the appointment on Tuesday. Owing to the change in the holding of the Executive Council meeting, the matter was completed before Parliament assembled. The appointments had been made on conditions which had been gazetted. If the hon. member desired further information than that set forth in the Gazette he would lay on the table the correspondence with the Commissioners.

SAVINGS BANK AMALGAMATION BILL.

Consideration was given to the Savings Bank Amalgamation Bill in committee. On clause 3, endorsing the dissolution of the Savings Bank of New South Wales, Mr. Fitzpatrick called for a division to test the feeling of the House on the main principle of the measure, and it received the endorsement of the House by 38 votes to 19.

Minor amendments were made in clause 18, and the bill reported. The third reading was made an order for to-day.

INDUSTRIAL ARBITRATION ACT.

On the motion of Mr. Cann it was agreed that the House, on its next sitting day, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the expediency of bringing in a bill to declare the meaning and effect of section 26 of the Industrial Arbitration Act, 1912, and for other purposes.

On the motion of Mr. Estell the House agreed to consider next day a resolution to add certain industries and callings to schedule 1 of the Arbitration Act.

CLOSER SETTLEMENT BILL.

In committee, Mr. Trefle moved that it was expedient to bring in a bill to authorise the purchase by the Minister of certain lands for settlement purchase; to make further provision for the disposal of land and improvements within settlement purchase areas; to confer and impose certain rights and liabilities on minors; to reduce the capital value of certain settlement purchases; to provide for the payment of interest on postponed instalments; to fix a date for the payment of instalments on settlement purchases; to enable the Minister to grant extension of time to pay instalments in certain cases; to amend the Closer Settlement Acts, the Closer Settlement Promotion Act, 1910, and other Acts; and for purposes consequent thereon or incidental thereto.

Mr. Trefle said that with the exception of a few clauses there was no fresh matter in the bill. All reference to the supertax had been excised; that would be made the subject of a separate bill. The proposed measure dealt solely with the Closer Settlement Act. Clauses 14 and 15 were inserted to get over the difficulties of closer settlement. It was now proposed to make the payment of the instalments at the end of the year. Many of the settlers who went in for wheat did not secure their returns till well on towards the end of the year, and many of the lessees did not get their returns from shearing until that period. Instead of making the payments on the anniversary of the purchase, the instalments would be paid at the end of the year.

The second reading was made an order of the day for to-day.

WHARFAGE RATES.

Mr. Hoyle gave notice that he would move,—"That this House will, on its next sitting day, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the expediency of bringing in a bill to provide for fixing and collecting inward and outward wharfage rates, and inward and outward harbour rates, in the port of Sydney; to amend the Sydney Harbour Trust Act, 1900, the Sydney Harbour Rates Act, 1904, and the Harbour Trust and Navigation Act, 1906; and for other purposes."

An Opposition member: More squeezing.

ADJOURNMENT.

At 10 minutes past 11 the House adjourned until this afternoon.

Mr. Cann said that if members took exception to the Estimates, and wished to make reductions in them, they would not sacrifice their right by passing this Supply Bill.

Mr. Wade said he noticed that there was an item under public instruction of £2000 for the conservatorium of music. If the work were finished, surely the final adjustment would not matter for seven days, when the Appropriation Bill would become law. The amount of supply asked for was beyond the average, and he wanted to know whether there was any fresh expenditure.

Dr. Arthur said in the General Loan Account items there was a sum of £24,000 under education for school buildings, teachers' training college, technical education, and University. In the past these buildings had been constructed out of the Consolidated Revenue or the Public Works Fund. Was this to be a precedent? Were these buildings in the future to be erected out of loan funds?

The bill was carried through all its stages, and referred to the Legislative Council.

THE MEAT STRIKE.

CARTERS AND SHOPMEN ADVANCED.

WAGES BOARD DECISION.

CLEANING-UP TIME DEFINED.

When the meat strike, which lasted a month, terminated, the shopmen went back on their old wages, but with a reduction in their week's work of from 56 to 49½ hours. The Industrial Court made the working times 6.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m. on all days except Wednesday, which was fixed upon for the weekly half-holiday.

The Wages (Metropolitan Retail Butchering) Board was then called upon to adjudicate on a reference by the Minister for Labour and Industry on the question of wages, and on a reference by the Court on the question of cleaning time. The parties, after hearing evidence, were unable to agree as to a variation.

The chairman, Mr. J. J. Watkins, barrister, delivered the decision of the board (his own) at Selbourne-chambers yesterday afternoon. He made it clear that the rights and wrongs of recent troubles did not concern the board, and had not been allowed to influence him. It was a well-known principle that awards must not be varied on any but weighty grounds. It had, however, to be admitted, that, when this award was made for three years, changes of circumstance that had taken place since were not anticipated. Moreover, defects in the working of the Act had been discovered from time to time. Since the award was made until now no claim as to wages had been made to the board.

Mr. Watkins said that an offer as to wages was made by the representatives of the employees, and not withdrawn. As that offer coincided with what he thought fair, his vote was in its favour. The wages, then, for "carters only" would be £2 10s; for carters and assistants, £2 15s; and for second shopmen and "other shopmen," £3.

The board also made a variation as to cleaning time. This question, the chairman said, was a difficult one, and required some explanation. It had been before the board on a previous occasion, and was dealt with by allowing a quarter of an hour's grace. This was, however, no longer in force. It had been difficult in the past to enforce the rule as to ceasing work, and fears had been expressed that a variation would lead to a considerable increase of the working hours. He did not think that these fears would be realised, or that the employees would suffer through the variation any injustice. The whole clause had been re-drafted, and three points in particular should be noticed. Firstly, the clause was not for the benefit of any person who availed himself of his right under the Early Closing Act to keep his shop open till 9 p.m. Such an employer must not have his employees working at all after 5.30 p.m. Secondly, there was a very stringent proviso which showed that the advantage of the clause was intended only for those who loyally obeyed the award. It was known that employing labour even a short time later than a competitor might make a great difference. Thirdly, while formerly when an employee was in a shop after the hour of ceasing work, it was necessary to prove strictly that he was working there, "now," said Mr. Watkins, "if after 5.45 p.m. the employee is on the premises, whether working or not, an offence will have been committed."

Inspector Kirby represented the Minister before the board.

EFFECT OF VARIATION.

The wages of carters and carters' assistants have been advanced by 5/ per week. All other shopmen (except first shopmen) are to get £3. Other shopmen, most of them getting £3 or over, remain as they are. No ruling was given on a certain smallgoods shop, nor in respect to the question of employees' holidays. The award expires next October, and with it this variation. The chairman hopes that between now and October the parties will be able to dispose of all outstanding grievances.

Mr. W. Mitchell, the union representative on the board, expressed dissatisfaction with the chairman's finding for the reason that certain men were not provided for.

The variation will be submitted to the Meat Industry Employees' Union board of control to-night.

ELECTORAL REFORM.

ADDRESS BY EARL GREY.

PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION.

"Re-enfranchisement of the elector should be the first plank in the platform of every honest democrat," declared Earl Grey, speaking at the Sydney Town Hall last night on the subject of proportional representation. "I stand here," he added, "as the grandson of the man who gave the first Reform Bill to England, and in whose footsteps I am only following in advocating this reform in the electoral system."

His Excellency the Governor (Sir Gerald Strickland) presided over a crowded gathering held in the vestibule, under the auspices of the New South Wales Proportional Representation Society, and among those on the platform were Mr. Carmichael (Minister for Education), Mr. Justice Ferguson, Miss Rose Scott, General Finn, Colonel Ryrie, M.P., Sir Francis Suttor, M.L.C., Mr. Henley, M.L.A., and Mr. Ball, M.L.A.

Earl Grey said he proposed to deal with his subject, without touching local politics, from a purely dry, scientific point of view, and would indulge in no violent language and make use of no party arguments. (Laughter.) He wanted to have a heart-to-heart talk with his audience, as if they were in the bar of an hotel—(laughter)—or any other place suitable for easy conversation. What, he asked, were the ideals of representative government? The first was equal representation, not only of the majority but of all electors, and government by the majority. A system that would give ten seats to 4000 Liberals and two seats to 8000 Conservatives was not what was wanted. The second principle was that each individual elector should be conscious that his electoral privileges gave him direct participation in the governing power of the country. The third point was that they wanted a system that made it easy for men of high character and independent views to place their services at the disposal of the electors. (Applause.) Where these fundamental principles were lacking there would be discontent and agitation. The system of representing local majorities, or the majority in each district only, which existed in England, the United States, and Canada, failed in each of the three principles mentioned. It did not ensure majority rule, representation of influential minorities, or the easy entry of the best men into politics.

As things were at present, a town that had five members was divided into five Parliamentary divisions, the majority of each division being privileged to return a member to the Assembly. What this representation would be depended on the character of the boundary lines of these divisions. If these lines were drawn in a particular way the minority of the electors might obtain a majority of the representation. In Toronto (Canada), Sir John Macdonald had drawn his lines in such a way as to put all the Labour party in the one constituency. "Hiving the grits," he called it. By such means the majority of representation could be secured for the minority, or again under the existing system a minority consisting of one-third of the whole might not have a single representative. He could give other instances to which he was not permitted to refer. (Laughter.) Supposing, however, they kept that one town as a multiple constituency returning five members, each having one preferential vote, they would have a system which would ensure to the electors that representation to which their numbers entitled them. In Ireland under existing conditions there had not been a Unionist candidate returned for a single constituency in the South and West of Ireland, though the Unionists numbered one-fourth, or certainly one-fifth, of the electors. In Wales one-third of the electors were Unionists, yet out of 30 seats they could only win two instead of 10. Therefore one Radical vote was worth six Conservative votes. In Scotland one Radical vote counted as much as four Conservative votes. "You can imagine what the feelings of the minority are," said the speaker. In the Home counties, near London, a similar anomaly existed, but here the Unionists had the advantage. It might be argued that this balanced the state of affairs in Wales, but, supposing it did, what became of Aristotle's dictum "that the country is best governed which can boast of the largest number of citizens conscious of direct participation in the government of the country?"

One heard a lot in this country about the free and independent elector, but Lord Grey did not believe the number of free and independent electors in Australia was any greater than in England or America. "What is the value of your vote?" he asked, "unless you can vote for the man of your own heart with the full knowledge that you are not throwing your vote away. To talk of free and independent electors under the present system is to talk the greatest rubbish."

The speaker gave an amusing illustration of his point. "Suppose a man," he said, "went to church for the purpose of marrying a woman after his own heart, and suppose the minister told him that he had to choose one of the ladies who had been selected for him by two great party machines. 'This woman on the right has a hump, and the one on the left has a squint,' the minister would say, 'but you must choose between the hump and the squint.' (Laughter.) This was not laughable, it was true. The electors were compelled by the party machine to choose between the candidate with the hump and the one with the squint.

"Not only re-enfranchisement of the electors, but the emancipation of the elected was wanted. Under the party system a man had often to swallow his principles to get the caucus nomination. He supposed that was as true in Australia as anywhere else. (Laughter and applause.) To get the nomination of the caucus—the first step—a man had often to express opinions he did not hold. This did not make for honest politics. Government by party meant, generally, government of extreme men, and he wanted his hearers to free the country from the tyranny of the organised minority. This was one of the blots on the present system, and would be absolutely removed by the adoption of proportional representation. The latter gave more secure tenure for the man of high character and afforded the electors an opportunity of doing away with the 'political rotter.' (Applause.)

"Australia has done many things for us besides giving us the starting gate," added Lord Grey, "and I want Australia to give us a good starting gate for political candidates. Australia has given the lead as regards the secret ballot, but what is the use of that unless you make the ballot effective?"

In moving a vote of thanks to the speaker Mr. Carmichael said that if proportional representation would result in half of what had been claimed for it by Lord Grey, it would not be long before it was adopted on its merits.

GALES AND HURRICANES.

The outward passage of the P. and O. Company's R.M.S. Malwa from London as far as Marseilles was attended and seriously impeded by a series of gales and hurricanes. Squally weather was experienced right across the Bay of Biscay. Before reaching Marseilles the winds blew with such force that it was found necessary to heave the ship to and wait until they had abated sufficiently to allow the steamer to continue her voyage. Passing the Straits of Messina by night a fine spectacle was presented by the volcano of Stromboli, which was noticed to be in a very active state. The R.M.S. Malwa arrives in Sydney on Thursday morning.

This position would be about 13½ miles N 84 degrees E from Merimbula Point. The Navigation Department has issued a warning concerning this obstruction.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The "col" (or area of relatively low pressure between two "highs") is now over the Tasman Sea and in the north-eastern corner of New South Wales. The conditions in this area developed into the tornadic thunderstorm in the metropolitan districts on Saturday afternoon; as also some light to heavy rain, with thunder, along the coast and tablelands.

The advance isobars of an energetic "high" now occupies the south-eastern States; the western portion of this system stretching westward to beyond the Leeuwin in the far SW corner of the continent. The centre is at present in a position over the Southern Ocean favouring more thunderstorms shortly.

Over tropical Australia, monsoonal conditions are much in evidence, although data being so scanty from there yesterday, the nature of the weather cannot definitely be stated.

Low pressure also rules generally over the ocean to the east of the continent. Tropical "dips" are shown in the isobars just off the coast of Queensland; and another disturbance of some cyclonic character lies dormantly over the South Tasman Sea, its centre being midway between Hobart and The Bluff (N.Z.).

Ocean Forecast.—Smooth to moderate seas.

Miss Maud Allan, a classic dancer of wide celebrity, arrived here yesterday by the Kumano Maru in prosecution of a world's tour, which is under the direction of Mr. W. Angus Macleod, whose last visit here was as manager of the "Blue Bird" Company from the Haymarket Theatre. Miss Allan's movements in Bombay and elsewhere have been referred to in these columns recently, so that music-lovers will be prepared for the intimation that her party includes Messrs. Leopold, Jan, and Mischa Cherniavsky, the Russian classical trio who made a sensation at their concerts here some years ago, when they starred as juvenile artists.

Miss Allan, frequently referred to as a Californian, was born at Toronto, but spent her girlhood's days in San Francisco. Later on, after five years' study at the Berlin Royal High School of Music, she was prepared to make her debut as a pianist. However, circumstances led her to travel with her mother to Italy, and, becoming fascinated by the beauty of the Grecian sculpture treasured in the great galleries there, she applied herself to reproducing the ancient poses, and after incredible perseverance acquired the grace of the classic dances. Her debut in her stately barefoot measures in imaginative interpretation of the beautiful compositions of the old masters attracted general admiration in Vienna in 1905; and she made a tournee of the Continental capitals before her first season in London in 1908, which drew crowds to the Palace Theatre. The brilliant artist appeared there continuously for eight months, was greeted as a London favourite, and has since become known in many parts of the world.

Miss Allan will remain here only until Saturday, when she sails for New Zealand, her tour of which will be followed by visits to Hobart and Melbourne. In this way Sydney audiences will not have the pleasure of seeing her as the star of the Cherniavsky concerts until next July.

"THE GREAT ADVENTURE."

Arnold Bennett's delightful comedy, "The Great Adventure," a play primarily founded on the author's earlier novel, "Buried Alive," and first produced at the Little Theatre in July last year, was revived by the Buckler-Paget company last evening, before a numerous audience. It is a curious revelation to those who know the epicist of the five towns only from "Clayhanger" or "The Old Wives' Tale," in which the smile, while never wholly absent is usually tinged with irony or pity, or both, to find in Arnold Bennett so whole-hearted and care-free a vein of comedy as runs through the entire texture of "The Great Adventure." Any playwright might have written a play about a valet from sheer impudence masquerading as his master; Scapin is perhaps the most famous example; Bennett, by a stroke of delightful humour, shows the master, from mere shyness, pretending to be his own valet. It need hardly be added that the exquisitely absurd complications arising from the situation are worked out to the full, and with the most natural air in the world.

Mr. Hugh Buckler, as before, played the part of the abnormally nervous artist, whose genius is closely allied with an amiable eccentricity, to the life. Miss Violet Paget, after a slight stiffness in the first act, resumed all her former success as the calm, sensible, and entirely charming widow from Putney. Cyrus Carve, the irascible cousin of the painter, was admirably portrayed by Mr. Reginald Wykeham; while Mr. Arthur Cornell was blandly successful as the Jewish-American dealer. Mr. H. H. Wallace, as the aged and millionaire collector, and Mr. Alfred Bristowe, in the role of Lord Leonard Alcot, were also excellent in the qualities they professed. The remainder of the cast was also well placed.

WEEK-END ROBBERIES.

Several robberies were reported to the police yesterday morning.

Some time between 1 o'clock on Saturday and 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoon thieves entered the premises occupied by Hornsby and Sons, engineers, at the corner of Clarence and Barrack streets. The sum of £19, in gold and silver, was stolen from the desk of the assistant manager's office. The thieves effected an entrance by climbing over a 10ft gate from Clarence-street, which gave access to the back of the premises. They then climbed through the back window.

The shop of John Martin, draper, 504 George-street, was entered during Friday night, and goods to the value of £4 taken. The thieves gained an entrance by forcing the back window of the shop.

FINANCIAL.

BRITISH TOBACCO COMPANY OF AUSTRALIA.

There has been a good deal of inquiry lately, writes the "Financial Times," concerning the British Tobacco Company of Australia which, although it has been in existence for some years, does not appear to have become very well known in London. In these circumstances that journal made inquiries concerning the company, and has secured the following particulars:—The company has an authorised capital of £5,000,000, and there have been issued 1,484,727 £1 preference shares, together with 3,200,000 of £1 ordinary shares. The dividends paid on the last mentioned class of capital have been as follows: For the year ended January 31, 1909, 9 per cent.; 1910, about 21 per cent.; 1911, 12 per cent.; 1912, 22 per cent.; and the same for 1913. Quarterly dividends at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum are paid on the ordinary shares, while every alternate year an adjustment of surplus profits is made by means of cash distributions, with power to the shareholders to subscribe therewith, and to that extent, for new ordinary shares at par. The current price of the issue is 2. The last distribution on this basis was made in August, 1912, and related to the fiscal year ended January 31, 1913. There are 10 directors, namely, Messrs. W. E. Shaw (Sydney), L. S. Benjamin (Melbourne), H. Cunliffe-Owen W. Cameron (Melbourne), H. Cunliffe-Owen (London), H. R. Denison (Sydney), A. D. Hart (Melbourne), L. P. Jacobs (Melbourne), C. H. Reading (Sydney), G. F. Todman (Sydney), and A. J. Warry (Sydney). The assets comprise shares in other companies valued in the books at January 31, 1913, at £3,962,658; on the same date, goodwill, trade-marks, and trade agreements were estimated at £806,781; cash at head office £1459; while debtors and debit balances were returned at £382,731. The revenue has been steadily progressive, as may be gathered from the following figures:—Year ended January 31, 1909, £325,000; 1910, £689,150; 1911, £444,400; 1912, £772,300; 1913, £838,900. The greater part of the company's income is drawn from the subsidiaries in which it is interested, and these undertakings have accumulated a large amount of undivided profits, the total of which at January 31, 1913, was £153,000. It is expected that the accounts for the year just ended will show a further expansion in net earnings.

PENALISING GENEROSITY.

"Bursar" writes:—

Sir,—A beneficiary under a recent will having just paid seven and a half per cent. probate duty wishes to devote the whole of his property to educate, at our University, as many young men as possible who need this help.

Under the bill now before Parliament he is to be charged five per cent. additional on the value of his large and unselfish gift, which tax will be increased to seven and a half per cent. should he die within three years. The expense of converting and conveying the funds will be a heavy drain; but this charge is inevitable.

Surely justice and sound policy require that all gifts for educational purposes to the University or its colleges should be free of every tax and probate duty in order to encourage private endowment of public education, to the great relief of the Treasury.

As the donor in this case is retaining a bare pittance to live upon, he cannot afford to pay new and heavy taxes, and these must be therefore deducted from his benefaction, thereby reducing it by thousands of pounds, and thus depriving for all time some prospective students at our University of that help which should be derived from the lost thousands. Let the Minister for Education see to it.

Surely our Legislature cannot seriously intend to thus cripple education, throttle patriotism, and smother benevolence.

Such cases might certainly be treated as exceptions to the taxation proposals.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The oversea imports of the State during February were valued at £2,410,873, which shows a decrease of £324,575, or nearly 12 per cent., as compared with the corresponding month of last year.

The total for the two months was £4,906,775, a decrease of £310,528, or nearly 6 per cent., in comparison with the figures for 1913.

The principal articles to show increases were cordage and twines, fish, fruits (fresh), hats and caps, agricultural implements, spirits, and tea, while a distinct increase is noticeable in most other articles.

The oversea exports for February amounted to £3,378,705, being an increase of £456,380, or over 15 per cent., as compared with the corresponding month of last year.

For the two months there was an increase of £1,448,244, or over 24 per cent., compared with the same period for 1913.

The principal increases during the two months were:—Wool, £644,125; wheat and flour, £488,378; "other pastoral produce," £270,138; minerals, £111,654.

The principal decrease during the same period was:—Butter, £104,060.

Separating merchandise from gold, the exports of the former during the two months increased by £1,410,449, and the latter by £37,795.

The Equitable Permanent Benefit, Building, Land, and Savings Institution advertise the declaration of the usual half-yearly dividend.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Eastern produce had no change in prices yesterday. All seasonable lines were going out freely. The demand for oatmeal showed a further strengthening.

Tea samples which arrived by the mail yesterday were attractive, both as regards quality and price. According to advices from Colombo, at the sale before the mail left (March 10), the quality from the higher districts was good, but supplies from Nuawar Eliya had fallen off as a result of severe frosts. Prices were again slightly easier in good liquoring, brokers from 50 to 54 cents, the value in these being good. Tippy teas of all grades, as were all classes of leaf tea which now show poor value compared with brokers. Dusts and fannings were steady. Shipments to Australia and New Zealand from January 1 to March 11 were about 4,850,000lb, against 4,300,000lb in the previous year. This increase confirms our State statistics given below.

Metals were slow in all heavy lines except galvanised iron and cement. Ploughing was being activly followed in the country, and as a result all fencing operations were at a standstill. There was a lull in the demand for wire netting. Complaints were still made as to delay in the delivery of locally-manufactured sorts. Imported nettings were going out hardly so freely as a couple of weeks ago. They were quoted higher than at that time, but were still considerably below Australian prices. Black wire of both No. 8 and No. 10 gauges was slightly easier, being procurable at £7/10/ and £8 per ton. Galvanised iron had large sales at unchanged rates. Supplies of lead manufactures were still short. A shipment of pig lead, however, arrived yesterday, the first for some weeks, and manufacturers will now be kept busy day and night, turning out sheet lead and lead pipes. Supplies of cement were apparently diminishing; more inquiry was noted, and prices were slightly better. Parcels of English sold at 14/6, while ordinary builders' lots were purchased at 15/. German cement sold in parcels at 12/ to 13/6, in smaller lots at 13/6 to 14/, according to brand. Plaster was still wanted, German at 15/ and American at 17/6.

Linseed oil was not so active as in the middle of last week. The distributing demand was keen, but there was an absence of inquiry on the part of merchants. The London market had weakened, Blundell, Spence, and Co.'s oil was a farthing down, 2/2¼ f.o.b. for prompt shipment, and 2/3¼ for shipment May to September. Before operating on the local market merchants who were in want of oil determined to wait and see whether prices would go further back. Locally prices were without change. Whitelead was firm at late rates. Turpentine was unaltered.

The jute market lacked animation. Merchants' business was at a standstill. Only the country was buying, and then small quantities. Prices were those ruling at the close of last week. Branbags, spot, 5/3; cornsacks, spot, 6/4, both net; woolpacks, spot, 3/4½, less discount; April-June shipments, 2/10, less discount. Calcutta showed no alteration.

In the market for brewers' goods Tasmanian factors are "fishing" for quotations, and raising their prices when offers are made. Thus they send a wire offering at 1/3½ f.o.b. Hobart, subject to immediate reply. An acceptance is telegraphed, but the answer comes "offer withdrawn, will accept 1/3." This is what makes it so unsatisfactory to do business with Hobart people. Very seldom is a "firm" quotation given. Tasmanian hops were quoted yesterday at 1/3½ to 1/4 c.i.f. and c. Sydney, and on that basis small lots would be worth here 1/4½, though for a parcel the price would be shaded. Some merchants report that the quantity in view unsold is only one-third of what was carried at the same time last year. The New Zealand picking is progressing satisfactorily, but most of it is sold under contracts made some months ago. American hops are worth 1/1 c.i.f., equal to 1/7 landed. The market in San Francisco is stronger, and hops could not be landed here at the same price as that at which they could be purchased on the local market. Victorian malt is firmer at 6/ per bushel for forward contracts. English malt is firm at 10/6. Further business has been done in isinglass, Bombay leaf having sales at 4/3, and Brazil lump at 4/6.

STATE TEA IMPORTS.

Imports of tea in February were substantially in advance of last January and of February, 1913. On the month, the increase is 600,000lb, and on the year 610,000lb. The increases have been made in Indian, Ceylon, and Java kinds. There has been a falling off in China teas. Comparisons may be made thus:—

Country of Origin.	1914. Quantity. lb.	1914. Value. £	1913. Quantity. lb.	1913. Value. £
India	307,837	12,147	206,548	7,237
Ceylon	1,081,004	38,699	870,180	44,637
China	9,450	335	20,256	798
Java	346,170	11,361	75,820	2,409
Other	....	....	....	....
Total	1,784,461	62,542	1,172,804	55,071

For the two months the increase is practically the same as for February, all the increase having been made during that month. The figures for this year and last year are:—

TWO MONTHS.

TRADE WITH BRISTOL.

Mr. H. L. Riseley, formerly High Sheriff of Bristol, and Mr. E. Manning Lewis, superintendent of the port of Bristol, arrived in Sydney yesterday with the object of endeavouring to secure for Bristol a much larger share of the trade in Australian produce. Mr. Riseley paid a visit to Sydney in 1909, when he represented the Bristol Chamber of Commerce at the Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, held in Sydney in that year. He said that the promises that had been made to them at Fremantle, Perth, Adelaide, Melbourne, and Hobart, which they had already visited, were sufficient to warrant them in hoping that it might be possible to arrange for a new service of steamers direct from Bristol to Australia. What they were trying to get more especially was a fortnightly service, sailing at fixed dates, so that the merchants on this and the other side might be able to make their arrangements with certainty. When he had last come to Australia he had learned that there was any quantity of cargo offering if they could give some assurance that vessels would be supplied, and that they would leave at fixed dates. At the time Bristol had not the ships at its command, but now he had a promise that if they could show the necessity the steamers would be supplied. They were trying to get promises of support in order to bring about this much wished for consummation. Bristol was now equipped with the last word in dock development, ensuring a minimum amount of handling of goods and economical distribution, and the facilities now provided for the handling of dairy produce, frozen meat, and other produce were far and away ahead of those of any other port in the Kingdom. Within a radius of a hundred miles of Bristol there were 10,000,000 people. Within two hours' journey by rail there were 17,000,000. Its railway communications were unrivalled. The Great Western Railway Company, which served Bristol, had the privilege of conveying frozen meat and other goods direct to Smithfield. Commercial advantages could be shown to Australian shippers, which should have their immediate adoption and support. No less a sum than £3,000,000 had been spent on dock extensions at Bristol to provide for oversea trade. He said they had been greatly encouraged by the receptions they had met with, and had found an increasing disposition in favour of using the outports of England to a greater extent than at present.

During their stay in Sydney Mr. Riseley and Mr. Lewis will interview interested people at the Chamber of Commerce, and at the Hotel Australia. They will afterwards go to Queensland, and then to New Zealand, returning to England via Canada and the United States.

BROKERS' ASSOCIATION.

The brokers are making another attempt to form an association. The previous attempt was made when the jute merchants reduced the rate of commission, and that attempt failed; so also did an attempt to induce the jute merchants to reverse their decision, and naturally so, because while merchants were united the brokers were disunited, and had no force behind them. At a recent meeting presided over by Mr. Freebairn, the proposition was made to form a Jute Brokers' Association, but an amendment to include wheat and produce brokers found more favour, and was carried. This took up the whole of one sitting, and it was resolved to adjourn to a future day, when it is expected a constitution will be drawn up. Some brokers, however, want to get a hearing for their particular grievances, and have determined to air them at the next meeting. If this intention is adhered to, then little time will remain for constitution-making.

A parcel of 1500 bags of very prime wheat was purchased in the country at the equivalent of 3/9½ ex trucks Sydney. Growers' lots of f.a.q. wheat changed hands at 3/4½ to 3/4¾ at country stations, equal to 3/9 ex trucks Sydney.

Flour was firmer, though without quotable change in price (£8/15/). The reduction of bran and pollard to £4/10/ was not unexpected.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

PLENTY OF CHEESE.

BACON WEAK.

Once again the market was well stocked with cheese. On Saturday a heavy shipment was received, and another was available yesterday. There was a good demand for the best brands, and sellers were able to secure anything from /7½ to /8 a lb. Secondary brands were to be had at from /6½ to /7.

Special brands of bacon were reduced about /½ a lb. Sides were offered at /9¾, flitches at /9½, middles at /11¾, and shoulders at /6¾ a lb. There was no movement in ordinary cures.

As was anticipated, there was no change in butter values. Choicest brands were sold to the local trade at 102/, and for export at 100/ per cwt. Advices from Melbourne indicated that 2500 boxes were received on Thursday from the northern States. These butters were opening up in better order than were some consignments of Victorian make, the latter still showing the effects of the recent hot weather. The "Age" states that if an argument in favour of the enforcement of a system of compulsory grading of cream were needed, it might be had in the condition of some of the butters that are at present being marketed. The cream used must in many instances have been considerably over-ripe—to put it mildly—when sent to the churn. In view of this it is not to be wondered at that imported brands are capturing no small amount of the trade which in different circumstances would go to Victorian second grades.

ADELAIDE EGGS.

A DISSATISFIED AGENT.

Mr. Menkens, of the Adelaide Egg Company, writes, under date Saturday, March 28:—

Sir,—By this morning's paper we noticed under the commercial column you state Adelaide eggs are selling at 1/2 per doz. Will you kindly let us know where you got this information from, for the report to our minds is not correct. We are prepared to buy up the Sydney market as regards Adelaide eggs at the price you name. Our buyer was yesterday unsuccessful in getting any at all at 1/3, sellers asking lowest rate, 1/4. If you will kindly correct the prices we will be much obliged. If, however, you decide to continue wrongly quoting the price of Adelaide eggs, it will do our business a deal of harm, and occasion us great loss, as our prices are 1/4 upwards. We hope that you will in future get your information from more reliable sources, and not from some interested and prejudiced person.

The above letter was written on Saturday, yet that afternoon's paper contained the following advertisement presumably inserted by Mr. Menkens.

Eggs! Adelaide eggs! Extraordinary collapse in the egg market. Prices to-day:—Choicest fresh, 1/4; second grade, fresh, 1/3; third grade, 1/2. Bulk lines, original packages, ordinary Adelaides, 1/1½. Prices obtain till 10 a.m. Monday. Order at once. Wholesale only, Adelaide Egg Company, 112 Goulburn-street, Sydney.

The quotations published in the "Herald" are for wholesale parcels, and as the advertisement clearly states that the Adelaide Egg Company is willing to sell bulk lines at 1/1½ it would appear that, if anything, our quotation was too high.

Mr. Menkens asks where we obtained the information. This we, of course, cannot divulge, but for his edification we might mention that on Friday last Mr. W. H. Brown, of Gawler (S.A.), offered to the Federal Egg Company, of Sussex-street, 2000 or 3000 doz Adelaide eggs at 1/2 delivered in Sydney, less 5 per cent., and subject to the candle. We might also state that on March 24 a parcel of 2122 doz Adelaide eggs changed hands at 1/2, less 5 per cent., and subject to the candle. Mr. Menkens says that Adelaide eggs are worth 1/4, yet best Clarence River eggs were to be had all last week at 1/3 and 1/3½. And the Clarence River egg is a much better egg than the Adelaide egg. Adelaide eggs are weak, and light in colour, and cannot be used exclusively by pastry-cooks, who rely on the eggs to give the cakes colour.

Since the meat strike the market has been glutted with importations from Adelaide. In fact, to this cause may be attributed the wide margin between the prices of case and new-laid eggs.

RAILWAY MARKET.

POOR DEMAND.

Although the rainy weather has practically ceased, the market did not respond according to auctioneers' hopes. So they ascribed the low prices to "the end of the month" idea, and held out threats of how the market would soar on Wednesday and Thursday. But buyers were unmoved; they had heard that sort of thing before. The prices were uniformly moderate.

Wheaten chaff sold up to 4/9, and oaten chaff brought 4/6. The consignment that realised this top price was from Yanco, and was disposed of privately. 4/10 was given for lucerne hay, and 3/8 for wheat.

HOMEBUSH STOCK MARKET.

SHEEP.

LIGHT SUPPLY—GENERALLY FIRMER.

A light supply was forward for yesterday's sales. Out of 5640 sheep (including lambs) listed, from 24 consignors, 5138 head were penned. This very small penning was due to the recent beneficial rains and put the supply on a footing very similar to the offerings on a number of saledays during the deadlock in the meat industry through the strike. Prior to the industrial trouble the supplies were of very fair dimensions; large areas of sheep country were in droughty condition, and stock owners needed an outlet for a proportion of their sheep and lambs. These adverse conditions no longer prevail to any great extent. As the prospects for wool are good, and feed assured for some months to come, owners are not inclined to forward large supplies of sheep to market at the present time. One or two drafts from Riverina were evidence of the dry state of the country in that part of the State prior to the recent rains.

Yesterday's consignments included six drafts ranging from 400 to 700, and six lots under 100 head. The sheep comprised all descriptions. The merinos ranged from medium to extra prime, the bulk being useful trade wethers and ewes. There was a sprinkling of prime and occasional pens of extra prime, but more in wethers than in ewes. The showing in ewes was unusually good on Thursday last. Crossbreds were moderately represented, mainly good to prime, with occasional pens of extra prime, carrying good early shorn skins. Medium and light crossbreds were sparingly in evidence. The selection generally was a useful one.

Buyers were in full attendance, including exporters, the Sydney Meat Preserving Company, Ltd., the usual Glebe Island, and a fair number of suburban and country operators. As the supply, however, was such a light one, operations were practically confined to the metropolitan, country, and suburban trade. The market opened to strong competition, and values during the early sales were generally /6 to 1/ per head above the improved rates of Thursday last. The improvement being more on useful trade quality than on the heavier sheep, but towards the close of the sales the tone was not nearly so pronounced in sellers' favour. The market was irregular, and values at the close were about on a par with the firm rates of Thursday last.

Included in the principal sales was a draft of merino wethers from Walhallow estate to 22/10, from E. A. Clift (Breeza) to 23/11, R. Edols (Gular) to 25/1, from Bunn and M'Naughton (Collarendebri) to 21/5. A line of merino ewes from J. Houston (Hay) sold to 22/3, from Ellis Bros. (Hay) to 19/8, and E. A. Clift to 19/2. Among the crossbreds was a draft from the A. A. Company (Quirindi) to 26/6, a few from J. M. Gregg (Cathundral) to 27/6 for wethers and 23/11 for ewes. The crossbred wether portion of the draft from R. Edols sold to 25/6, and Hinchinbrook estate to 22/9 per head.

Quotations: Prime short wool merino w 20/ to 21/6, extra prime short wool merino w 22/6 to 25/, good short wool merino w 15/6 to 18/; medium and light short wool merino w 12/6 to 14/; prime short wool merino e 17/ to 18/; extra prime short wool merino e 19/6 to 22/3; good short wool merino e 13/6 to 15/; medium short wool merino e 10/ to 11/6; prime short wool xb w 21/ to 23/, extra prime short wool xb w 25/ to 27/6; good short wool xb w and h 17/6 to 19/; medium short wool xb w and h 14/ to 16/; prime short wool xb e 19/6 to 21/; extra prime short wool xb e 22/ to 23/9, good short wool xb e 16/6 to 18/; medium and light short wool xb e 12/6 to 14/6.

LAMBS.

Only a few over 100 lambs were penned. These few were sold during the tour round with the sheep. The quality was good to prime, and the demand strong at late extreme rates. A line from J. Houston (Hay) sold to 19/3, and from Bunn and M'Naughton (Collarendebri) to 18/8 per head.

Quotations: Prime woolly lambs and suckers, 16/ to 18/; extra prime, 20/ to 22/; prime short wool lambs, 15/ to 16/; extra prime, 17/ to 18/; good woolly lambs and suckers, 13/ to 15/; medium and light lambs and suckers, 10/ to 11/6.

CATTLE.

MODERATE SUPPLY—FIRM OPENING.

A moderate supply of cattle was in view for yesterday's sales. Out of 2749 listed from 108 consignors, only 2574 head were yarded. The consignments came principally from the northern and north-western districts, with a moderate showing from the south and west. All descriptions were forward. The yardings comprised a good representation of prime medium weight bullocks, odd yards of prime heavy bullocks, and a very fair showing of prime handyweight bullocks and steers. The quality generally was better than for some time past. The cows and heifers included a sprinkling of prime and odd yards of extra prime, but medium, rough, and inferior sorts were fairly plentiful.

Buyers were in full attendance, including exporters and the S.M.P. Company, Ltd. As the supply seemed about equal to requirements, the market opened to free competition at firm values. As sales progressed, however, the opening tone was not maintained; the good showing of prime weighty bullocks was more in keeping with the demand than for some time previously; consequently, bidding was not so keen, and values generally were 5/ to 10/ per head easier. The weakness being more pronounced on weighty bullocks than on the light and handier weights.

Included in the principal sales was a line of 36 bullocks from Clark's, Ltd. (Boggabri) to £14/2/, averaging £12/14/10, a draft of 80 from Barker Bros. (Narrabri) to £12/11/, averaging £11/11/2; 54 head from H. R. Munro (Glen Innes) to £12/16/, averaging £11/18/3; 78 from Walhallow Estate (Breeza), to £11/19/, averaging £10/13/. A line of 26 heifers from R. Capel sold to £9/8/, averaging £8/2/7; 29 cows and heifers from Miss Macmillan (Warialda) to £9/4/, averaging £8/11/7; and 35 from R. R. Dangar (Quirindi) to £8/15/, averaging £8/13/.

Quotations: Yards of prime heavy bullocks £13/10/ to £14/5/; yards of prime medium-weight bullocks, £12 to £13; yards of prime handy-weight bullocks and steers, £10/5/ to £11/10/; yards of good bullocks and steers, £8/10/ to £9/10/; yards of good light bullocks and steers, £6/10/ to £7/10/; yards of medium light bullocks and steers, £5 to £5/15/; yards of prime cows and heifers, £8/10/ to £9; yards of extra prime cows and heifers, £9/10/ to £10; yards of good cows and heifers, £6/15/ to £7/15/; yards of medium cows and heifers, £5 to £6; inferior, lower. Best beef, 31/ to 32/; prime heavy beef, 28/ to 29/; good beef, 26/ to 27/ per 100lb.

LONDON QUIET.

LOCAL MARKET LISTLESS.

TIN VENTURES SOUND.

A meagre list of "middle" quotations from the London Stock Exchange, and even those showing an easier tone in Barriers, likewise, no mention of metal prices, was not calculated to induce local operators to indulge in active speculation, especially on the opening day of the week.

Moreover, telegrams from Adelaide and Melbourne stated that the Stock Exchanges of those cities were extremely listless in copper stocks and Barriers. Melbourne, however, disclosed a firm feeling for Malayan and Tongkah tin propositions.

It was the last-mentioned interests that dominated the market, and sellers had the best of the business recorded. Buyers of Malaya Tin Corporation had to spring 5/ to £9/15/ to get a £5 share, whilst Tongkah Compound sold on 6 weeks' terms at 68/, with buyers for ordinary delivery unsupplied at 67/9, sellers demanding 70/.

The announcement that the dredges of the Tongkah Harbour Company (working one short), won 26 tons of tin oxide last week, or two tons better than the previous week, stiffened the attitude of sellers, who refused even an advance on last week's closing sale. In executing Melbourne buying orders for Katoo Deebook, buyers had to pay 26/6, or an advance of 1/6 per share. Though buyers of Austral Malay offered 77/6 (a 3/ rise) they were unsupplied, sellers being silent. As further evidence of the strength of Eastern tin propositions, an unrecorded sale of Kampong Kamunting was done at 12/9, as against 10/10½ last week.

The Ardlethan group was inactive but steady. In some cases (Carpathia, for instance) buyers offered up to late sale rates, with sellers standing off a little. Holders of Wild Cherry also showed a little backbone, whilst they declined to mark down Southern Cross. Vegetable Creek sold on the easy side.

An easier feeling prevailed in the case of Barriers, both in the sale prices recorded, as well as in the quotations at both the morning and noon calls. Copper stocks were also quiet. Only one sale was booked, but the stock—Hampdens—held a firm position, but there was a total lack of vigour in the demand for other copper propositions.

In the afternoon the attention of the market was again largely monopolised by tin propositions. In addition to solid business being done in Katoo Deebook and Tongkah Harbour, also Malaya Tin Corporation, which moved another 5/ to £10, Tongkah Compound commanded good offers, but sellers stood off very wide. Kampong Kamunting were likewise nibbled at, and they advanced another /3 to 13/.

Another Eastern tin proposition came into notice—the Larut Tin Dredging, Limited. This company is constituted with a capital of £75,000, divided into 75,000 shares of £1 each. Of this number 17,500 fully paid, together with £6000 cash, goes to the vendor, the Austral-Malay Tin, Limited, whilst 32,500 contributing shares were subscribed for by the public—2/6 on application and 2/6 on allotment, the balance being callable as required. A parcel changed hands at 5/7½, or a premium of /7½. The company has 172 acres of tin-bearing lands at Taiping, in the State of Perak (Federated Malay States), and purposes working it by bucket dredges. In the prospectus of the company it is said that the 172 acres were proved by 197 bores to contain 164 acres of workable and payable land of an average depth of 41.2ft, of an average value of 1.05lb per cubic yard of tin oxide, assaying 66 per cent. metallic tin.

It is claimed that the 164 acres to a depth of 41.2ft represent approximately 10,500,000 cubic yards of material extremely suitable for bucket dredging, and is estimated to return, with metallic tin at £170 per ton, and operating with one dredge with a capacity of 80,000 cubic yards per month, a profit of not less than £240,000 to be recovered in 13 years, or, say, £18,000 per annum, or, say, 35 per cent. per annum, on a capital of £50,000. The 172 acres is said to represent a selection from 400 acres optioned to the vendor company, the remaining 228 acres being rejected after examination.

A glance at the business done in the other sections of the market will show that the easy movement in copper stocks and Barriers continued. In gold stocks, Black Range West commanded steady support.

MINE TIMBERING.

USE OF BRIGALOW FOR STRUTS AND CAPS.

ROCKHAMPTON, Monday.

A vote of members of the Australian Workers' Union at Mount Morgan was taken on Saturday on the question of accepting the warden's decision to allow the use of brigalow timber in the Mount Morgan Gold-mining Company's mine for struts and caps in square sets. The figures as to the result are not known, but the district organiser says that the vote, which was confined to miners and mine-workers, resulted in a majority of 4½ to 1 against the warden's decision. The figures as to the poll will be communicated to the district officer of the union at Bundaberg for consideration. No action will be taken until directions are received from there. Surface workers, it is stated, declined to vote, but gave an assurance that they would stand by the miners and mine-workers in any decision the union might arrive at.

MOUNT DAVID GOLDMINE.

PERSISTENT PROSPECTING.

BATHURST, Monday.

Interesting evidence was submitted to the Bathurst Mining Warden, Mr. A. B. C. Bourke, in support of the application for suspension of labour conditions on the Mount David mine leases. The mine manager, Mr. W. H. Martin, who represent the company, stated they had now been working the leases for the past 15 or 16 years, and during that time had expended an enormous amount of money in legitimate prospecting, consisting of the sinking of several deep shafts, drives, winzes, and other working. He estimated the expenditure at from £50,000 to £60,000. At present operations were being confined to the deepest levels. A large area near the company's leases had been vigorously and systematically prospected and treated. There was, therefore, no country which could be profitably prospected above the lower levels at present or for some time. He, as manager, had found it impossible to find room in present workings for more than 16 men, and would be in that position until they were able to open out, when, of course, the number of men would be greatly increased. The company asked for partial suspension to work 16 men for a period of six months, on the ground that a substantial expenditure having been incurred in mining operations the company was temporarily unable to continue such operations, and required a reasonable time within which to make the necessary arrangements.

The warden stated that six months even for a partial suspension was a long time. "I dare say," he added, "you, in company with most of the mining community in my district, know that six months' suspension with me is certainly the greatest exception, but not the rule. Do you not think that you will be in a position to increase the number of men as you open out at an earlier date than six months' hence."

Witness: "Yes, I must admit that I may be able to."

ARDLETHAN TIN FIELD.

ARDLETHAN, Monday.

A new discovery on Keogh's block is receiving much attention. This block is situated south-west from the Commonwealth, and adjoins the Kia-ora. The find consists of a sedimentary deposit, carrying exceptionally good alluvial tin lode formation, being about 2ft wide. Lode matter consists of gneiss and garnet, carrying good tin values. The work done so far is confined to a paddock 20ft by 6ft, showing good tin all over from 2 to 3 feet deep. This formation has been opened up some distance out from the paddock, still containing good tin values. A trial parcel is being bagged up for treatment, and if the result is as good as it promises to be a renewed impetus will be given to the adjoining claims. Taken in conjunction with the recent developments on the Kurrajong, the find will prove conclusively that with proper prospecting other new finds are possible.

At the Black and White mine, the open cut is extended to 60ft, and a new make of stone has come in on the bottom, carrying good tin, with occasional bunches of rich crystallised ore.

Inspector Godfrey has been on the field for over a week, visiting all the shows, with a view of finding out whether it is worth while erecting a State battery or not. Many small owners are awaiting the erection of a battery. They have at grass large quantities of low-grade ore, the profits from which would be considerably discounted by freight and haulage charges to either Breadalbane or Barmedman.

A parcel of 11 tons of wolfram ore from the Outcast mine returned a net profit of £115.

At last we have the much-needed rain. The Mirrool Creek is running 3ft deep over the causeway. At the mines the fall was not nearly as heavy. At the Southern Cross there is over 3ft of water in the dam, and a very little more would enable them to commence crushing. The Wild Cherry did not fare so well, there only being a foot of water in the dam. At the White Crystal, the old dam, which is very small, received an extra 5ft of water, while the new one, only recently commenced, caught a lot of water, which will have to be drained off, as the dam is as yet only a little over 3ft deep. The Mirrool Creek has not run as it is doing for nine or ten years.

TONGKAH HARBOUR TIN DREDGING.

SULPHIDE CORPORATION, LIMITED.

During the four weeks ended March 21 18,768 tons of crude ore was milled at the Central mine, Broken Hill, producing 2968 tons of leady concentrates, and 5580 tons of zinc concentrates. During the same period, at the Cockle Creek works, 5028 tons of leady concentrates, purchased ores, etc., were smelted, yielding 1672 tons of lead, containing 36810oz gold, and 142,965oz silver.

HARRY LAUDER.

SYDNEY "COWES THE CUDDY"

COMEDIAN'S UP-HILL CAREER.

"I thought my last tour of the United States had eclipsed all records for warmth and excitement," exclaimed Mr. Harry Lauder at the Hotel Australia yesterday, "but this Sydney reception fairly cowes the cuddy!"

The now famous comedian and song-writer referred to the multitude of people who thronged the wharf, where the R.M.S. Sonoma berthed, and lined the streets, as he drove up in a car with Mrs. Lauder and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Tait behind the Highland Society's pipe band. In Moore-street alone several thousand people had assembled, and a crowd waited outside the Australia for an hour until the Scottish singer acknowledged the cheering by bowing from the balcony.

Mr. Lauder is short and sturdy, with a strong and rugged face that gleams with kindly intelligence and humour. He was neatly dressed in kilts, wearing the dark green tartan of the Macleod Highland clan, to which he belongs on the mother's side, and in his stocking was the "skean-dhu," a dagger in a jewelled sheath with a fearsome blade "for the critics, or any other men that gang inteferin' wi me," explained the humourist with a merry twinkle in his eye.

It was soon discovered, however, that Harry Lauder only talks broad Scotch as a luxury, or to play off a joke on the Southron, and he was quite ready to explain "cowes the cuddy." It means "cut or clip the donkey;" a Scotchman says "I'm going to get a cowe" when he means "get a haircut." Naturally he cowes his cuddy so that it may look the handsomest beast in the fair, and he says "that cowes the cuddy" where a Sydney man would exclaim "that takes the bun!"

THE AMERICAN TOUR.

The newcomer has just concluded a sixth tour in America, chiefly embracing New York, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, and San Francisco. Audiences were so crowded that he acquired the habit of standing over a hundred people "in the wings" by taking down part of a scene, and he worked a joke off on them by referring to them when a chorus was wanted as "the choir!" His first visit to America was in November, 1907, when he had a season at the New York Theatre of five weeks, and left again for London. "Just a little way I've got," he observed: "I lit the fire, and left it burning, and came back the next year to put more coals on. My songs have caught on all over the States, and I hope Australians will like me. Please ask them to remember I'm just an ordinary human! This Sydney reception has daunted me a bit by its over-enthusiasm. No living artist could possibly justify it, and I'm just a humble laddie, with a well-gift of song and jest. Yes, most of my songs were composed, and frequently written by myself. 'I Know a Lassie,' 'Roamin' in the Gloamin,' and 'She's my Daisy,' were inspired by my wife, as were other of my love-songs. Ah, here comes Mrs. Lauder." A bonny, frank-eyed lady joined the group, and smilingly bowed. "I submit all my songs to her in turn, as she seems to have an instinct for what the public will like, and whatever passes her honest criticism goes. One of her favourites was 'I Love a Lassie,' and my audiences endorsed her opinion to such an extent that it has been translated into French, German, Italian, and Russian."

HIS MINER BROTHER.

The interview was interrupted by the arrival of Mr. John Lauder, from Kurri-Kurri, near Maitland. "My brother Jock," cried the artist, when he read the card, and was, as people say, "off like a shot." Mr. Lauder's family history shows that he was born at Portobello, a little place which thrived so much that it "annexed Edinburgh," which now forms part of it, and early in life he moved to Arbroath, between Dundee and Aberdeen, where his mother's folk belong. Her name was Isabella Urquhart Macleod Maclennan, and her father was a pure Highlander, so that from him our visitor inherited his deep-natured love for the dales and rivers, the glens and the bens of Scotland. He has two brothers at Kurri-Kurri, and Mrs. Lauder has a sister there, as for two generations two brothers have married two sisters, "and it runs in the blood like a wooden leg," was Mr. Lauder's comment. He has also brothers in Canada. In July he will be joined by his only son John, 22 years of age, who has taken his B.A. at Cambridge. Young Lauder is studying music and law there simultaneously, and hopes to take his Mus. Bac.

"Is it true about the pit pony, Mr. Lauder?"

The comedian replied with a serious look that it was true, and his audience realised that the little Shetland pony had not been forgotten. Briefly, when he was a pit boy at Arbroath, his favourite Shetland pony suddenly refused to advance, trembled, responded not to voice or playful stone, and finally scrambled round to escape, with its puzzled young master after it, and, with a roar like thunder, hundreds of tons of material blocked the tunnel behind them! Those "wee timorous beasties" have found a patron and protector ever since in Harry Lauder. His friend, Sir Henry Dalziel, M.P. for Kirkcaldy, introduced a bill securing to these patient little creatures regular feed and water at fixed hours, and head-shields, and other favours appreciated by this miniature equine race.

THE FIRST ENGAGEMENT.

"How did I become a professional singer? By drifting into it after ten years as an amateur! You see, I used to appear for charity, and then people would offer me half-a-crown with free rights in the direction of cups of tea, a bun, and, maybe, an orange, and when these offers began to reach me four times a week, I earned a substantial addition to my mine money of 35s to 45s. There were the 'Croons,' and there was the joy of singing my little songs. At last I was lucky enough to secure a real professional engagement with a concert party, four months at 25s a week. Think of that, now! Didn't I rejoice to hear the birds in the morning, and realise that I didn't have to go underground away from them and the scented heather?! The work was easy. First, I was baggage-man; then, morning, distribute handbills at shops; noon, catch the men leaving the works for dinner with more bills; afternoon, programmes (no bills, mark you!) at the gentry houses; early evening, fit up the hall, and also get ready my "props"; rush home for a cup of tea and a wash-up; back to the hall, and check the six-penny people; make-up in character for seven or eight songs; finally, pack-up odds and ends, count the takings, settle the programme for next day, and, as Pepys puts it, 'So to bed.' I just loved every minute of it!"

"My first engagement at a variety theatre," continued Mr. Lauder, "was at the Old Scotia, Glasgow, a noted hall, and then I went to Aberdeen. Once thoroughly established in Scotland, my tours began to extend south, and I got known as far as Birmingham. Then, one day, I dressed myself up like a newly-married man, and made my first bid for London at Gatti's Musichall, Westminster Bridge-road, fourteen years ago. I made my debut with 'Tobermory,' which has been my mascot in every fresh town or country I have visited, and with which I shall open in Australia. I followed this with 'The Lass o' Killiecrankie,' and the Irish song 'Callaghan, Call Again,' which I originally wrote with a Birmingham man, and my success was assured.

ROYAL COMMANDS.

"Yes; I appeared before the late King Edward, and was personally congratulated by his Majesty, at Rufford Abbey, Lord and Lady Saville's place, and last August year I appeared before King George at the London Palace Theatre. My only appearance on the regular stage took place about a year ago at a London charity matinee in 'The Scrape of the Pen,' a comedy by my old friend Graham Moffatt, and I felt quite at home in such work. I understand that Mr. and Mrs. Graham Moffatt will visit Australia this year with their play 'Bunty Pulls the Strings,' which they produced at the Haymarket Theatre, London, where it had an immense run. In them you will see the foremost representatives of Scottish character on the present-day stage.

"My plans are to remain in this State a week, leaving to-morrow for Kurri Kurri. My manager, Mr. John H. Tait, has arranged for my appearance at the Melbourne Princess's Theatre on April 11, returning to Sydney for a season at the Palace Theatre, opening May 30."

STANMORE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The old Presbyterian Church near the Stanmore railway station has been demolished, and a lot of the material is being used in a new church at the corner of Middleton-road and Stanmore-road.

On Saturday the foundation-stone was laid by the Moderator, the Rev. Alexander Smith. The pastor, the Rev. W. Allan Stevely, said that the new structure would be erected free of mortgage or bank overdraft.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

The A.J.C. stipendiary stewards yesterday concluded the adjourned inquiry into the performance of Kopane in the Second Hurdle Race at Rosehill on Saturday, and accepted the owner's explanation as satisfactory; but they warned Timothy Jones, who rode the gelding, to ride out his mounts in the future or expect trouble.

The starting price of Purple Straw in the Erina Welter at Gosford on the 26th inst. was 7 to 1 against.

In addition to the increase in added money already announced for the coming season, the committee of the Australian Jockey Club has raised the prize for the St. Leger Stakes, 1916, from 1000 to 1500 sovs.

Satisfactory entries were received yesterday for the April meeting of the Wollongong Turf Club, the Kembla Welter attracting 24, the Maiden Stakes 12, Two-year-old Handicap 13, Bulli Trial Handicap 19, and Wollongong Mile 23, making a total of 91.

The 19th annual picnic of the members of City Tattersall's Club takes place to-day at Correy's Gardens, Cabarita, steamers leaving Fort Macquarie for that rendezvous at 10.30 and 11.30 a.m.

The Cowra mare, Belle Marie, got out of hand in the Members' Purse at the Rockley races (telegraphs our Bathurst correspondent), careered through the crowd of spectators, two of whom were injured. The jockey was thrown, but escaped serious injury.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs that after hearing further evidence yesterday the V.R.C. stipendiary stewards decided that J. M'Grath (trainer), F. Graham (jockey), and the mare Handsome Maid, should be disqualified for 12 months for dishonourable action in connection with the running of Handsome Maid in the Aspendale Park Purse on Saturday.

FOOTBALL.

RUGBY UNION.

RANDWICK CLUB'S MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Randwick District Rugby Union Club was held at the local Town Hall. Alderman Roy Hendy presided, and among the visitors were W. W. Hill, secretary M.R.U., and representatives of the various other clubs. The club has previously ranked as a second-grade organisation, but application has now been made for recognition as a first-grade club, and frequent mention was made by the speakers of this fact. The Eastern Suburbs Club, to which Randwick now belongs, notified their support to the proposal. The annual report recorded the most successful season in the history of the club, as only a narrow defeat in the final lost them the premiership to Eastern Suburbs II. Many social events were held, and proved very enjoyable. The report was adopted. The following office-bearers were elected:—Patrons, D. Storey, M.L.A., and W.H. Kelly, M.P.; president, Alderman D. M. Cooper; representative on Eastern Suburbs Club, N. Barrie; hon. treasurer, Spencer Wride; hon. secretary, J. Dunningham; assistant hon secretary, J. Dexter.

Special votes of thanks were accorded the retiring hon. secretary (L. Houseman) and hon. treasurer (C. Hall).

SECESSION FROM RUGBY UNION.

CASINO, Monday.

At a largely-attended meeting of the Carrington Rugby Union Club it was decided to disband and play the League game this season. Almost the whole of the clubs in the district have decided to play the League game, and the season promises to be successful.

MANILLA, Monday.

At the annual meeting of the Rugby Football Union Mr. G. R. W. M'Donald, M.L.A., was elected patron, Mr. C. Vincent president, Messrs. Trennery and O. H. Hall vice-presidents, Mr. W. D. Hartley secretary, and Mr. H. Russ treasurer.

GLEBE RUGBY LEAGUE CLUB.

The Glebe Rugby League Club will commence training at Wentworth Park on Thursday night.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Granville District beat H.M.A.S. Australia at Clyde on Saturday by 2 to 0. The flagship's team showed good promise.

Balmain will play at Cessnock on Easter Saturday, and at Weston on Easter Monday. West Wallsend will meet Northern Suburbs at West Wallsend on Easter Monday.

SWIMMING.

ANOTHER WORLD'S RECORD.

FANNY DURACK'S BRILLIANT SWIM.

Miss Fanny Durack established another world's swimming record for ladies last night. The champion swam 150 yards at the Municipal Baths Domain, under the auspices of the Ladies' Amateur Swimming Association, in the record time of 1m 55s. This beats the previous best (2m 4-5s), established by Miss Mina Wylie, at the Manly Carnival, on the 18th inst., by 4 1-5s. Prior to this, the world's record was held by Miss Daisy Curwen, an English swimmer, who last season swam the distance in 2m 3 4-5s.

It was a brilliant swim, but there was no demonstration, only the officials of the association and members of the Metropolitan Ladies' Swimming Club being present. Four watches ticked off the seconds, and when Miss Durack touched the rope at the finish one watch showed 1.55, another 1.55 1-5, and two registered 1.54 4-5. The official time was, therefore, announced as 1.55. The officials in control were:—Starter, Mrs. Chambers; timekeepers and judges, Misses Wenban, Shoppee, and Coulson.

A feature of the performance is the exacting conditions, as the baths give a 110 yards lap, thus allowing one turn and kick-off. Miss Wylie's record was established in a 50 yards bath, giving two turns and kicks-off. Miss Durack did not appear to be in the slightest degree distressed, but before entering the water she was confident, although she did not feel quite up to tip-top form. She got away well, but did not make her best time for the 100 metres to the turn, which occupied 1m 21 1-5s.

Miss Durack now holds the world's records for ladies for all distances, from 50 yards up to 1 mile. Her other records are as follow:—50 yards, 29s; 100 yards, 1m 6s; 100 metres, 1m 18 1-5s; 220 yards, 2m 59s; 300 yards, 4m 12s; 300 metres, 4m 43 3-5s; 440 yards, 6m 17s; 880 yards, 12m 52s; 1320 yards, 19m 31s; 1 mile, 26m 8s.

SOUTH SYDNEY AMATEUR CLUB.

The above club will close the season to-night with a 100 yards championship and a 50 yards consolation race. Handicaps:—G. Williams, scr.; J. Casey, 1s; W. Collins, 2; F. Howard, 3; J. Malone, 4; A. Stapleton, H. Campbell, 5; H. Morson, F. Craig, W. B. Jones, W. Mullens, 6; T. Atherdon, A. Balgown, 7; W. Rigg, 8; G. Swan, W. Walden, 9; R. M'Donald, G. Hall, 10; G. Campbell, T. Bourke, 12; J. N. Leber, T. Edwards, 13; H. S. Campbell, R. Abbott, 16; T. Moore, 18; Joe Smart, 20.

BOXING.

WELLS v HOLLAND.

After Fritz Holland's defeat of Tom M'Cormick, the former will probably be matched with Matt Wells at an early date. Holland is by no means new to boxing, but, like many Americans, he has come to Australia to make his reputation, and in outpointing M'Cormick he has accomplished a noteworthy performance. In Matt Wells he will be meeting the best welterweight in the British Empire. The winner will be matched with Packey M'Farland for the world's title, if the latter visits Australia under Mr. Baker's management.

OLYMPIA TOURNAMENT.

The £1000 tournament promoted by the Newtown Athletic Club was continued at the local stadium last evening, in the presence of another large attendance. Mr. Wally Weekes refereed. Results:—

10st 7lb Division.—Ben Pengelly (Redfern) and Boyo Joliffe (Lilyfield), the referee was unable to decide the winner, and another round was boxed, Pengelly gaining the verdict before its conclusion. Alf Smith (Leichhardt) knocked out Denny Bolger (Auburn) in the first round.

THE WEATHER.

HEAVY HAIL.

RAIN IN EASTERN DISTRICTS.

Since 9 a.m. on Saturday thundery conditions, influenced by an area of nondescript low pressure, have prevailed in the coastal and tableland districts.

It was also in this low pressure that the tornadic thunderstorm developed in the metropolitan area. The heaviest amounts of rainfall received during the course of this storm were:—Marrickville 65 points, Killara 56, Strathfield 52, Parramatta 41, Glebe Point 40, Kurrajong 33, Sydney 29, Vaucluse 28, Hunter's Hill 27, Bankstown 18, Windsor 15, and Penrith 8.

An interesting account of the thunderstorm on Saturday afternoon is supplied by a correspondent residing at Kurnell:—"About 3 p.m. we had here a violent squall from the S.W., with thunder and sheets of rain. At about 3.7 p.m. there came a blinding flash of lightning and crash of thunder (almost simultaneous), immediately followed by hail in the form of irregular masses of ice. This lasted 10 or 12 minutes, a fresh instalment of ice following each crash of thunder. The largest piece of ice I saw fell on the lawn (freshly mowed) at the front of the house, and exceeded the size of a large hen's egg, sliced obliquely."

The chief rainfall in other parts of the eastern districts were:—Taree 255 points, Port Macquarie 216, Newcastle 151, and Manning 142 points (in the Hunter and Manning district).

On the North Coast, Tweed Heads had 145 points, Byron Bay 123, Ballina 53, and Nambucca and Lismore each 40.

On the South Coast, Moruya 63 and Bateman's Bay 40 points.

On the southern tablelands, of a few scattered falls, 51 points at Braidwood was the largest.

The rain was also light and partial on the central tableland, Springwood with 40 points having the largest amount.

On the north-west plains, Moree had 21 points, Millie 20, and Bomi 14.

RAIN AT BRISBANE.

SPORTS POSTPONED.

BRISBANE, Monday.

The rain which has fallen for the greater portion of the week continued with increased energy on Saturday, causing a postponement of all sporting fixtures. These included the second day of the Australian Cycling Championships at Brisbane Cricket Ground, races of Ipswich Jockey Club, and the fight for the middleweight championship of Australia between Arthur Cripps and Tim Land, which was due to take place at Baker's Stadium on Saturday evening.

MOTOR CARS, BICYCLES, ETC.

A GOOD MAKE of SECOND-HAND CAR is a better investment than a new cheap car. A new car depreciates from 30 to 50 per cent. the first year; a second-hand car, bought at the right place, is always a valeable asset.
We have Cars and Lorries that have had very little use going for half or less than half their original cost, and we are authorised by the owners to guarantee their condition. We have sold hundreds of cars, and can refer you to satisfied clients throughout the country.
Among the Cars we have for Sale are Single and Double Seated Cars that have been left with us for sale by owners who have gone to Europe, or are going during the next few months.
